Scorpion Reports Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Specially equipped Navy vessels hunting the lost nuclear submarine Scorpion are searching with underwater cameras a "highly suspect" area southwest of the Azores, a Navy source said today.

"We haven't found her," the source added.

He described the intensity search area 450 miles from the Azores as having the "highest probability" of being the last resting place of the submarine.

When it sent its last radio message May 21, it was about 250 miles south of the Azores, on its way to Norfolk, Va., from duty in the Mediterranean with a crew of 99.

Westinghouse Broadcasting science specialist William Hines said today Navy vessels have located the Scorpion in one of the deepest parts of the Atlantic. He attributed his information to a highly reliable source.

But the Pentagon said, "There is no truth to the report that the U.S. Scorpion has been found."

A spokesman, who said he had checked with Atlantic Fleet headquarters in Norfolk, added, "They have found no parts or pieces of the Scorpion."

The Navy source said the two vessels, the Mizar and the Bowditch, are using underwater sensors and cameras in what he called a painstaking examination of the ocean bottom.

The Atlantic floor drops to 12,000 to 18,000 feet in the search area, the source estimated. This is well below the "crush depth" of the Scorpion, reported able to operate as deep as 1,200 feet.

The Navy source said some debris sighted soon after the Scorpion was reported overdue May 27 led to concentrating the search in the area where the Mizar and the Bowditch are now looking.

He indicated there may have been other sightings of debris since then, mentioning a rubber gasket.

Hines is a science writer for the World Book Science Service and the Chicago Daily News which published his account under a World Book Science Service copyright. Hines had taped some excerpts for Westinghouse.

Hines said although there is no official confirmation of the report from the Navy itself the Washington source was "too well informed to be mistaken about such things."

According to Hines, the site of the disaster is known within a mile or two and an announcement from the Navy may be imminent.

The Navy is said to have surface vessels on the scene using special automatic cameras on the ocean floor to take pictures of the wreckage.

"It is expected that as soon as the Navy has a picture it can release without giving away submarine construction secrets an official announcement of the Scorpion's whereabouts will be made. That could be any day now," Hines said.

The Scorpion with 99 men aboard, disappeared last May while en route from the Mediterranean to Norfolk, Va.

Cambodian Navy Reports Seizing U.S. Patrol Boat

SAIGON (AP) — The Cambodian navy was reported today to have seized an American patrol boat in the Mekong Delta and arrested 11 Americans and one South Vietnamese aboard.

U.S. military authorities in Saigon confirmed that a Navy landing craft was missing in the delta but said it had 10 Americans aboard. There was no mention of any South Vietnamese passenger. It was assumed to be the boat which a newspaper in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, said was seized a mile inside Cambodian river waters.

American authorities said the missing landing craft left Dong Tam, a base near the delta city of My Tho, on July 15 and headed up river for Binh Thuy, another base just up river from Can Tho, the delta's largest city. The trip up the Mekong and Bassac rivers and across a major canal should have taken two days, but the boat did not arrive on the night of July 17.

U.S. headquarters said a search for the past two days had failed to produce any trace of the boat.

It was assumed that the United States would send Cambodia a request for return of the boat and its crew, using the Australian Embassy in Phnom Penh as the channel. Australia has represented U.S. interests in Cambodia since Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, broke relations with Washington in 1965.

In the course of the Vietnam war, several small American craft have been seized by the Cambodians after straying across the border in the delta. All the crews have been returned, although the Cambodians have reportedly kept one small landing boat.

Border troubles between the Cambodian government and the U.S. and South Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam are frequent because the frontier at many points is unmarked, in dispute or poorly defined, and because Prince Sihanouk strongly opposes both the Saigon government and the U.S. military support of it.

U.S. officials charge that Cambodia provides transit routes for North Vietnamese troops and supplies coming down through Laos to reinforce the Viet Cong. The U.S. Command also charges that the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese take refuge in Cambodia when pursuit by U.S. forces becomes too hot for them.

Sihanouk has repeatedly denied these charges, although Cambodian officials concede privately that their army is too small and lacks facilities to patrol the long frontier between Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Humphrey Says Smathers Just Being Good Booster

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., said Vice President Hubert Humphrey wants the Democratic National Convention moved from Chicago to Miami Beach, the Miami Herald reported today.

Humphrey's response was a two-line statement through an aide: "Sen. Smathers is Florida's No. 1 booster and a good friend, but Chicago will be the city of the national convention."

The report came on the heels of a report by the Huntley-Brinkley newscast on NBC-TV that the convention would be moved to Miami Beach plans.

Nixon Elated by Ike Endorsement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon believes his endorsement by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower may persuade some uncommitted Republican National Convention delegates to back his presidential candidacy.

Nixon told newsmen shortly after Eisenhower's endorsement Thursday that persuasion of uncommitted delegates was one possible benefit.

But, he added, the endorsement also should provide a lift not only to his current drive for the presidential nomination but beyond that to the fall campaign.

Neither Eisenhower nor Nixon contended the endorsement would be decisive and both insisted that despite Nixon's hefty-delegate lead the convention that opens Aug. 5 in Miami Beach will be open.

Two Hurt in Car Accidents

Traffic accidents resulted in two injuries in Ripley and Cape Girardeau counties.

Joe Friar, 54, Doniphan, driver of a 1962 Pontiac, lost control Thursday at 8:30 a.m. oh highway 21, four miles north of Doniphan.

He ran off the road and struck a culvert and was cut on the face. He was taken to Ripley County Memorial hospital in Doniphan.

Two vehicles collided Thursday at 3 p.m. on highway 61, one half mile south of Fruitland, injuring a passenger in one.

A 1965 Chevrolet, driven by Bernie French, 37, Perryville, stopped to make a left turn, when a 1965 GMC dump truck, driven by Marvin Scholz, 50, Whitewater, came up too fast behind a 1963 Ford, driven by Ivan Reimann, 30, Jackson.

The Scholz truck swerved into the wrong lane, the state patrol reported and collided with the French car. Injured was Regina Schnurbusch, 62, Perryville, passenger in th French car.

She received cuts on her forehead and a back injury and was taken to St. Francis hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Czechs to Talk to European Reds

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's liberal Communist regime will hold talks with leaders of other European Communist parties Saturday, the official news agency CTK reported today. It did not identify the parties, but the meetings would presumably allow the Czechoslovaks to make a face-to-face defense of their reform program.

The announcement came as the Soviet Union was pledging help to Czechoslovak hard-liners, including the 35,000 man People's Militia, an armed force that has backed Antonin Novotny, the ousted Stalinist ruler. Liberals here have demanded the militia's dissolution.

It also coincided with an East German exhortation to Czechoslovak old-liners to "Boldly counterattack the revisionist and anti-Socialist forces."

The brief CTK dispatch was the first word on such a meeting following rumors that party chief Alexander Dubcek would meet with the Soviet party's secretary-general, Leonid I. Brezhnev, in the near future. President Tito of Yugoslavia also was expected for a visit here, presumably following the Dubcek-Brezhnev meeting.

The announcement came shortly after the Czechoslovak party's Central Committee went into session to discuss a decision by the Dubcek leadership to defend to the end the nation's liberalization process. Prague has rejected the Soviet idea of holding a summit conference on Czechoslovakia, but voiced readiness to discuss its new course in bilateral talks.

The French, Italian, British, Belgian and Austrian Communists have joined the regimes of Romania and Yugoslavia in expressions of confidence in the new Czechoslovak course.

The militia, reportedly in contact with the Soviets, has been a target of Czechoslovak liberals who demand it be scrapped.

This new Soviet offensive against the reformers came as the 110 members of the Czechoslovak party's Central Committee were expected to give their overwhelming support to party chief Alexander Dubcek, who told the Czechoslovak people Thursday that liberalization will continue but "our road will not be easy.

The session of the 110-member committee also was attended by some 50 newly elected delegates to an extraordinary party congress scheduled for September to remove Stalinist hard-liners remaining in high party positions.

In Moscow, Pravda kept up the war of words against the Czechoslovak liberals, repeating the charge that "counter-revolutionary" forces in Czechoslovakia "threaten the...foundations of the Socialist system."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper, in a long front-page editorial, promised "all necessary help" for Czechoslovak hard-liners. The Soviet press has made no mention of declarations of support for the new Prague government from other Communist parties.

It also ignored Dubcek's speech, in which he declared: "The people will not permit a return to the pre-January days." He referred to the regime of Stalinist Antonin Novotny, whom he displaced as Communist party chief at the start of the year.

Pravda also said there were reports in Prague's "journalistic circles" that Czechoslovak security polic had discovered U.S. weapons hidden on Czech soil near the West German border.

Pravda said the weapons were pistols, machine guns and submarchine guns "suitable for...small rebel groups." It said they "obviously have been smuggled in from West Germany" for anti-Communists.

Observers in Moscow noted a similarity between the Pravda article and Soviet charges during the 1956 Hungarian uprising that caches of U.S. weapons were discovered in Hungary.

Pravda also charged that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and the Pentagon are trying to subvert "unstable elements" in Czechoslovakia.

Oil Discovery Rated Windfall for Alaska

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Walter J. Hickel sees the discovery of oil in Alaska's Arctic region as a key unlocking the state's vast potential and a stabilizer of its economy.

"It's tremendous," the governor kept saying Thursday after hearing that reserves estimated by oil experts at 5 to 10 billion barrels had been found in the Prudhoe Bay area along Alaska's Arctic coast.

The Arctic Slope is an expanse of endless tundra inhabited only by caribou, wolves and an occasional roving band of Eskimo hunters.

The area, some 380 miles north of Fairbanks, is a region long eyed with anticipation by petroleum geologists.

The U.S. Navy's Petroleum Reserve No. 4 lies to the west of the Atlantic Richfield-Humble discovery, in an area where the temperature merely toys with the freezing point—even during the long summer days when the Arctic sun never gets below the horizon.

Degolyer and MacNaughton, a Dallas oil consulting firm, said the new discovery has the potential of developing into one of the world's largest fields.

Located on a 90,000-acre block of federally leased land, the new discovery apparently confirms what petroleum geologists have long thought, that the Arctic Slope is a vast storehouse of oil and gas.

Gov. Hickel feels the oil income from the huge federal holdings on the north slope could be used to meet native demands for $500 million to drop claims blocking the state's efforts to select the 103 million acres promised by the statehood act.

He also sees it as possibly leading to the elimination of state income taxes, which brought in $31 million in the last fiscal year.

Alaska, which ranks 10th among the 32 oil producing states, received direct income from oil and gas production taxes, lease bonuses, royalties and rentals of over $40 million for the fiscal year ending June 30. The state's general fund budget for the year was $104 million.

The governor listed as his first priority the extension of the federally owned Alaska railroad from its northern terminus at Fairbanks the remaining 400 miles to the north coast.

Besides relieving the oil industry of the immediate need of building a $400 million pipeline to get the oil to ice-free tide-water, the railroad, he said, would provide a "two-way haul" to open up thousands of square miles of unexplored wilderness.

"We haven't even begun to tap the mineral potential up there," Hickel said.

400 Friends Toast Rep. David Rolwing

State Rep. James E. Spain, Bloomfield, was master of ceremonies.

State Rep. Tony Heckemeyer admitted prejudice in favor of Rolwing after spending thousands of hours working with him during the past four years in the legislature. Rolwing has been a representative eight years.

Heckemeyer termed Rolwing as "an extremely capable legislator, and a man the 10th district cannot afford to be without."

Speaker of the Missouri House James E. Godfrey, St. Louis, praised the legislative record of Rolwing, particularly in agriculture, conservation and internal affairs.

He will be missed in the state house, but the state's loss will be the nation's gain, Godfrey said.

Rolwing thanked persons attending for their support and emphasized that he hoped whoever is sent to congress from the 10th district would remember the importance of agriculture to this area.

DAVID ROLWING, addresses a packed house at the Country Club Thursday night at a dinner to support his campaign for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Representative from the 10th district. Summit Talks Begin

HONOLULU (AP) — President Johnson and South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu formal talks apparently will embrace possible direct Saigon-Viet Cong negotiations and a total bombing halt in the North.

In advance of today's first formal meeting at the hilltop headquarters of the U.S. Pacific Command, Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford said he avoided those two topics during his Saigon visit earlier in the week "in order to leave that up to Thieu and President Johnson."

Clifford talked to newsmen Thursday at Hickam Field as he waited with Johnson to greet Thieu's chartered airliner.

Johnson, in welcoming the South Vietnamese leader, touched on the peace search under way in Paris and offered these words of reassurance to his visitor:

"Mr. President, our pledge to help your people defeat aggression stands firm against all obstacles and against any deception."

Thieu, dwarfed by the U.S. chief executive, responded by saying he looked forward to discussions of "accomplishments as well as problems that lie before us." He said he hoped for "steps toward peace and freedom for Vietnam and Southeast Asia."

Only a few score uniformed military personnel and dependants, plus a small costumed delegation from Honolulu's Vietnamese colony, were allowed to witness the arrival ceremony. Authorities obviously had taken pains to avoid any antiwar demonstration.

Both Johnson and Thieu were doing most of their traveling around the island of Oahu by helicopter.

The American President was quartered at a luxury seaside home built by the late industrialist Henry J. Kaiser. It was sealed off from the curious. Thieu was staying at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel on Waikiki beach.

After Johnson's arrival in Hawaii Thursday afternoon, White House officials learned about a published report from Saigon that Clifford, while there, had persuaded Thieu to make two major "concessions"—to go along with a total bombing halt in the North and to agree to direct talks with Viet Cong representatives at broadened peace negotiations to be proposed at some point in the future.

Besides Clifford, Johnson's party included Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Director Richard Helms of the Central Intelligence Agency, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Ellsworth Bunker, ambassador to South Vietnam.

Missourians have an opportunity in this presidential election year to retard the inflationary spiral, which has gripped the nation for a quarter of a century.

They should not make the mistake in relating their economic well being to the candidates for president alone because all officials share this responsibility from court house to White House.

Members of congress and state legislators have an especially important role in controlling inflation.

The stigma for inflation or the benefits as the case may be cannot be placed on the shoulders of any political party.

There are conservatives and liberals of all shades in both the Democratic and Republican parties.

If the responsibility could be pin pointed the blame could not be accurately attributed to any elected official.

For 25 years the American people have by and large elected to office the big spenders.

Those, who promised to spend the most of the taxpayers' own money, have been elected with almost montonously regularity.

As a result the country has experienced more and more inflation, has paid more and more to support government at all levels and in some respects are receiving less and less in return.

State, county and municipal government have been caught in the upward push of prices. Since everything they buy costs more they have had no alternative but to increase taxes and search out new sources of revenue.

Government is not the only factor in inflation. Management and labor bear a responsibility but government, particulary the federal government, is the major offender and for those who like rempant inflation the principal benefactor.

The National Consumer Finance Association tells Americans where they have been on the inflation trail.

The Association points out that in order to maintain his purchasing power, a man, who earned from $5,000 to $10,000 in 1949 would have to earn 50 per cent more today. Prices have increased 44 per cent since 1949. Increases in Social Security and federal income taxes have taken bigger bites out of take-home pay.

Put another way the married couple with two children and a $5,000 income in 1949 would need $7,661 before taxes to maintain the same purchasing power. To equal the purchasing power of a $10,000 income in 1949 the same family would need $15,022 in 1968.

The new income tax surcharge of 10 per cent will place an additional drain on the purchasing power of the dollar although it is designed to arrest inflation.

A married man with two children and a gross income of $10,000 now will pay an additional tax of $98 for the April 1, effective date for individuals, to Dec. 31, 1968.

Those whose earning power has advanced well above the 50 per cent level since 1949 and who have prospects for accelerating at an even faster rate in the years ahead may be satisfied.

They may wish to maintain the status quo or be willing to risk an increased inflationary climb.

Those, who have not or who do not like the trend Americans have so enthusiastically supported, should check the promises and qualifications of all candidates for political office carefully.

No one can turn back the clock but the inflationary spiral can be slowed by electing conservative candidates or proved competence, honesty and ability to office.

The dollar you save may be your own.

AN EXPLANATION IS DEMANDED

Another incident in the life of Senator Edward V. Long has come to light and while Senator Long may not be involved, his close law partner in St. Louis is. He is Morris Shenker, prominent labor attorney in St. Louis, who has paid Senator Long thousands upon thousands of dollars in legal fees.

The payment of those legal fees has never been explained by Senator Long, other than that they were referral cases. No one in Missouri is satisfied with Senator Long's explanation unless it is Senator Long and Mr. Shenker.

The latest thing that has come to light is a statement made by Prosecuting Attorney Alden S. Lance of Savannah, Mo. It involves fees paid to Mr. Shenker by rural electric cooperatives in Missouri. Some of them are right here in northwest Missouri.

This newspaper has been aware of the fact that an investigation has been conducted in this areove;electrical cooperative payments to Mr. Shenker. It has been known that a thorough and complete check has been made among these electrical cooperatives in this area about the payments made to Mr. Shenker.

It is most surprising that with all of the capable attorneys practicing in northwest Missouri the electric cooperatives would find it necessary to pay out thousands of dollars in legal fees to Mr. Shenker.

It is not heresay that these payments have been made to the St. Louis labor lawyer. This writer has seen evidence of sums of money paid by northwest electric cooperatives to Mr. Shenker. But in cooperative circles there is too much silence about these payments made to Mr. Shenker. Officials do not discuss frankly these payments. That is unfortunate. And it is unfortunate that Senator Long issues a statement calling the Lance charge a political smear rather than to give an explanation of what has happened.

While it is true Prosecutor Lance is a Republican, there cannot be anything political in his charge against the fees paid Mr. Shenker. Senator Long does not have the senator nomination to succeed himself in office and this newspaper is of the opinion that he will not get that nomination, so it must be inferred that Prosecutor Lance has acted in the best of faith and is interested solely in his duties as a decent lawyer of northwest Missouri.

This newspaper believes citizens of northwest Missouri should have an explanation of these legal fees, either by a statement from the officers of the electrical cooperatives, from Mr. Shenker or from Senator Long. That is the least that could be done.

Sometimes we think that officials do not have very good judgment.

They threw Rev. Ralph David Abernathy in jail Monday, a thing he has been working for ever since Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King was assassinated.

If they had of been half way smart, they would of preferred to arrest the Rev. and thrown all of his followers in jail.

How long do you think Abernathy's influence would of lasted?

Here goes another fond illusion, done to death by tardy exposure of circumstances which led to a widely accepted political folk legend.

Even as Mark Twain did not say "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it," and Gen. John J. Pershing did not say "LaFayette, we are here!" Calvin Coolidge did not say "I do not choose to run," in 1927.

The story comes out of James Minifie's book, "Who's Your Fat Friend?—Style in Politics," a J.B. Lippincott production relating how politicians and others in public life make or break themselves by off-the-cuff remarks.

Mr. Minifie tells that Raymond Carroll, a correspondent for the Philadelphia Public Ledger, accompanied Coolidge on a Western trip. He went to Coolidge's quarters, and asked to see the President. An aide asked the nature of his mission, and Carroll replied that he wanted to have a chat about Coolidge's views on running for a second term.

The aide carried the request to the President, and brought back the reply that he did not choose to.

Carroll, so tells Mr. Minifie, hastened to write a powerful piece quoting Coolidge as saying "I do not choose to run." The word spread like wildfire. Reflecting on the story in the middle of the night, Carroll was struck with the thought,"I wonder if he meant to say 'I do not choose to see Raymond Carroll.' "

Thus may have been born a legend which is firmly established in the tradition.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that doctors get tired of hearing —or overhearing:

"I can't come to your office today, doc. I don't feel so good."

"Is it true that doctors have secret medicines that they save for themselves, in case they get sick?"

"If you're not sure exactly what's wrong with me, why don't I just wait while you look it up in a book?"

"Don't doctors ever practice what they preach? You tell me I ought to take off 10 pounds, but unless I miss my guess you ought to take off at least 20 yourself."

"Can't you prescribe something for me that comes in a pink capsule? I always seem to get well quicker when I take pink-colored medicines."

"How can you tell if a doctor has a good bedside manner any more? You can't get them to come to your bedside."

"No, I'm not really a patient. I'm from the U.S. Internal Revenue Service. However, after we finish our little chat about your 1965 income tax return, I would appreciate it if you'd take a quick look at my throat. It's been a bit sore for several days."

"What are my symptoms? You name any symptom on your list, Doc, and I'll lay you 3 to 1 that I've got it."

"Instead of diagnosing it as gastritis from too much beer, Doc, couldn't you just give me a little note for my boss saying it's a potential ulcer from too much work and worry? That'll get me a lot more sympathy at the office."

"I can remember when his grandfather used to come to our house in his horse and buggy, even to treat a headache, and he only charged $2."

"Which patient do you want to see next, Doctor, the gabby old lady with the kidney or that fat Mr. Stuffed Shirt with the blood pressure? Better him maybe. He's getting pretty red in the face. He says he's been waiting 15 minutes already and that his time is as valuable to him as yours is to you."

"I'm getting married next week to the sweetest girl on earth, Doctor, and I just wanted to know if you had any—uh—medical advice or—uh—philosophy about life that would be helpful to me on our honeymoon."

"This your limousine in the no-parking zone, Doc? Afraid I'll have to write you out a ticket. Don't hand me that stuff about making a house call—because I just saw you coming out of that movie."

"I hate to be so old-maidish, Doctor, but couldn't you please look the other way while you examine me? I've always been so terribly, terribly shy."

"I know I shouldn't ask you about professional matters while we're dancing at a party, Doctor, but could you tell me what are the first signs of gall bladder trouble in a girl who is —let us say, for example—on the shady side of 40?"

"I was reading one of the magazines in your anteroom, Doc, and according to that issue it looks like Tom Dewey is a shoo-in for the presidency."

"Let the patients wait, Doctor. What kind of a nurse would I be if I didn't tell you when it was time for you to take your own medicine. Now, don't be a big baby about it. Open! Swallow! There!—that wasn't so bad, was it?"

"Lie Down, You're Supposed to Be Sick!"

The small daughter of a famous surgeon always introduced herself when asked her identity as "Doctor Baker's daughter." Her mother decided to correct her firmly about it on the grounds that it sounded too snobbish.

"After this," said her mother, "just refer to yourself as Mary Baker."

Several days later a colleague of the doctor leaned over and asked, "Aren't you Doctor Baker's little girl?"

"I always thought I was," aanswered the little girl, "but Mother says not."

FOR THE BIRDS

Cynics who have concluded that there is no hope for our misnamed "civilization" may take heart from a recent press item. It indicates that civilization is progressing. The item tells about an episode in the slow comeback of the nearly extinct Whooping Crane -- a graceful bird of impressive dimensions. In the late 1930's, naturalists discovered that the Whooping Crane population had declined to only 14 birds. The species was virtually extinct. Unprecedented steps were taken to preserve the natural environment of the winter home of this majestic bird on the Texas Coast.

Over the years, the Whooping Crane flock has managed to increase in numbers to 49 -- still pitifully small. But, as time goes on, if no unforeseen events occur, extinction will have been averted. In the meantime, the conservation efforts of wildlife officials and the petroleum industry have been both inspiring and humorous.

A petroleum company has completed a new gas well just offshore on the Texas Gulf Coast. The well has a flow potential of 48 million cubic feet of natural gas a day. But, this gas is staying locked in the earth. The well was completed 24 hours before the first Whooping Crane returned from its northern Canadian migration to a nearby wildlife refuge. Concerned that the operation of the well might disturb the cranes, the company hung a sign on the wellhead, "Closed until May 15. This place is for the birds." No one knows how many millions of dollars it has cost oil companies to protect wildlife, including the Whooping Crane. Several years ago, an oil company won a citation of merit from the National Audubon Society for its effort in this connection.

At any rate, this incident illustrates the enviromental awareness of modern industry. It also reveals the humanitarian side of our contemporary citizens in the United States. While it may be only a straw in the wind, the battle to save the Whooping Crane could be symptomatic of civilization on the rise. Let's hope so.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: LBJ must fill vitally important FCC vacancy; TV networks continue to bring violence into the American home; They organize campaign to convince public that violence is good for you.

WASHINGTON-Most important appointment President Johnson has to make--second only to his current Supreme Court appointments--is to fill the present vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission. The right man on this commission could help to revitalize the most hidebound regulatory agency in Washington and start reversing programs of TV violence.

Lyndon Johnson is the first President in American history to acquire his family fortune through radio and television, and his past appointments to the FCC--with one exception--have not been brilliant. He was responsible for elevating one of the most reactionary members, Hosel Hyde, to be FCC chairman. It was chairman Hyde who led the move inside the commission to hand down the scandalously Anti-Negro decision in the case of the Lamar Insurance Company's TV station in Jackson, Miss., after that station had thumbed its nose at the rights of Mississippi Negroes.

Incidentally, it was Justice Abe Fortas's former law partner, Paul Porter, a former FCC chairman, who skillfully maneuvered this victory for Anti-Negro television policy in Jackson.

All this is why Johnson's upcoming FCC appointment will be watched so carefully by the network Moguls, if not by the unsuspecting public.

For it now develops that the television networks have been kidding the public about eliminating violence from the home screen.

It is true that the networks are making aplay of editing violence out of such A group of concerned Ad Men, calling themselves Advertising Men for De-escalation of Violence on Television, have called this "Eyewash."

"Who thinks of those shows as violent?" demanded ADMVT's founder, Bert Randolph Sugar. "They're spoofs. This isn't what we mean."

Violence is Good For You

Much more in need of editing are the shows that the National Association For Better Broadcasting has condemned, such as "Rat Patrol," "The Saint," "The Avengers" and "Guns Of Will Sonnett." apparently they will remain as rootin', tootin', shootin' as ever.

Meanwhile, Network officials are lining up hired experts who will try to persuade the public that the daily gunplay on the home screen is mere harmless make-believe. Their campaign will be conducted along the same lines as the cigaret industry that smoking is good for you. In this case the theme will be that violence is good for you.

There is, of course, overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Responsible sociologists have warned that TV not only has stimulated violence in this country but has made people callous toward crime in the streets.

TV violence, they say, has caused a psychological conditioning effect, which has permitted onlookers to stand by while people have been attacked and even killed. The witnesses feel as unable to participate as they feel in front of their TV sets.

Dr. Harry Skornia of the University of Illinois, an authority in this field, writes:

"The principal characters in westerns, crime and private-eye series, and other popular TV programs would seem to rate fairly high in teaching effectiveness. There is considerable evidence of danger that what these individuals demonstrate will be learned....

"Terrible emotional effects may be noticed in certain people from given programs, just as dangerous physical effects are noted on certain people allergic to certain drugs."

The effectivieness of television in teaching violence has been attested by the Armed Forces which, after more than 100 studies, has adopted TV as a favorite media for instructing troops in physical assault, weapons handling and the techniques of violence.

Public Is Not Helpless

The question asked us by many readers is how can they help reduce this daily explosion of TV violence that is beamed into their living rooms? Here are some answers:

1. The better broadcasting people, who have been assessing TV violence for 17 years, are conducting an exhaustive survey to determine whether TV stations have lowered the violence quotient at all since Sen. Robert Kennedy's assassination. But they need funds to conduct this survey. You can help. Their address is 373 North Western Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90004.

2. AMDVT is also urging advertisers to stop sponsoring TV shows which glorify violence. Parents can help by refusing to buy the products of companies that sponsor violence.

For children, the worse hours on television are Saturday mornings, which are filled with animated violence. The better broadcasting people state flatly: "As far as children are concerned, 1968 television is the worst in the history of TV. The 1968 season illustrates an attitude of gross negligence toward child welfare by the majority of TV broadcasters. This criticism includes the heads of all three networks." Not only the cartoons but the commercials are described as "disturbing."

Among the sponsors taking a firm stand against TV violence is George Conklin, President of M&M Mars, Inc., who hs pledged that his company will sponsor no more shows of this kind. He admitted that he had been watching the audience ratings not the program content.

After our columns appeared, he asked his 14-year-old son, Blair: "How are those Saturday morning shows?"

"Horrible," replied Blair. That ended the M&M Sponsorship.

Kellogg's Breakfast Foods have also turned to more wholesome entertainment for children. Beginning with the new season, Kellogg on Saturday Mornings will sponsor a variety show, strictly nonviolent, to be called "The Barbara Bunch Adventure Hour."

But most of the time, the TV screen will be monopolized by the same old kill-for-thrill programs.

H.L. Hunt Says

ELECTION IN THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

In municipal elections held throughout the Dominican Republic in May of this year, the Dominican people demonstrated their confidence in the party of President Joaquin Balaguer, underscoring the wisdom of United States policy in that country.

When the United States helped the Dominican people overthrow the leftist regime of Juan Bosch in 1965, the communists accused us of "imperialism," of thwarting the will of the people. Yet it is now obvious that Balaguer, who came into power at that time, has the full support of his countrymen.

During the municipal elections, Balaguer was careful to make no campaign speeches or endorsements, not wanting to subject the people to pressure of any kind from the national government. No government in the hands of communists or socialists would have followed a similar policy.

The elections themselves were remarkable for their honesty and the absence of any widespread violence. Over one million voters, a very heavy turnout, cast their ballots. They did this in spite of appeals of Bosch and other leftists that the people boycott the election.

Through the democratic process, the Dominican people gave President Balaguer and his Reformista party an overwhelming vote of confidence. The Reformistas and pro-Balaguer independents won an estimated 90% of the mayoralties and city council seats involved in the election. It is clear that Bosch's influence is extremely weak.

The recent election shows that the Dominicans approve the results of U. S. action in their country. Despite the propaganda cries of the communists, our policy in the Dominican Republic directly benefitted the people. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

IN ARAB TRIANGLE

Jews Fight For Moslems' Rights

Taiyiba, Israel: -- Here in the Arab Triangle we've been thigh-deep in cold soda pop and hot arguments. On the other side of the table the Arab school principal and his colleague, a former member of Israel's Knesset (Parliament) and a lot of younger Arabs want to know about Resurrection City and the treatment of black workers in America.

Slightly startled, I told them after a while that I had taken to the torrid dusty road to ask how the Arabs were being treated by the Jews.

Slightly startled that I should ask, they retorted with considerable surprise that they were first class citizens -- except on the front: Jewish leaders would not permit them to fight the besieging Arab enemies, though my hosts across the table said they had volunteered, they had given blood and they had worked hard behind the lines.

Only the Druzes, of an ancient mystic religion drawn from Moses' family, could fight in any way. The Jews did not want to set brother against brother.

Otherwise Arab and Jew had equal rights -- on the job, in places of worship, in politics, in employment offices and under the law.

Arabic is Israel's second language. It is used in the Knesset. It is on coins and banknotes -- of which the Arabs are in as plentiful supply as Jewish workers -- and on postage stamps.

In Histadrut, the General Federation of Labor in Israel, there now are 42,000 Arab workers, even - Steven with Jewish members.

They can stand for election. They can sue in the Court of Honor. They can organize -- as they have here in this Arab community of 10,000.

They can travel freely, over the Allenby Bridge, up to the border or down to Eilat.

This is their labor federation as well as Jews' -- and in January 1966, just so all would understand this, Histadrut removed the word "Jewish" from its title.

As we talked I thought of the moment, not too long ago, when I sat in some of Cairo's palaces. I had come for interviews and stayed to protest the secret police action which put me out of my hotel room at 7 a.m., a few hours after my bags had been searched because I am an American newsman.

I was put in a "fleabag" hotel - and this time the word is meant in its strictly literal sense. Those fleas and flies made certain they knew where I'd be. They came down to the front desk to watch me sign the register.

I was moved to make way for an ex-head of state who, it later developed, had stolen millions from his nation. And in his company were several Soviet agents specializing in sabotaging the U. S.

Finally when I did get around to examining the United Arab Republic's Federation of Labor I found it led by freightened men, dominated by the secret police, and cruelly anti- Semitic.

So it is refreshing to sit here in Israel, in a community where a man gets an even break regardless of what his church is -- Moslem, Coptic Christian (badly treated by President Nasser) or Eastern Monophysite.

Here and elsewhere in Israel, Arabs and Jews work alongside each other. They receive equal pay for equal work.

Some 20 years ago, 80 per cent of the Arabs were farm workers. Today the agricultural Arabs total less than 30 per cent. Many of them are in construction work where they are considered some of the best qualified.

Specifically, the Employment Service Law says that an employment office "shall not discriminate against a person on account of his age, sex, religion, ethnic group, country or origin, views or party affiliation and a person requiring an employe shall not refuse to engage a person for work on account of any of these factors."

And this is practised in this Biblical land though on all borders Arab nations threaten a Holy War.

And as American - educated Mrs. Golda Meir, the gracious lady who, until she announced her resignation July 8, was the actual leader (general secretary) of the Israel Labor Party, tells a visitor:

"Armies in a so-called holy war, don't take prisoners, be they soldier or civilian, man, woman or child."

Furthermore, over in East Jerusalem, where the Arab workers total 55,000, it would have been simple for a conquering Israeli army to conscript them for manual labor. But this is a civilized citizens' army, made up of kids who want to go back to their jobs and the street cafes of Dizengoff Street.

There was no indenture in East Jerusalem or west of the Jordan (which really never belonged rightfully to Jordan in the first place as the record of 1948 will show).

Histadrut simply opened a regional office in East Jerusalem and began organizing and servicing the Arabs. The pay scales of the "conquered" workers zoomed to a civilized standard.

Thus it's a new world for the Arabs of an ancient world. Thus the New Communist Party, led by and for Arabs, mostly influential in Nazareth, makes little impact though it is free to agitate.

Thus the Soviets' 52½ hours of Arabic broadcasts each week, virtualently anti- Israel, glut the airwaves, but have no impact on Israeli citizens, Jew and Arab alike.

In village after village such as Taiyiba, men of different faiths can live and work together in peace.

Mrs. John Thurston Braddock

Shirley Ruth Catlett Says Vows With John T. Braddock

Shirley Ruth Catlett of Scotts Valley, Calif., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest LaFayette Catlett, 1526 East Gladys, married John Thurston Braddock of Santa Cruz, Calif., at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The Rev. T. A. McDonough officiated at the double ring ceremony at the First Assembly of God church.

Braddock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Braddock of Lomita, Calif.

The church was decorated with baskets of American Beauty roses, an arch candelabra, two spiral candelabra and a three branched candelabra, entwined with ivy. Candelabra entwined with ivy on each side of the aisles, a kneeling bench and communion table completed appointments.

Organist Jeanetta McDonough of Sikeston accompanied Mrs. Viva Sexton of Morehouse who sang "Whither Tou Goest" and Larry Davis of Jackson, who sang "Submission."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown made of imported Chantilly lace over taffeta. The close - fitted sleeveless bodice was overlaid with lace and sprinkled with tiny seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The controlled skirt was floor length and fell in cascades of scalloped ruffled lace.

A brief Eton lace jacket was worn over the bodice, that featured a scalloped scoop neckline and elbow - length sleeves. A full chapel train was attached to the back of the jacket. Scallops encircled the jacket, sleeves and train.

Her headdress was a cap made of sprays of lily of the valley backed with a Dior bow made of peau de soie centered with hand cut crystal stamen. Loops entwined with pearls ending with pearl drops accented the front of the cap. A floor - length veil was attached.

She wore pearls given to her by the groom, a penny in her shoe that was worn by an aunt at her wedding 24 years ago, hand crocheted gloves and carried a hand crocheted handkerchief given her by her grandmother.

The bride carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and lily of the valley and streamers atop a white Bible given her by a friend. She also carried a loose white rose which she presented to her mother with a kiss.

The bride's attendants were Miss Frances Catlett of Sikeston, her sister, maid of honor; Miss Joyce Brown, Mrs. Sharon Savage, both of Sikeston, Mrs. Thelma Roberts of Rockford, Ill., Miss Remona Shandy of Bakersfield, Calif., and Miss Linda Moore of Memphis, the bride's cousin.

The candlelighters were Miss Donna Brown, Miss Judy Green, Miss Marshall Standridge, all of Sikeston, and Miss Judith DeLine of Charleston.

The attendants wore semi - fitted floor - length A-line dresses styled with jewel necklines and short sleeves. Miss Catlett and Miss Brown wore gowns of candy pink imported silk shantung. The other women wore shocking pink imported silk shantung gowns. They wore matching full-length illusion veils and carried arm bouquets of long - stemmed American Beauty roses, fern, baby's breath and moss green ribbons.

The candlelighters wore floor - length gowns of shocking pink imported silk shantung, full-length veils of shocking pink and candy pink and wrist corsages of American Beauty roses.

Flower girls Teresa Bixler of Canalou and Debbie Bohannon of Pana, Ill., wore floor-length dresses of imported silk shantung of candy pink. They wore full-length veils of shocking pink and candy pink and carried white lace baskets filled with red sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

Attending the groom was Wayne Catlett of St. Louis, brother of the bride, as best man; Dale Brown, Don Savage, both of Sikeston, Gary Bixler of Canalou, Dale Sexton of Morehouse, Gary Kesler of Sikeston and Dale Sullivan of Fort Campbell, Ky., cousin of the bride.

Randy Green of Sikeston was ring bearer.

During a candlelighting ceremony, three candles were used. The outside candles were lighted representing the couple's lives before marriage. They used those candles to light the center candle representing their new life together.

During a communion service, the couple drank from a silver goblet.

Mrs. Catlett wore a light pink linen dress with a rolled collar accented with pearls and a jacket. She wore a matching hat, white gloves and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. Judy Aaron of Fresno, Calif., the groom's sister, wore a white sheath dress accented with kelly green trim, matching coat, white accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

RECEPTION

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. A single round table draped in white held a five tiered wedding cake. On the second layer from the top were 12 streamers of satin ribbon. On one end of each ribbon a charm had been placed in the frosting of the cake. Twelve girls took a ribbon and when given a signal from the bride, they pulled the streamers. The one who had a wedding ring on the other end of the ribbon is next to be married, according to Spanish tradition. This was done instead of the bride throwing her bouquet.

The serving table held a silver punch bowl and a centerpiece of red sweetheart roses.

The reception room was decorated like a spring garden using a archway with green ivy, white wrought iron furniture and red roses.

Miss Jean Frala of Sikeston was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. John N. Moore of Memphis, the bride's aunt, attended the gift table.

Serving were Mrs. Elsie Brown, Mrs. Mozella Higgs and Mrs. Geraldine Standridge, all of Sikeston.

The couple left on a wedding trip. For travel, the new Mrs. Braddock wore an A-line sleeveless dress of shocking pink imported silk shantung. She wore a box jacket, matching accessories and a corsage of white roses.

The couple will be home after Aug. 4 at 6462 Old Vine Hill Rd., Scotts Valley, Calif. The bride is a hair stylist and college student. Her husband, a college student, is preparing for the ministry.

I have found across this great district of 21 counties, 13,300 square miles and 424,000 people, a vital concern among our voters about the sending of lawyers and businessmen to Jefferson City and Washington as public servants, only to have them enrich their personal fortunes at the expense of the public good. Petitbon Calls It Quits, McCormick Returns to Grid

By The Associated Press

Richie Petitbon, a one-time all-pro defensive back, suddenly retired. And John McCormick, a one-time starting quarterback in the American Football League, just as suddenly unretired.

"I guess I just got the itch," said McCormick, Denver's No. 1 signal-caller in 1965 and 1966. He retired at the end of the 1966 season to go into the insurance business.

"I miss football and I'll be glad to get back," said the 31year-old vetran, who joined the Broncos in 1963 after a year with Minnesota as a backup quarterback and punter. "I just hope I can be of help."

Petitbon, who went to the Chicago Bears from Tulane in 1959, said Thursday he decided to quit the game and devote full time to his insurance and real estate business in New Orleans.

"Due to increased business pressure," he wrote the Bears, "I will be unable to leave New Orleans this season. It was probably the hardest decision I've ever made, but I must look to the future. I felt the time had come to decide where I wanted to make my home and raise my children."

Petitbon was not the only one to retire. Three Minnesota Viking veterans announced their retirement. Linebackers Don Hansen and Paul Faust and defensive end Arnold Simkus said they have quit football because of other job opportunities. They did not elaborate.

In Green Bay, the champion Packers had their first scrimmage, with the defense crushing the offense.

Coach Phil Bengtson said the poor show by the offense was expected for two reasons, the offense had more new faces and it was primarily a running game with the defense knowing what to expect.

In Fullerton, Calif., two rookie quarterbacks for the Dallas Cowboys were outstanding in a controlled scrimmage with Los Angeles Rams rookies. The Dallas rookies were on offense, the Rams on defense.

Roger Staubach, who won't be discharged from the Navy until next year, and Bill Creedon combined to complete 19 of 28 passes for 293 yards and three touchdowns.

Heat exhaustion plagued the Washington Redskins at Carlisle, Pa., where the temperature hit 98. Flanker Jerry Smith and tackle Joe Rutgens, stricken Wednesday when the temperature went to 100, were released from the hospital but kept on the sidelines.

Running back Steve Thurlow was added to the hospital list Thursday. Rookie tackle Dennis Crane underwent treatment but was not hospitalized.

Greg Brezina, last of the Atlanta Falcons holdouts, came to terms in Johnson City, Tenn. Terms of the contract were not announced.

New york Jet quarterback Mike Taliaferro, who has spent most of his four seasons playing behind Joe Namath, asked to be traded.

"I want to go somewhere I'll have a chance to play," he said.

PITCHING - Juan Marichal, Giants, hurled a four - hitter for his 17th victory as San Francisco blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0.

BATTING - Tommie Aaron, Braves, drove in four runs including a tie - breaking bases - loaded triple as Atlanta beat Houston 7-1.

Giants-Braves To Chop Game Off Card Lead

By The Associated Press

Juan Marichal has finally caught up to the St. Louis Cardinals. If the rest of the San Francisco Giants can't say the same come Sept. 29 they'll be playing for a new manager next spring.

Just before Marichal blanked the Cards 3-0 Thursday night and evened his lifetime record against them at 15-15, Herman Franks confirmed reports that he would retire as manager of the Giants if they don't win the National League pennant.

Owner Horace Stoneham shouldn't have long to wait before applications start pouring in since the Giants still are in fourth place, 13 games behind St. Louis, after ending the Cards' winning streak at six games.

Elsewhere, Atlanta walloped Houston 7-1 and the New York Mets downed Pittsburgh 3-0. Los Angeles was rained out at Cincinnati and the Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

In the American League, Detroit topped Oakland 3-1, the Chicago White Sox nipped Baltimore 2 - 1, Minnesota defeated Boston 7 - 2 and the New York Yankees turned back Washington 4-1.

"Four years is enough," Franks said. "Change is good for everybody. I just made the statement that if we douldn't win the pennant this year, then I would resign. It's that simple."

Franks qualified the announcement by adding that "more than likely" he would return if the Giants did pull out a pennant. He said he mentioned his views to Stoneham about a month ago, but added, "We won't talk about it until after the season."

Marichal, the NL's top winner, ran his record to 17-4 with a four-hitter and even drove in a run with a second-inning single. He retired 17 batters in order over one stretch until Lou Brock singled to open the ningh.

The Giants scored twice off Steve Carlton in the second on singles by Willie Mays, Jim Hart, Hal Lanier and Marichal. They added a run in the eighth when Mays walked, stole second and scored on a single by Jesus Alou.

The Cardinals saw their league lead chopped to nine games when second-place Atlanta beat Houston behind the hitting of Tommie Aaron and Pat Jarvis' two-hit pitching.

Aaron broke a 1-1 tie with a bases-loaded triple in the third inning off Dave Giusti and knocked in another run with a single in the eighth. Not to be outdone, big brother Hank singled home a run in the ninth.

Jarvis, 10-6, has never lost to the Astros and beat them for the fifth time. He allowed singles by Hector Torres in the first and Doug Rader in the seventhm

Seaver tied a club record with his fourth shutout of the season as the Mets hopped back over Los Angeles and Pittsburgh into seventh place. Al Jackson did it in 1962, Carl Willey in 1963 and Jerry Koosman has already done it this year.

The Mets nicked Al McBean for all their runs in the sixth inning on Bud Harrelson's single, a walk, Art Shamsky's bunt hit, a force play and singles by Jerry Grote and Phil Linz.

Wilt Tells His Story

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, gone from the Philadelphia basketball scene, took time out Thursday to polish his image.

The 7-foot-1 center, in a telephone interview from New York, said he wanted to give his version of why he was traded to the Los Angeles Lakers in one of the biggest deals in the history of the National Basketball Association.

Chamberlain said the Philadelphia 76ers' side of the story is "slightly tainted."

"I understand it made me look ungrateful," Ghamberlain said. "My side of the story is deserving to be heard."

Chamberlain subsequently claimed:

—The 76ers asked for his suggestion on a replacement for resigned Coach Alex Hannum and later offered him the job as player-coach.

—He didn't price himself out and force the 76ers to trade him because he never asked for a specific figure.

—Owner Irv Kosloff's proposal for a contract came out to less money than Chamberlain made last year.

—Kosloff led him to believe he didn't want to negotiate. Chamberlain also agreed with the theory that Kosloff "gave up" after two meetings during a 19day period before the 76ers dealt Chamberlain to the Lakers for Archie Clark, Darrall Imhoff and Jerry Chambers.

The 76ers had said Chamberlain, the game's greatest offensive player, was dealt because he asked for too much in contract negotiations. The superstar was said to have wanted a three-year million dollar contract, plus part-ownership of the team.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes

With the season barely past the midway point, at least 19 drivers have been killed in world motor racing this year despite the most effective safety program the sport has ever known.

If the present trend continues, the toll very well could surpass 1967, which the Europeans call the "black year" in auto racing. Twenty six drivers lost their lives on the continent and in Britain last year, compared with only six in the United States.

John McConnell, a kicker from Southeast Missouri State of Cape Girardeau was one of several players cut from the Los Angeles Rams' football squad Thursday.

Robert Antulov, defenseive end, Nebraska, and Barry Orms, defensive bac, St. Louis, were also cut.

The New York Mets move into St. Louis tonight for the first game in a weekend series. Larry Jaster, 7-4, will start for the Cardinals and Al Jackson, 2-4, for the Mets.

Wade Hampton of Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo., was cut from the Dallas Cowboy National Football League squad Monday.

Besides Hampton, three other free agents were dropped, including James Benk of Cincinati.

Only four days remain before the Jaycee bus pulls out for St. Louis and the World Series bound Cardinals game with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Seats remain available for the trip.

Sikeston's Stars will not play until Thursday.

The state winner will advance into the regional at Wellington, Kan., Aug. 8-11.

Owens Plays Key Role In 2-1 Potlatch Win

Potlatch eked out another one - run baseball victory over Paducah, Ky., Legion last night after taking a 9 to 8 win earlier on the other side of the Mississippi river, winning 2-1 last night at VFW stadium.

A far cry from the pair's early meeting in which both teams hammered the ball and used five pitchers among them, last night's match ended in the ninth inning after both teams went through six innings being tied 1-1.

Potlatch got a run across in the second inning with two out. Gary Owens came around on Rick Wilson's single after reaching base on a fielders' choice.

Paducah wasted little time in knotting the score with a third inning tally on four errors.

Both teams went scoreless until the bottom half of the ninth when Wayne Limbaugh scurried home after singling and, on a sacrifice by Owens advanced to third on Mike Garner's double.

Seven hits were amessed in all with the winners banging out four of the safeties.

A budget of $46,125,000 for maintenance and traffic control of Missouri's state highway system during the 1969 fiscal year was approved recently by the Missouri State Highway Commission.

In the past the Maintenance and Traffic Division budget has been approved on a calendar year basis. It was changed to a fiscal year policy to conform with other Department operations.

The budget covers maintenance and traffic control work on the state's 32,744 miles of highways. It sets up $39,313,948 for routine maintenance work, material purchases, repair and supervision.

Snow removal and ice control operations is the second largest budget item. A total of $4,000,000 for such work is set up during the period.

The Department allocated $1,360,000 for bridge maintenance.

Another $356,000 apportionment is set up for constructing new and replacing inadequate maintenance buildings and the purchase of maintenance building sites throughout the state.

The Commission authorized an expenditure of $310,000 for radio communications. This is the fifth year in which money has been alloted to establish a state-wide radio communications.

A total of $180,000 will be used for special and experimental highway signing, marking and traffic control during the fiscal period.

Another $94,416 is for operating the headquarters office of the Division of Maintenance and traffic which includes the bridge maintenance section and the permit section.

An emergency fund of $510,636 also was approved. This money is for maintaining new mileage opened to traffic during the ensuing 12-month period, and for repairing roads and bridges damaged by floods and other catastrophes.

JFK Portrait Fabric Rerouted Before Arriving From India

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — Five years ago, P. S. Mani of Bombay, India, designed a fabric with the portrait of the late President John F. Kennedy woven into it.

Before Mani, then a textile engineering student, could complete arrangements to have a sample of the cloth presented to Kennedy, the President was assassinated.

Mani's brother, P. S. Iyer intended to present the cloth swatch to Sen. Robert F. Kennedy when he journeyed to this country to attend the University of Missouri at Rolla. But Iyer learned when he landed in New York June 8 that Robert Kennedy also had been assassinated.

Now Iyer wants to see the swatch make its way to the surviving Kennedy brother, Sen. Edward Kennedy. He said he has contacted the senator and the Indian Embassy in Washington to make arrangements.

Beautify Scarred Piano With an Antique Finish

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Tell Mr. and Mrs. M. to antique their old scarred piano. My brother did this and his looks beautiful. Sand or use paint remover to clear it of wax and polish. Follow the directions on one of the kits for antiquing furniture. These come in a variety of colors.—MRS. C. A. H.

DEAR POLLY—I am a piano technician, better known as a piano tuner and repair man, and I want to advise Mr. and Mrs. M. on refinishing their piano. The satisfying results will be well-worth the hard work. Remove the top of an upright. There are pins at the back where the hinges are. Remove the top frame where the music rests and the shelf and fall board. This will expose the keys, number them with a pencil and remove so they can be put back in the proper order. The keys are removed so they will not be damaged with the paint remover or the new finish. Take the piano apart as much as possible and after it is stripped, vacuum and blow all the dirt out.

Put newspapers on the floor all around the piano for protection. Use a good varnish remover and then scrape off the old finish with a dull blade. Remove all varnish with paint thinner and make a smooth finish. Wipe with a cloth. Sand any rough spots with sandpaper wrapped around a brick. Stain wood to the desired color, apply a good brand of varnish or paint if you prefer.—PAUL

DEAR READERS—Several readers wrote to say they had been advised by piano tuners and repair men NOT to paint a piano as that would ruin the tone. I was advised by a technician at one of the world's greatest piano factories that painting DOES NOT affect the sound but that the sound board and interior should never be painted. Lacquer is most often used as a professional finish. Be sure to remove all hinges so they can be polished with steel wool and lacquered, and the finished job, with varnish or paint, will not look as if done by loving hands at home.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Can anyone tell me how to remove a piece of bubble gum the size of a half dollar that is really imbedded in my little girl's knitted dress?—VIRGINIA

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is about bubble gum on clothes. Instead of rubbing with an ice cube I put the dress, blouse or whatever in the freezer and let it freeze. (Polly's note—Protect with a plastic cleaner's bag.) After it is frozen the gum can be picked right off. If some bits are left I apply a little household cleaner, throw in the wash and it all comes off.—MRS. H. B.

DEAR POLLY—To "unshrink" sweaters I rinsed them in cool water and a strong solution of fabric softener.—MARIE

Agreement Reached on Funeral Advertising

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Justice Department says the National Funeral Directors' Association has agreed with its position that advertising of the price of funerals ought to be permitted.

The department alleged in an antitrust suit filed last year that the association inhibited price competition by prohibiting its members from advertising their prices.

In a proposed consent judgment announced Wednesday, the association would be prohibited from limiting advertising of rates and would be required to offer to readmit any funeral director expelled for violating its rule.

The judgment is expected to become final in 30 days.

is this the moment for your 2nd Début?

It is, if you see other women whispering behind your back and you just know they're discussing your age. It is, if you are looking even a tiny bit older than your husband. It is, if your husband no longer brings you flowers as frequently as he used to. Then, this IS the moment for you to discover the wonders that 2nd Debut is capable of performing on skin of most any age past 30.

CEF is a principal active ingredient of 2nd Debut. CEF is the synthetic counterpart of a natural material present in normal human skin. In nature, until age 30 or thereabouts, this CEF is present in sufficient strength to keep the skin's water-moisture level up, to prevent age lines from appearing prematurely. CEF, as employed in 2nd Debut is made available in two specially prepared strengths for twice daily topical application to facial skin of age 30 or older. 2nd Debut (with CEF 600) contains enough concentration of CEF for the woman whose age is hovering around 40. Its price is $3 for 4 ounces. 2nd Debut with CEF 1200, double potency, is especially prepared for the skin of age 50, or older. However 2nd Debut (with CEF 1200) is used with great success and satisfaction by many younger grand dames who enjoy indulging their personal impatience, or when their time is of the essence. The price is $5 for 4 ounces. Regardless of circumstances, however, when the objective is a smoother, less linefull, fresher, more youthful-appearing facial skin, 2nd Debut is now a favorite most everywhere.

Other 2nd Debut preparations

Olivier Says He Enjoys Acting Little

LONDON (AP) — Sir Laurence Olivier sipped a cup of coffee, shook his head and said: "I've never much enjoyed acting."

Olivier, at 61 one of the world's greatest actors, went on wryly: "It has it's attractions, but there are times when acting seems hardly the occupation for an adult.

"I was looking at an old diary the other day of the time when I was playing Shakespeare with my late wife (Vivien Leigh).

"After one matinee I found written there, 'Enjoyed performance this afternoon.' It's the only time that ever happened."

Olivier, looking fit and spry, said he has fully recovered from surgery earlier this for cancer of the prostate gland.

"I didn't believe it when they told me I had cancer, and I didn't believe it when they said it was all right," Olivier said in an interview.

"When something like this suddenly happens it is like a knock on the head. Oddly e way.

"Because this kind of experience makes you count your blessings, makes you take a lot less for granted. It has changed my values a lot.

"You expect things to come at you after 60. But it doesn't worry me any more."

Olivier has worked on no less than four films so far this year. He went to Rome to make "The Shoes of the Fishermen" with Anthony Quinn, had roles in "Oh, What a Lovely War" and "The Battle of Britain" and is now making "The Dance of Death," a Paramount release, at Twickenham studios near London.

In his latest role, Olivier plays the part of a cynical, disillusioned captain in the Swedish army around 1900 who fights a running love-hate battle with his wife.

People on the film set showed open admiration for the way Olivier handled the difficult part, but the actor admitted he sometimes has to bottle up his feelings and let them go at home.

"I'm afraid my children and marvellous wife get it in the neck" he smiled.

Olivier has lived for the last seven years at Brighton, a brash and breezy seaside resort 50 miles south of London, with his third wife, actress Joan Plowright, 39. They have a son and two daughters.

"I usually make the journey up to London by train," Olivier said. "It's marvellous—an hour's ride each way without the telephone. I can read my scripts and learn my parts."

Life Insurance Protection in Missouri Rises

NEW YORK - Missouri families ended 1967 with a record $25,693,000,000 of life insurance in force, after increasing their protection by $2,327,000,000 during the year, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

Missouri's overall life insurance protection rose 10 per cent last year, compared with 9.7 per cent for the nation as a whole.

Among the 50 states Missouri ranked 12th in total life insurance in force, and 13th in estimated population. While population is an important factor in life insurance trends, total protection throughout the United States has been rising faster than population.

Blake T. Newton, Jr., president of the Institute, noted that last year's increase in life insurance reflected the continued strength of the economy, the growing numbers of young people getting married and starting amilies, as well as greater public awareness of the need for life insurance and its vital role in building financial security for families.

Missouri families' biggest 1967 dollar gain was in group life insurance protection, although their individual protection under ordinary policies also rose substantially.

They had $13,886,000,000 of ordinary life insurance in force at year-end, an increase of $1,116,000,000 or 8.7 per cent over 1966. Their group life insurance climbed to $9,243,000,000, and increase of $1,163,000,000 or 14.4 per cent. They also had $2,564,000,000 of industrial and credit life insurance.

Missouri families owned 8,550,000 life insurance policies at the end of 1967, and increase of 55,000 during the year. The total included 3,026,000 ordinary policies and 1,760,000 group certificates.

Our Kind Of Storm

John Gould
In The Christian
Science Monitor
Lisbon Falls, Maine

The other evening about Batman time my barn door swung back on its hinges and went flap, and then crunch, and I wondered how the TV weatherman would deal with this. Well, every day here we can turn on the set and see this fellow standing up in front of a big map, and he points at Nebraska and says a low front is working up like this, and then he points to Oregon and says it is raining all over. We get the broad general meteorological situation as prelude to our local weather. So, as we try to imagine a snowstorm in Dakota, or a protracted dry spell in the Panhandle, how does the distant listener get the picture of a barn door coming apart up in Maine?

What that means, is that we were having a no'theaster, is what it means. About the time an enthusiastic breeze worked itself up into a going gale it made the happy discovery that I had neglected to fasten a hasp, and it took advantage of said neglect. And the no'theaster is our kind of storm - a wild New England bout with the offshore ingredients - a two - three day disturbance that sweeps from beyond the Northumberland Straits and Quoddy, lashing the Maritime Provinces and New England before it begins to spend itself in lesser places beyond. It rains and blows, and tides run higher even in our region of higher tides, and lobstermen always lose some pots and gear and farmers always lose a door or such. It is the storm that brings bo'ts to snug harbor, and lays the forest giant for a "blowdown."

It is also the storm that Boston radio announcers call a nor-easter - thus tossing off their idea of the vernacular to prove they are good Yankees and keyed to the region. The compass points, when blatted from a poop in the days of sail, took on their Down - East variations for reasons of enunciation and acoustics. When you yelled a command to men straddling the yards in a howling wind you didn't say anything they could possibly misunderstand. And if you meant northeast, you said no'theast. Knowth-east; the th is the th of thing, not them.

It is true that some of the old ways are gone, and both 'longshore and on the farm people have let their weather senses rust and dull. A generation ago newspaper reports of things like Fourth of July celebrations would start off, "The day dawned bright and clear, with wind SSW . . ." But weather reports have taken the place of every - man - his - own prognosticator, and you don't have to rise and step out to see if this is the third morning with no dew, or if the dog is eating grass, or if the popple leaves are turned, or if smoke rises straight up, or if there are mare's tails and mackeral sky.

A no'theast storm makes up in the sowwest, and clears the same way. A southerly comes in from the south, advancing as it comes, and generally spends itself in a few hours. Unless we get the tail of a hurricane it is usually a pleasant, refreshing and warm rain, sometimes vigorous but very different from a no'theaster. When a no'theaster makes up the pattern is often leisurely and the portents and ministrations plain and ample. Now that we have radio we can hear that it is raining in New York, and up here in Maine we have been seeing the dog eating grass and wy could have told you so. Tomorrow it will rain in Maine, and until New York is clear again we can expect it to continue.

Often we get one of these fired - red sunrises as a starter, but sometimes a leaden sky sets in during the late afternoon, so we don't see the sunset. The time of the tide has something to do with things. The wind tee-ters, and usually it is a light wind, until it gets ready, and then it backs to east, and finally into full northeast. The vast surge that turns the ocean on itself has an effect, too, on the winds. Miles inland, even if people no longer notice it and know what it means, there will come a faint rustle of wind on the calmest, hottest day, and leaves will whisper on the trees and curtains move at open windows - the tide has turned. So, when a no'theaster is making up, every vane on fishhouse and woodshed will turn at the slack of the tide - sometimes high - water and sometimes low- water - and the storm is on its way.

The radio is telling us that New York has rain, and gale warnings are up from Eastport to Block Island. Fishermen trim their boats, and farmers hasp their doors - usually. There comes first a mist, then a drizzle, then light rain, and as the wind picks up, the full downpour. Old - timers used to invent stories about how hard the rain came. One man had knocked the ends out of a barrel, so he could sink it in a spring, and it lay in the dooryard with the bunghole up. It rained so hard through the bunghole that the water couldn't run out of the ends of the barrel that fast. And so on. In the winter, if it is very cold, the no'theaster buries us in snow, and the papers out West cry, "East Blanketed By Blizzard."

All of which is intended to help the rest of the country understand their TV weather reports. I'm sure our no'theaster is the kind of sea storm that other sections simply can't have.

PROUD OF PURE WILDNESS

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — West Kentucky's Land Between the Lakes Recreation Area boasts "the only remaining flock of true wild turkeys in the United States," claims Harry Towles of the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Resources Department.

These birds are direct descendents of the turkeys that were around at the time of the Pilgrims, he says.

All other so-called wild turkeys, while sharing a common ancestry with their West Kentucky cousins, Towles asserts, have crossed blood-lines with domesticated birds since the days of the Pilgrims.

Children Gain Learning Experience In Head Start Program at Dexter

DEXTER Forty-one children from the Dexter R-11 school district are attending the Head Start program at the Christian Church this summer.

The program, financed by the Office of Economic Opportunity and directed by the University of Missouri, started June 11 and will continue through next Friday.

The youngsters, ages 4 and 5, attend school five days a week from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. For classroom participation they are divided into two groups with each group having a certified teacher and two teacher aides.

The children, most of whom are from families with incomes below the OEO poverty level, are instructed in discipline and various types of art work and participate in group singing and supervised outdoor activity.

They also go on field trips and recently toured the Pepsi Cola Bottling Company at Malden.

At the start of the program each child receives a complete physical examination by a physician. The checkup includes eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs, heart, blood pressure, abdomen, hernia, urinalysis, tuberculin test and hematocrit to determine anemia.

The children are immunized against tetanus, diptheria, pertussis (whooping cough), measles and smallpox. Each child receives a dental examination and dental work, if needed. If a child has a physical abnormality, he is referred to a specialist for corrective treatment.

All medical treatment is done without cost to the child's parents.

Shortly after arriving at school in the morning, the child is served a snack, usually consisting of milk or juice, raisins, vegetable sticks, peanut butter, cheese and crackers or some combination to satisfy the continous appetite of youth.

For the noonday meal the child is served a balanced meal prepared by two cooks under the supervision of a state approved qualified dietician. As well as receiving a balanced diet, the children are constantly being introduced to new foods to learn to like; but at no time are they forced to eat foods which they do not like.

One of the most important aspects of Head Start is that it prepares children for the classroom situation and exposes them to other children. Goals include improving the child's ability to socialize with others and determining and correcting any physical defect which the child might have.

The Christian Church is furnishing the building rent-free. The Head Start program pays the utilities.

Officials at the Head Start program here have hopes that the present eight-week program will be continued with a year-around Head Start program in the fall.

A physical fitness test can be fun when it includes skipping rope, as Karen Ezell, 5, of Dexter demonstrates. One phase of the Head Start program is to test the child's physical fitness. Turning the rope for Karen are Ann Day, left, Head Start teacher, and Leo Lasater, teacher aide.

Why Not More Women in the Dental Profession?

By JANET SAGEN
Fargo (N.D.) Forum

FARGO (AP) — When Dr. Muriel Wicks first set up dental practice in Elgin, N.D., a man appeared at her door and looked in. She walked over to him and asked if she could help him. "No, I just came to see what a woman dentist looked like," he said.

This was right after World War II and Dr. Wicks was the only woman dentist in North Dakota. Today she is one of two, and she has her practice in Valley City. The other is Helen Koehmstedt, Cando, who has been a dentist since 1966.

Dr. Wicks has been appointed to the State Board of Dental Examiners, an appointment made by Gov. William L. Guy on recommendations of the North Dakota Dental Association. She is the first woman ever appointed to this board.

Muriel Wicks grew up in the southwestern United States. Her father was a forest ranger, and the family moved about quite often. She received a scholarship to the University of Arizona and was planning on becoming a registered nurse. Then a doctor acquaintance spoke to her.

OPEN WIDE... Dr. Muriel Wicks finds boring not the least bit boring as she prepares to clean out a cavity on male patient as lady watches.

"Look," he said, "You're capable of more than this. Why don't you go into medicine or dentistry? I think it's something you would enjoy."

"I took a pre-dental course and got my bachelor's degree," said Dr. Wicks. "I planned to go right on to school, but I got married instead and had two daughters." While her husband, Ed, was in the service during the war, Mrs. Wicks went back to school and got her DDS. She received it from Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., where the family was living at the time.

What does Dr. Wicks enjoy about her work? She can meet many kinds of people. She thinks it utilizes a woman's interest in things artistic. "One tries to find the right color and arrangement of teeth and makes adjustments so the patients look their best," she commented.

"I like to work with my hands, and it is a good profession for doing this," she said. "Also, we have better and better things to work with. The patient no longer has to sit for hours in the chair. He is in and out in no time." Dr. Wicks proved this as she filled a patient's tooth within 15 minutes.

She admitted that dentists must be on their feet a lot, but she solved this by installing a stool that connects to her dental chair that she sits on much of the time while working on a patient.

Dr. Wicks said she asks parents to first bring in their children when they are about 3-years-old. Then they gradually get used to her office and the dental equipment and don't develop a fear of the drills and needles.

"Men are a little more apprehensive than women about dentists," said Dr. Wicks. "They have a tendency to wait until the last minute."

She recalled a college boy who telephoned her a little before 3 one morning. "Oh, did I get you out of bed?" he asked. "I knew he was frightened and quite desperate," she said, "so I extracted his tooth at 3 a.m. while he still had the courage to go through with it."

Dr. Wicks said she has not discovered any different reactions to her being a dentist, except from one man a few months ago. He walked in and wanted a tooth extracted. When he realized Dr. Wicks was a woman, he started backing out the door, saying his tooth really wasn't causing him much pain.

"But usually no one seems to notice. They think of me as a dentist," said Dr. Wicks.

Dr. Wicks said she thought dentistry an excellent profession for women to enter. "It gives them a chance to use their hands and to develop their understanding of people."

When she graduated from Emory University in Atlanta, she was the only woman out of a class of 98. She said there does not seem to be a trend toward more women dentists.

"In Europe, there are numerous female dentists," she said. "Partly because they encourage the women and partly because these countries have lost so many men in the wars."

It is reported that of the 89,000 practicing dentists in the United States, women make up only one per cent. But in certain countries in Europe, Asia and South America, they constitute about 80 per cent of the profession.

Dr. Wicks smiled to herself. "You know, there are many humorous incidents that happen in a dentist's office. Such as the mother who was sure her child was growing another tooth until she discovered the child had a small wad of Kleenex in her mouth. But I'll still never forget that man who first came to my office just to stare at me, because he wanted to see what a woman dentist looked like."

A New Slant on Beauty

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It isn't enough to be thin today in order to be chic. The youthquake is upon us and today's Beautiful People, jet-setters and just plain "with it" women are slim, PLUS lithe, active and radiant. They move; they sparkle; they participate.

They get their firm, trim bodies that spell youthfulness at any age through sensible eating habits, sufficient rest and regular exercise. Some make regular visits to gyms and health resorts. But we don't all have the time or money for this.

The newest trend, according to the Family Fitness Council, is in-home figure and vitality programs. Thousands of women are choosing the modern way to fitness through the use of scientfically designed home exercise equipment such as beauty boards, belt massagers, exercise bicycles and joggers.

"The current boom in home figure control programs owes much to the psychological as well as the physical inducement" said Herbert C. Johnson Jr., president of the council.

"The mere presence of such equipment in the home is a daily invitation to sustain a physical fitness program."

What is it that women from 20 to 60 favor for keeping their figures lithe and their outlooks young?

● Stationary exercise bicycles which give the benefits of cycling without going anywhere are highly popular.

● Slant boards, or beauty boards as they are sometimes called, are excellent exercise boards, too. Touching the toes when the feet are elevated is an even more beneficial exercise than when done flat on the floor.

● Joggers, treadmill - type devices are gaining great popularity. They allow you to run, trot and walk for miles without leaving the house in a sweat suit, subject to neighbors' stares.

"The interesting thing is that while women are the major purchasers of home exercise equipment," said Johnson, "we find that they are often buying it for the use of the whole family—to aid their husbands' health and physique, to stimulate and shape up their teen-age children."

So it seems that the whole family is on a shape-up, live-up program. And who can quarrel with that?

IT'S MIND OVER MATTER, as this figure-conscious young woman devotes 15 minutes daily to her home exercise program. She's using a triple-action bicycle for overall slimming and firming. Family Fitness Council notes that regular exercise also helps psychologically in sticking to a diet. One reinforces the other. (Sears)

Farm Worker Breaks Arm in Accident

50 years ago
July 19, 1918

Last Thursday while working on George Stone's farm near Matthews Ernest Mills, son of J. M. Mills of Matthews, got his jumper sleeve caught by the revolving crank shaft of a tractor and his arm was wound around the shaft and the bones were broken into a number of short pieces. The arm was put in a plaster of paris case and it is hoped that the member can be saved, although the use of the army may be impaired.

While trying to crank a car on South New Madrid street last Saturday, Lowell Greer got both bones in his right arm broken just above the wrist.

Mrs. L. D. Baker sustained a broken arm last Friday while trying to wring off a chicken's head. She lost her balance and fell, breaking the arm below the elbow.

The McMullin school district is to have a new brick school building real soon. The bonds to the amount of $4,000 voted for that purpose, were registered with and approved by State Auditor George E. Hackman, Tuesday, and they were sold to C. F. McMullin, Wednesday, at the face value. The building will be located on the lot just west of Marion Jewell's store in McMullin and will certainly be one of which all the citizens of the district should be very proud.

Welsh was accepted at a special meeting of the city council yesterday afternoon for the Sikeston General Hospital building, 101 West Gladys, which will be abandoned by the city after the Delta Community Hospital opens. Jaycees Form Prison Chapter

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Jefftown Jaycees Chapter of the Missouri Junior Chamber of Commerce will be formally chartered inside the high stone walls of Missouri's Penitentiary Sunday.

There will be 38 members of the new group, all inmates of the prison.

The new chapter will be host to the Jefferson City Jaycees and their wives in becoming what is believed to be the first institutional chapter of a Junior Chamber of Commerce in the state.

First project of the new organization will be a novelty billy club on which will be burned the letters of "MSP" for Missouri State Prison.

The penitentiary has a novelty shop where inmate artists and craftsmen are allowed to offer paintings, leatherwork, metal craft products and novelties for sale to visitors.

Pier Bids to Open Building Of Bridge

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Bids for $5.6 million of pier work for the Caruthersville bridge will be accepted Nov. 22.

This will be the first phase of construction on the bridge which has been in the hoping and planning stages for many years.

All pier construction is programmed for 1968-69 and work on steel spans, superstructure, deck and concrete approach spans are scheduled for 1969-70. Costs to the state of Missouri will be about 8.4 million dollars for the 1968-69 work and 2.6 million dollars for the initial pier construction.

Ten miles of roadway will be built on the Missouri side of the bridge to connect the bridge with I-55. Estimated cost of this four lane divided highway is $8,822,000. Contracts will be let on this road construction after bids for the bridge work have been let.

Marvin J. Snider, Chief Engineer for the Missouri Highway Department, said the roadway contracts will be let so that work will be completed at the same time the bridge is completed. He pointed out that there would be no reason to complete the ten miles of roadway leading to the bridge before the bridge was completed.

The Missouri cost for .6 miles of the bridge itself is estimated to be $10,556,000. The .6 miles of bridge will go to the state line in the Mississippi River. The bridge, as well as the approach highways, will be a four lane structure.

Total cost of the bridge is estimated at 25 million dollars. Almost as costly as the bridge itself will be the construction of about 13 miles of four - lane divided highway that will connect the bridge approach on the Tennessee side with Highway 51. I-155 will link Interstate 55 in Missouri with Highway 51 just north of Dyersburg.

The first part of that work, grading, drainage and bridges from the river bridge to levee road on the Tennessee side is programmed for 1968-69 at an estimated cost of 1.3 million dollars. Paving of the stretch is set for 1971-72 and is expected to cost, including the installation of signs, $667,000.

Unless unexpected delays in federal funding are encountered, the entire project should be complete in 1973.

Snider says this is only a tentative schedule and delays are very possible. The Missouri Highway Department is responsible for approach spans on the Missouri side of the Mississippi, the substructure of the bridge itself, the steel work, on the main span which will also include the flooring of the bridge and painting, and all roadwork leading to the bridge on the Missouri Side.

Ann Landers

Hostile Antic by Boss Not Sufficient to Quit Job

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is an attractive, dignified man -- respected and well liked by everyone. Dwayne holds a good position with a nationally known firm. He came home from work this evening and repeated the following story:

About 3:00 p.m. he walked from his desk to the water cooler. As he was leaning over to take a drink, his boss (an elderly man) came up behind him and gave him three hard slaps on the backside. This was in full view of the entire office. The boss then shouted in a voice that could be heard by everyone, "That will teach you to waste time. Get back to your desk and go to work."

My husband is so humiliated by this public spanking that he wants to quit his job. I've tried to tell him the old man was kidding and he should not be so sensitive. At the same time, I must agree it is a mighty strange way for a boss to treat a 36-year-old employe. Your opinion is wanted. --- HOUSTON

Dear Houston: Kidding, you say? The old gaffer sounds senile to me. If your husband has a good job I hope he will not quit because of this single incident. Encourage him to consider the source and make allowances.

Dear Ann Landers: Many people read your column and little else. Please get across this vital message to Mr. and Mrs. America.

First: You are not going to live forever. Second: Unless you don't give a hoot about what happens to your money and possessions after you are gone, put your wishes in writing jand make it legal.

I work in a lawyer's office and I've heard the following statements so many times it makes me sick: "I know Papa wanted to put his nephews through college. He said so many times but his second wife is keeping everything for herself." Here's another familiar tune: "My sister would not like what is happening in the family. She often told me she would provide for our invalid brother but her selfish children have inherited everything and feel they owe their uncle nothing."

Unless it's written down and in legal form, you can be sure of nothing, except that the law will take over. What's right morally or what "Papa wanted" doesn't amount to a hill of beans unless it's in writing and 100 per cent legal. --- BROKEN RECORD.

Dear Record: I hope every person who reads your letter will ask himself, "If I died tomorrow would my property and goods be divided just as I want them to be?"

Dear Ann Landers: My mother and dad have been divorced for two years. Dad was mean to her and she is glad to be rid of him. He was mean to us kids, too, and we are happy he has moved away.

Mom is seeing a divorced man. He is good to her and acts like a father to my two younger brothers. The problem is that I am ashamed my parents are divorced and I've told my friends this man is my uncle. I hope Mom doesn't marry him but I don't know how to tell her. She is 43 years old and her life is just about over. Can you help me? ---HAZEL EYES

Dear Hazel: You'd better set the record straight before your "uncle" turns out to be your stepdad. And another thing you'd better get straight is that a woman 43 does not have one foot in the grave. In a few years you and your brothers will be on your own and your mom will be alone. Wish her luck and be happy for her.

Want to say "no" to drinking without your buddies putting you down? Get cued in. Write for "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Run Off Candidates Need Not Be Alive

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

During a heated political campaign, several candiates for city office stood on their records while jumping on the misdeeds of their opponents. In spite of the charges and countercharges, however, no candidate succeeded in obtaining a majority of the votes. As a result, a run-off contest had to be held between the two leading candidates.

However, before the run-off contest could be held, the number two man died. Immediately, "Square Deal Charley," who had tallied the third highest number of votes, demanded that he be substituted for the departed candidate in the run-off contest.

"Can't do it," was the answer. "Under the election law, the run-off must be between the two candidates who received the greatest number of votes. You came in third!"

"Well you can't run a dead man for office," was Charley's answer. "Besides, when the number two man died, I became the number two man. Therefore, it's all legal."

The dispute ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Charley to replace the deceased candidate in the run-off contest?

This is how the judge ruled: No! He held that statutes regulating elections are required to be followed very strictly. In this case, the statute specifically stated that the run - off contest was to be between the two candidates who had received the greatest number of votes in the regular election. And, the judge concluded, it did not require them to be living at the time of that run - off contest.

City's Gasoline Credit Extended

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) - East St. Louis got a credit extension Wednesday from the Mobil Oil Co., which had threatened to sell no more gasoline for city vehicles until a five- month old bill was paid.

The firm told the city it would extend credit until Aug. 1. and the city told Mobil that it could now pay $4,000 on the $16,000 bill, the funds coming from trash collection fees.

The financially beleagured city had to issue wage consignments redeemable at local banks last week because of a $60,000 payroll shortage. East St. Louis has operated in the red since 1951.

Legislators Bow to Sand Castle Builders

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — A state legislative committee has agreed that kids should be allowed to build sand castles and dig holes on Oregon's beaches.

In discussing proposed revisions to a beach bill, the committee excluded recreational excavations from the definition of improvements. Rep. Lee Johnson, chairman, said this would "get around the problem of kids digging in sand."

The Prayer from The Upper Room

We know that in everything God works for good with those who love him, who are called according to his purpose. (Romans 8:28, RSV)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we know the love Thou hast for us in Thy Son, who is saving us and teaching us to love Thee and trust in Thee. We love Thee, but in our weakness we ask Thee to keep us in Thy grace to overcome all difficulties and wait till Thy power and glory become evident to us. In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Our Agricultural Depression

Any farmer or agri-businessman knows that American agriculture is going through a period of depression. At the same time our Congress and legislatures seem to be turning away from the problems of farm families to consider the problems of the big cities. I propose to be your strong voice, representing our rural area in the General Assembly.

Ourstate Missouri now has less than half the membership of the House of Representatives. We must educate the city representatives to the problems of agriculture; tell them what a small share of the cost of food and fiber actually goes to the farmer. We must convence them of the importance of a healthy farm economy to the rest of the country. We must remind them that farmers and agri - business are the nation's largest users of steel, rubber and chemicals. We need better inspection of meats, grain, poultry and eggs, to protect both the farmer and the consumer. I understand farm problems and think I know some of the solutions.

Harris Dies At Age 61

Walter Harris, 61, 104 Selma, was pronounced dead on arrival at 9:35 a.m. today at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Coroner Gene Nunnelee said death was from unknown natural causes. Harris was a known cardiac case and had been ill for several years, Nunnelee said. No inquest will be held.

Harris was taken to the hospital Thursday night after falling from his porch, Police Chief Arthur Bruce reported. He was treated for back injuries at 9:45 p.m. Thursday at the hospital and released.

Harris was then taken to the Sikeston police station at the request of his wife and was kept overnight, Chief Bruce said.

Shortly after 9 a.m. today Harris was to be released. When officers went to get him from the cell he had passed out, Bruce said.

He had been talking to himself this morning, before he passed out, Bruce said.

An ambulance was called to take him to the hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

House Slashes Foreign Aid Budget Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, ignoring a plea by President Johnson, has slashed another $370-million-plus from the foreign aid authorization bill, leaving $1.994 billion for the program.

It was the first time the authorizationhas fallen below $2 billion and despite the deep cuts and the possibility of more trimming when the money is actually appropriated, supporters were considered lucky that the bill survived at all.

There had been moves in the House to clamp a moratorium on all foreign aid.

The $1.994-billion bill for the fiscal year which started last July 1 was approved by 228-184 Thursday night and sent to the Senate.

The 44-vote margin was a far cry from the eight votes by which a $2.67 billion authorization was approved last year when Congress actually appropriated $2.2 billion.

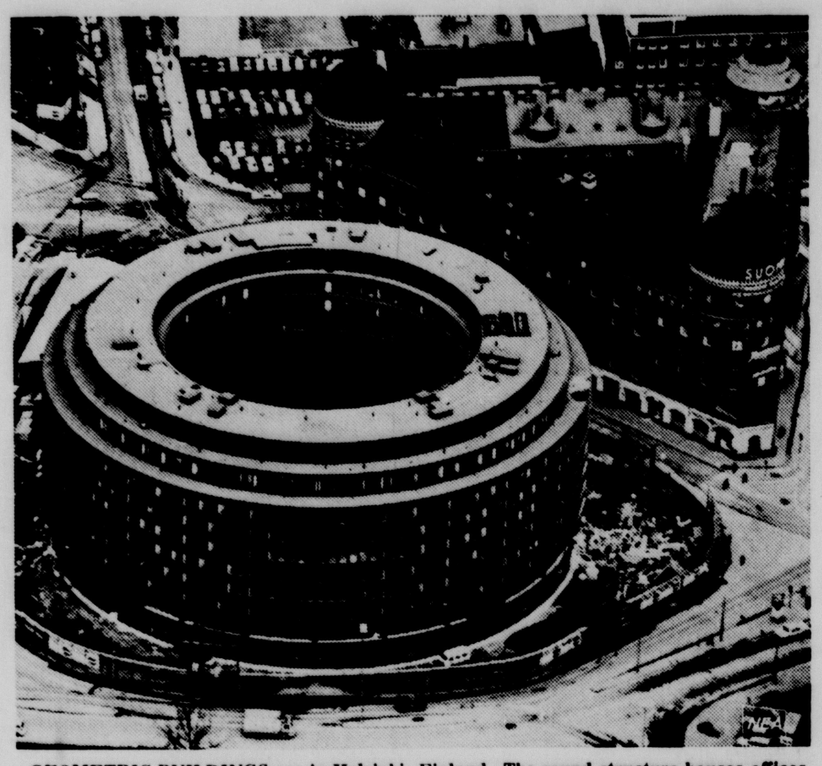

Johnson had appealed to Congress not to cut any more from the bill which was slashed nearly $600 million by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Johnson originally asked Congress for $2.92 billion.

A small group of Republicans, lead by Rep. E. Ross Adair of Indiana, had set their sights on cutting another $400 million on the House floor. They almost made it, reducing the total by some $370.8 million, as a late 267-150 roll call overturned earlier defeats for some cuts.

The House also wrote in a directive for the President to negotiate with Israel for the sale of 50 F4 Phantom Jet fighters which backers claimed is necessary for peace in the Middle East. They pointed to the Soviet Union's supplying jet fighters and bombers to Egypt.

By top-heavy margins the House insisted that no funds under the military assistance program be given to less developed countries for the purchase of such sophisticated weapons as jet planes or missiles.

Scorpion Reports Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Specially equipped Navy vessels hunting the lost nuclear submarine Scorpion are searching with underwater cameras a "highly suspect" area southwest of the Azores, a Navy source said today.

"We haven't found her," the source added.

He described the intensity search area 450 miles from the Azores as having the "highest probability" of being the last resting place of the submarine.

When it sent its last radio message May 21, it was about 250 miles south of the Azores, on its way to Norfolk, Va., from duty in the Mediterranean with a crew of 99.

Westinghouse Broadcasting science specialist William Hines said today Navy vessels have located the Scorpion in one of the deepest parts of the Atlantic. He attributed his information to a highly reliable source.

But the Pentagon said, "There is no truth to the report that the U.S. Scorpion has been found."

A spokesman, who said he had checked with Atlantic Fleet headquarters in Norfolk, added, "They have found no parts or pieces of the Scorpion."

The Navy source said the two vessels, the Mizar and the Bowditch, are using underwater sensors and cameras in what he called a painstaking examination of the ocean bottom.

The Atlantic floor drops to 12,000 to 18,000 feet in the search area, the source estimated. This is well below the "crush depth" of the Scorpion, reported able to operate as deep as 1,200 feet.

The Navy source said some debris sighted soon after the Scorpion was reported overdue May 27 led to concentrating the search in the area where the Mizar and the Bowditch are now looking.

He indicated there may have been other sightings of debris since then, mentioning a rubber gasket.

Hines is a science writer for the World Book Science Service and the Chicago Daily News which published his account under a World Book Science Service copyright. Hines had taped some excerpts for Westinghouse.

Hines said although there is no official confirmation of the report from the Navy itself the Washington source was "too well informed to be mistaken about such things."

According to Hines, the site of the disaster is known within a mile or two and an announcement from the Navy may be imminent.

The Navy is said to have surface vessels on the scene using special automatic cameras on the ocean floor to take pictures of the wreckage.

"It is expected that as soon as the Navy has a picture it can release without giving away submarine construction secrets an official announcement of the Scorpion's whereabouts will be made. That could be any day now," Hines said.

The Scorpion with 99 men aboard, disappeared last May while en route from the Mediterranean to Norfolk, Va.

Judith Ann Matthews

Judith Ann Matthews, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob L. Matthews of 725 Mimosa, was chosen swim suit winner in the preliminaries of the Miss Missouri Pageant held last night in Springfield, the Associated Press reported.

The talent winner also was announced at the opening of the event.

Miss Matthews entered as Miss Cape Girardeau, a student at Southeast Missouri State College there.

The beauty contest, in which 22 girls from over the state are entered, ends Saturday night with the selection of a Miss Missouri.

Cambodian Navy Reports Seizing U.S. Patrol Boat

SAIGON (AP) — The Cambodian navy was reported today to have seized an American patrol boat in the Mekong Delta and arrested 11 Americans and one South Vietnamese aboard.

U.S. military authorities in Saigon confirmed that a Navy landing craft was missing in the delta but said it had 10 Americans aboard. There was no mention of any South Vietnamese passenger. It was assumed to be the boat which a newspaper in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, said was seized a mile inside Cambodian river waters.

American authorities said the missing landing craft left Dong Tam, a base near the delta city of My Tho, on July 15 and headed up river for Binh Thuy, another base just up river from Can Tho, the delta's largest city. The trip up the Mekong and Bassac rivers and across a major canal should have taken two days, but the boat did not arrive on the night of July 17.

U.S. headquarters said a search for the past two days had failed to produce any trace of the boat.

It was assumed that the United States would send Cambodia a request for return of the boat and its crew, using the Australian Embassy in Phnom Penh as the channel. Australia has represented U.S. interests in Cambodia since Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, broke relations with Washington in 1965.

In the course of the Vietnam war, several small American craft have been seized by the Cambodians after straying across the border in the delta. All the crews have been returned, although the Cambodians have reportedly kept one small landing boat.

Border troubles between the Cambodian government and the U.S. and South Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam are frequent because the frontier at many points is unmarked, in dispute or poorly defined, and because Prince Sihanouk strongly opposes both the Saigon government and the U.S. military support of it.

U.S. officials charge that Cambodia provides transit routes for North Vietnamese troops and supplies coming down through Laos to reinforce the Viet Cong. The U.S. Command also charges that the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese take refuge in Cambodia when pursuit by U.S. forces becomes too hot for them.

Sihanouk has repeatedly denied these charges, although Cambodian officials concede privately that their army is too small and lacks facilities to patrol the long frontier between Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Humphrey Says Smathers Just Being Good Booster

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., said Vice President Hubert Humphrey wants the Democratic National Convention moved from Chicago to Miami Beach, the Miami Herald reported today.

Humphrey's response was a two-line statement through an aide: "Sen. Smathers is Florida's No. 1 booster and a good friend, but Chicago will be the city of the national convention."

The report came on the heels of a report by the Huntley-Brinkley newscast on NBC-TV that the convention would be moved to Miami Beach plans.

Rapid Reading Course Scheduled

PORTAGEVILLE -- The continuing education department of the University of Missouri extension has scheduled a rapid reading short course in Sikeston beginning the middle of September. The course will be taught by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rock of St. Louis.

The department reports that interest is being evidence in projected course offerings for the fall season. in basic sewing, freshman composition, French, American history and geography.

Those interested in these courses may contact Mrs. Kathryn W. Kinnard, continuing education coordinator, Delta Center, Portageville, DR 9-5431.

Two Hurt in Car Accidents

Traffic accidents resulted in two injuries in Ripley and Cape Girardeau counties.

Joe Friar, 54, Doniphan, driver of a 1962 Pontiac, lost control Thursday at 8:30 a.m. oh highway 21, four miles north of Doniphan.

He ran off the road and struck a culvert and was cut on the face. He was taken to Ripley County Memorial hospital in Doniphan.

Two vehicles collided Thursday at 3 p.m. on highway 61, one half mile south of Fruitland, injuring a passenger in one.

A 1965 Chevrolet, driven by Bernie French, 37, Perryville, stopped to make a left turn, when a 1965 GMC dump truck, driven by Marvin Scholz, 50, Whitewater, came up too fast behind a 1963 Ford, driven by Ivan Reimann, 30, Jackson.

The Scholz truck swerved into the wrong lane, the state patrol reported and collided with the French car. Injured was Regina Schnurbusch, 62, Perryville, passenger in th French car.

She received cuts on her forehead and a back injury and was taken to St. Francis hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Nixon Elated by Ike Endorsement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon believes his endorsement by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower may persuade some uncommitted Republican National Convention delegates to back his presidential candidacy.

Nixon told newsmen shortly after Eisenhower's endorsement Thursday that persuasion of uncommitted delegates was one possible benefit.

But, he added, the endorsement also should provide a lift not only to his current drive for the presidential nomination but beyond that to the fall campaign.

Neither Eisenhower nor Nixon contended the endorsement would be decisive and both insisted that despite Nixon's hefty-delegate lead the convention that opens Aug. 5 in Miami Beach will be open.

Czechs to Talk to European Reds

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's liberal Communist regime will hold talks with leaders of other European Communist parties Saturday, the official news agency CTK reported today. It did not identify the parties, but the meetings would presumably allow the Czechoslovaks to make a face-to-face defense of their reform program.

The announcement came as the Soviet Union was pledging help to Czechoslovak hard-liners, including the 35,000 man People's Militia, an armed force that has backed Antonin Novotny, the ousted Stalinist ruler. Liberals here have demanded the militia's dissolution.

It also coincided with an East German exhortation to Czechoslovak old-liners to "Boldly counterattack the revisionist and anti-Socialist forces."

The brief CTK dispatch was the first word on such a meeting following rumors that party chief Alexander Dubcek would meet with the Soviet party's secretary-general, Leonid I. Brezhnev, in the near future. President Tito of Yugoslavia also was expected for a visit here, presumably following the Dubcek-Brezhnev meeting.

The announcement came shortly after the Czechoslovak party's Central Committee went into session to discuss a decision by the Dubcek leadership to defend to the end the nation's liberalization process. Prague has rejected the Soviet idea of holding a summit conference on Czechoslovakia, but voiced readiness to discuss its new course in bilateral talks.

The French, Italian, British, Belgian and Austrian Communists have joined the regimes of Romania and Yugoslavia in expressions of confidence in the new Czechoslovak course.

The militia, reportedly in contact with the Soviets, has been a target of Czechoslovak liberals who demand it be scrapped.

This new Soviet offensive against the reformers came as the 110 members of the Czechoslovak party's Central Committee were expected to give their overwhelming support to party chief Alexander Dubcek, who told the Czechoslovak people Thursday that liberalization will continue but "our road will not be easy.

The session of the 110-member committee also was attended by some 50 newly elected delegates to an extraordinary party congress scheduled for September to remove Stalinist hard-liners remaining in high party positions.

In Moscow, Pravda kept up the war of words against the Czechoslovak liberals, repeating the charge that "counter-revolutionary" forces in Czechoslovakia "threaten the...foundations of the Socialist system."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper, in a long front-page editorial, promised "all necessary help" for Czechoslovak hard-liners. The Soviet press has made no mention of declarations of support for the new Prague government from other Communist parties.

It also ignored Dubcek's speech, in which he declared: "The people will not permit a return to the pre-January days." He referred to the regime of Stalinist Antonin Novotny, whom he displaced as Communist party chief at the start of the year.

Pravda also said there were reports in Prague's "journalistic circles" that Czechoslovak security polic had discovered U.S. weapons hidden on Czech soil near the West German border.

Pravda said the weapons were pistols, machine guns and submarchine guns "suitable for...small rebel groups." It said they "obviously have been smuggled in from West Germany" for anti-Communists.

Observers in Moscow noted a similarity between the Pravda article and Soviet charges during the 1956 Hungarian uprising that caches of U.S. weapons were discovered in Hungary.

Pravda also charged that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and the Pentagon are trying to subvert "unstable elements" in Czechoslovakia.

Oil Discovery Rated Windfall for Alaska

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Walter J. Hickel sees the discovery of oil in Alaska's Arctic region as a key unlocking the state's vast potential and a stabilizer of its economy.

"It's tremendous," the governor kept saying Thursday after hearing that reserves estimated by oil experts at 5 to 10 billion barrels had been found in the Prudhoe Bay area along Alaska's Arctic coast.

The Arctic Slope is an expanse of endless tundra inhabited only by caribou, wolves and an occasional roving band of Eskimo hunters.

The area, some 390 miles north of Fairbanks, is a region long eyed with anticipation by petroleum geologists.

The U.S. Navy's Petroleum Reserve No. 4 lies to the west of the Atlantic Richfield-Humble discovery, in an area where the temperature merely toys with the freezing point—even during the long summer days when the Arctic sun never gets below the horizon.

Degolyer and MacNaughton, a Dallas oil consulting firm, said the new discovery has the potential of developing into one of the world's largest fields.

Located on a 90,000-acre block of federally leased land, the new discovery apparently confirms what petroleum geologists have long thought, that the Arctic Slope is a vast storehouse of oil and gas.

Gov. Hickel feels the oil income from the huge federal holdings on the north slope could be used to meet native demands for $500 million to drop claims blocking the state's efforts to select the 103 million acres promised by the statehood act.

He also sees it as possibly leading to the elimination of state income taxes, which brought in $31 million in the last fiscal year.

Alaska, which ranks 10th among the 32 oil producing states, received direct income from oil and gas production taxes, lease bonuses, royalties and rentals of over $40 million for the fiscal year ending June 30. The state's general fund budget for the year was $104 million.

The governor listed as his first priority the extension of the federally owned Alaska railroad from its northern terminus at Fairbanks the remaining 400 miles to the north coast.

Besides relieving the oil industry of the immediate need of building a $400 million pipeline to get the oil to ice-free tide-water, the railroad, he said, would provide a "two-way haul" to open up thousands of square miles of unexplored wilderness.

"We haven't even begun to tap the mineral potential up there," Hickel said.

Recovery Inc. to Hear Proposal

A meeting of the general membership of Recovery Inc. has been set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the city administration building.

W. Raymert Miller, chairman, called the meeting to review past activities of the organization and to hear Jack Dickerson, a representative of Urban Development Corporation of Cape Girardeau, discuss a possible means to enable the corporation to construct additional residential housing facilities.

TALENT SHOW WINNERS for 4-H clubs of New Madrid county, at the annual achievement day fair, held last night in the New Madrid high school, were the Shamrock Leprechauns, singing group from Portageville. 400 Friends Toast Rep. David Rolwing

More than 400 attended an appreciation dinner for State Rep. David Rolwing, Charleston, candidate for the Democratic nomination for U. S. representative from the 10th district, Thursday night at the Country Club.

State Rep. James E. Spain, Bloomfield, was master of ceremonies.

State Rep. Tony Heckemeyer admitted prejudice in favor of Rolwing after spending thousands of hours working with him during the past four years in the legislature. Rolwing has been a representative eight years.

Heckemeyer termed Rolwing as "an extremely capable legislator, and a man the 10th district cannot afford to be without."

Speaker of the Missouri House James E. Godfrey, St. Louis, praised the legislative record of Rolwing, particularly in agriculture, conservation and internal affairs.

He will be missed in the state house, but the state's loss will be the nation's gain, Godfrey said.

Rolwing thanked persons attending for their support and emphasized that he hoped whoever is sent to congress from the 10th district would remember the importance of agriculture to this area.

Summit Talks Begin

HONOLULU (AP) — President Johnson and South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu formal talks apparently will embrace possible direct Saigon-Viet Cong negotiations and a total bombing halt in the North.

In advance of today's first formal meeting at the hilltop headquarters of the U.S. Pacific Command, Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford said he avoided those two topics during his Saigon visit earlier in the week "in order to leave that up to Thieu and President Johnson."

Clifford talked to newsmen Thursday at Hickam Field as he waited with Johnson to greet Thieu's chartered airliner.

Johnson, in welcoming the South Vietnamese leader, touched on the peace search under way in Paris and offered these words of reassurance to his visitor:

"Mr. President, our pledge to help your people defeat aggression stands firm against all obstacles and against any deception."

Thieu, dwarfed by the U.S. chief executive, responded by saying he looked forward to discussions of "accomplishments as well as problems that lie before us." He said he hoped for "steps toward peace and freedom for Vietnam and Southeast Asia."

Only a few score uniformed military personnel and dependants, plus a small costumed delegation from Honolulu's Vietnamese colony, were allowed to witness the arrival ceremony. Authorities obviously had taken pains to avoid any antiwar demonstration.

Both Johnson and Thieu were doing most of their traveling around the island of Oahu by helicopter.

The American President was quartered at a luxury seaside home built by the late industrialist Henry J. Kaiser. It was sealed off from the curious. Thieu was staying at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel on Waikiki beach.

After Johnson's arrival in Hawaii Thursday afternoon, White House officials learned about a published report from Saigon that Clifford, while there, had persuaded Thieu to make two major "concessions"—to go along with a total bombing halt in the North and to agree to direct talks with Viet Cong representatives at broadened peace negotiations to be proposed at some point in the future.

Besides Clifford, Johnson's party included Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Director Richard Helms of the Central Intelligence Agency, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Ellsworth Bunker, ambassador to South Vietnam.

Scorpion Reports Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Specially equipped Navy vessels hunting the lost nuclear submarine Scorpion are searching with underwater cameras a "highly suspect" area southwest of the Azores, a Navy source said today.

"We haven't found her," the source added.

He described the intensity search area 450 miles from the Azores as having the "highest probability" of being the last resting place of the submarine.

When it sent its last radio message May 21, it was about 250 miles south of the Azores, on its way to Norfolk, Va., from duty in the Mediterranean with a crew of 99.

Westinghouse Broadcasting science specialist William Hines said today Navy vessels have located the Scorpion in one of the deepest parts of the Atlantic. He attributed his information to a highly reliable source.

But the Pentagon said, "There is no truth to the report that the U.S. Scorpion has been found."

A spokesman, who said he had checked with Atlantic Fleet headquarters in Norfolk, added, "They have found no parts or pieces of the Scorpion."

The Navy source said the two vessels, the Mizar and the Bowditch, are using underwater sensors and cameras in what he called a painstaking examination of the ocean bottom.

The Atlantic floor drops to 12,000 to 18,000 feet in the search area, the source estimated. This is well below the "crush depth" of the Scorpion, reported able to operate as deep as 1,200 feet.

The Navy source said some debris sighted soon after the Scorpion was reported overdue May 27 led to concentrating the search in the area where the Mizar and the Bowditch are now looking.

He indicated there may have been other sightings of debris since then, mentioning a rubber gasket.

Hines is a science writer for the World Book Science Service and the Chicago Daily News which published his account under a World Book Science Service copyright. Hines had taped some excerpts for Westinghouse.

Hines said although there is no official confirmation of the report from the Navy itself the Washington source was "too well informed to be mistaken about such things."

According to Hines, the site of the disaster is known within a mile or two and an announcement from the Navy may be imminent.

The Navy is said to have surface vessels on the scene using special automatic cameras on the ocean floor to take pictures of the wreckage.

"It is expected that as soon as the Navy has a picture it can release without giving away submarine construction secrets an official announcement of the Scorpion's whereabouts will be made. That could be any day now," Hines said.

The Scorpion with 99 men aboard, disappeared last May while en route from the Mediterranean to Norfolk, Va.

Cambodian Navy Reports Seizing U.S. Patrol Boat

SAIGON (AP) — The Cambodian navy was reported today to have seized an American patrol boat in the Mekong Delta and arrested 11 Americans and one South Vietnamese aboard.

U.S. military authorities in Saigon confirmed that a Navy landing craft was missing in the delta but said it had 10 Americans aboard. There was no mention of any South Vietnamese passenger. It was assumed to be the boat which a newspaper in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, said was seized a mile inside Cambodian river waters.

American authorities said the missing landing craft left Dong Tam, a base near the delta city of My Tho, on July 15 and headed up river for Binh Thuy, another base just up river from Can Tho, the delta's largest city. The trip up the Mekong and Bassac rivers and across a major canal should have taken two days, but the boat did not arrive on the night of July 17.

U.S. headquarters said a search for the past two days had failed to produce any trace of the boat.

It was assumed that the United States would send Cambodia a request for return of the boat and its crew, using the Australian Embassy in Phnom Penh as the channel. Australia has represented U.S. interests in Cambodia since Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, broke relations with Washington in 1965.

In the course of the Vietnam war, several small American craft have been seized by the Cambodians after straying across the border in the delta. All the crews have been returned, although the Cambodians have reportedly kept one small landing boat.

Border troubles between the Cambodian government and the U.S. and South Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam are frequent because the frontier at many points is unmarked, in dispute or poorly defined, and because Prince Sihanouk strongly opposes both the Saigon government and the U.S. military support of it.

U.S. officials charge that Cambodia provides transit routes for North Vietnamese troops and supplies coming down through Laos to reinforce the Viet Cong. The U.S. Command also charges that the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese take refuge in Cambodia when pursuit by U.S. forces becomes too hot for them.

Sihanouk has repeatedly denied these charges, although Cambodian officials concede privately that their army is too small and lacks facilities to patrol the long frontier between Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Humphrey Says Smathers Just Being Good Booster

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., said Vice President Hubert Humphrey wants the Democratic National Convention moved from Chicago to Miami Beach, the Miami Herald reported today.

Humphrey's response was a two-line statement through an aide: "Sen. Smathers is Florida's No. 1 booster and a good friend, but Chicago will be the city of the national convention."

The report came on the heels of a report by the Huntley-Brinkley newscast on NBC-TV that the convention would be moved to Miami Beach plans.

Two Hurt in Car Accidents

Traffic accidents resulted in two injuries in Ripley and Cape Girardeau counties.

Joe Friar, 54, Doniphan, driver of a 1962 Pontiac, lost control Thursday at 8:30 a.m. on highway 21, four miles north of Doniphan.

He ran off the road and struck a culvert and was cut on the face. He was taken to Ripley County Memorial hospital in Doniphan.

Two vehicles collided Thursday at 3 p.m. on highway 61, one half mile south of Fruitland, injuring a passenger in one.

A 1965 Chevrolet, driven by Bernie French, 37, Perryville, stopped to make a left turn, when a 1965 GMC dump truck, driven by Marvin Scholz, 50, Whitewater, came up too fast behind a 1963 Ford, driven by Ivan Reimann, 30, Jackson.

The Scholz truck swerved into the wrong lane, the state patrol reported and collided with the French car. Injured was Regina Schnurbusch, 62, Perryville, passenger in th French car.

She received cuts on her forehead and a back injury and was taken to St. Francis hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Czechs to Talk to European Reds

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's liberal Communist regime will hold talks with leaders of other European Communist parties Saturday, the official news agency CTK reported today. It did not identify the parties, but the meetings would presumably allow the Czechoslovaks to make a face-to-face defense of their reform program.

The announcement came as the Soviet Union was pledging help to Czechoslovak hard-liners, including the 35,000 man People's Militia, an armed force that has backed Antonin Novotny, the ousted Stalinist ruler. Liberals here have demanded the militia's dissolution.

It also coincided with an East German exhortation to Czechoslovak old-liners to "Boldly counterattack the revisionist and anti-Socialist forces."

The brief CTK dispatch was the first word on such a meeting following rumors that party chief Alexander Dubcek would meet with the Soviet party's secretary-general, Leonid I. Brezhnev, in the near future. President Tito of Yugoslavia also was expected for a visit here, presumably following the Dubcek-Brezhnev meeting.

The announcement came shortly after the Czechoslovak party's Central Committee went into session to discuss a decision by the Dubcek leadership to defend to the end the nation's liberalization process. Prague has rejected the Soviet idea of holding a summit conference on Czechoslovakia, but voiced readiness to discuss its new course in bilateral talks.

The French, Italian, British, Belgian and Austrian Communists have joined the regimes of Romania and Yugoslavia in expressions of confidence in the new Czechoslovak course.

The militia, reportedly in contact with the Soviets, has been a target of Czechoslovak liberals who demand it be scrapped.

This new Soviet offensive against the reformers came as the 110 members of the Czechoslovak party's Central Committee were expected to give their overwhelming support to party chief Alexander Dubcek, who told the Czechoslovak people Thursday that liberalization will continue but "our road will not be easy.

The session of the 110-member committee also was attended by some 50 newly elected delegates to an extraordinary party congress scheduled for September to remove Stalinist hard-liners remaining in high party positions.

In Moscow, Pravda kept up the war of words against the Czechoslovak liberals, repeating the charge that "counter-revolutionary" forces in Czechoslovakia "threaten the...foundations of the Socialist system."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper, in a long front-page editorial, promised "all necessary help" for Czechoslovak hard-liners. The Soviet press has made no mention of declarations of support for the new Prague government from other Communist parties.

It also ignored Dubcek's speech, in which he declared: "The people will not permit a return to the pre-January days." He referred to the regime of Stalinist Antonin Novotny, whom he displaced as Communist party chief at the start of the year.

Pravda also said there were reports in Prague's "journalistic circles" that Czechoslovak security polic had discovered U.S. weapons hidden on Czech soil near the West German border.

Pravda said the weapons were pistols, machine guns and submarchine guns "suitable for...small rebel groups." It said they "obviously have been smuggled in from West Germany" for anti-Communists.

Observers in Moscow noted a similarity between the Pravda article and Soviet charges during the 1956 Hungarian uprising that caches of U.S. weapons were discovered in Hungary.

Pravda also charged that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and the Pentagon are trying to subvert "unstable elements" in Czechoslovakia.

Nixon Elated by Ike Endorsement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon believes his endorsement by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower may persuade some uncommitted Republican National Convention delegates to back his presidential candidacy.

Nixon told newsmen shortly after Eisenhower's endorsement Thursday that persuasion of uncommitted delegates was one possible benefit.

But, he added, the endorsement also should provide a lift not only to his current drive for the presidential nomination but beyond that to the fall campaign.

Neither Eisenhower nor Nixon contended the endorsement would be decisive and both insisted that despite Nixon's hefty-delegate lead the convention that opens Aug. 5 in Miami Beach will be open.

Oil Discovery Rated Windfall for Alaska

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Walter J. Hickel sees the discovery of oil in Alaska's Arctic region as a key unlocking the state's vast potential and a stabilizer of its economy.

"It's tremendous," the governor kept saying Thursday after hearing that reserves estimated by oil experts at 5 to 10 billion barrels had been found in the Prudhoe Bay area along Alaska's Arctic coast.

The Arctic Slope is an expanse of endless tundra inhabited only by caribou, wolves and an occasional roving band of Eskimo hunters.

The area, some 390 miles north of Fairbanks, is a region long eyed with anticipation by petroleum geologists.

The U.S. Navy's Petroleum Reserve No. 4 lies to the west of the Atlantic Richfield-Humble discovery, in an area where the temperature merely toys with the freezing point—even during the long summer days when the Arctic sun never gets below the horizon.

Degolyer and MacNaughton, a Dallas oil consulting firm, said the new discovery has the potential of developing into one of the world's largest fields.

Located on a 90,000-acre block of federally leased land, the new discovery apparently confirms what petroleum geologists have long thought, that the Arctic Slope is a vast storehouse of oil and gas.

Gov. Hickel feels the oil income from the huge federal holdings on the north slope could be used to meet native demands for $500 million to drop claims blocking the state's efforts to select the 103 million acres promised by the statehood act.

He also sees it as possibly leading to the elimination of state income taxes, which brought in $31 million in the last fiscal year.

Alaska, which ranks 10th among the 32 oil producing states, received direct income from oil and gas production taxes, lease bonuses, royalties and rentals of over $40 million for the fiscal year ending June 30. The state's general fund budget for the year was $104 million.

The governor listed as his first priority the extension of the federally owned Alaska railroad from its northern terminus at Fairbanks the remaining 400 miles to the north coast.

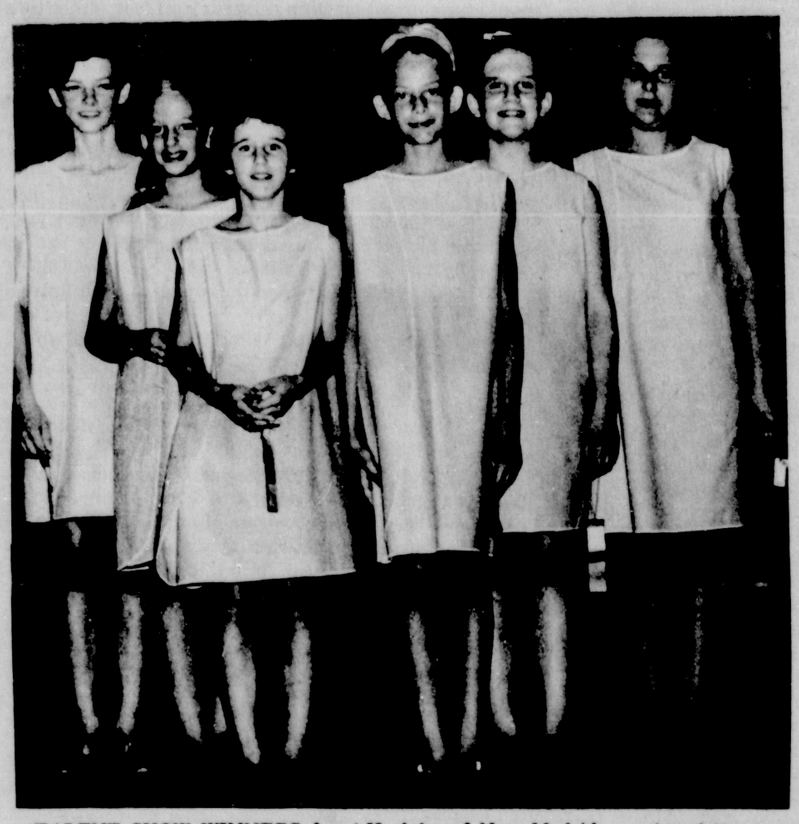

Besides relieving the oil industry of the immediate need of building a $400 million pipeline to get the oil to ice-free tide-water, the railroad, he said, would provide a "two-way haul" to open up thousands of square miles of unexplored wilderness.

"We haven't even begun to tap the mineral potential up there," Hickel said.

Heckemeyer termed Rolwing as "an extremely capable legislator, and a man the 10th district cannot afford to be without."

Speaker of the Missouri House James E. Godfrey, St. Louis, praised the legislative record of Rolwing, particularly in agriculture, conservation and internal affairs.

He will be missed in the state house, but the state's loss will be the nation's gain, Godfrey said.

Rolwing thanked persons attending for their support and emphasized that he hoped whoever is sent to congress from the 10th district would remember the importance of agriculture to this area.

Missourians have an opportunity in this presidential election year to retard the inflationary spiral, which has gripped the nation for a quarter of a century.

They should not make the mistake in relating their economic well being to the candidates for president alone because all officials share this responsibility from court house to White House.

Members of congress and state legislators have an especially important role in controlling inflation.

The stigma for inflation or the benefits as the case may be cannot be placed on the shoulders of any political party.

There are conservatives and liberals of all shades in both the Democratic and Republican parties.

If the responsibility could be pin pointed the blame could not be accurately attributed to any elected official.

For 25 years the American people have by and large elected to office the big spenders.

Those, who promised to spend the most of the taxpayers' own money, have been elected with almost montonously regularity.

As a result the country has experienced more and more inflation, has paid more and more to support government at all levels and in some respects are receiving less and less in return.

State, county and municipal government have been caught in the upward push of prices. Since everything they buy costs more they have had no alternative but to increase taxes and search out new sources of revenue.

Government is not the only factor in inflation. Management and labor bear a responsibility but government, particulary the federal government, is the major offender and for those who like rempant inflation the principal benefactor.

The National Consumer Finance Association tells Americans where they have been on the inflation trail.

The Association points out that in order to maintain his purchasing power, a man, who earned from $5,000 to $10,000 in 1949 would have to earn 50 per cent more today. Prices have increased 44 per cent since 1949. Increases in Social Security and federal income taxes have taken bigger bites out of take-home pay.

Put another way the married couple with two children and a $5,000 income in 1949 would need $7,661 before taxes to maintain the same purchasing power. To equal the purchasing power of a $10,000 income in 1949 the same family would need $15,022 in 1968.

The new income tax surcharge of 10 per cent will place an additional drain on the purchasing power of the dollar although it is designed to arrest inflation.

A married man with two children and a gross income of $10,000 now will pay an additional tax of $98 for the April 1, effective date for individuals, to Dec. 31, 1968.

Those whose earning power has advanced well above the 50 per cent level since 1949 and who have prospects for accelerating at an even faster rate in the years ahead may be satisfied.

They may wish to maintain the status quo or be willing to risk an increased inflationary climb.

Those, who have not or who do not like the trend Americans have so enthusiastically supported, should check the promises and qualifications of all candidates for political office carefully.

No one can turn back the clock but the inflationary spiral can be slowed by electing conservative candidates or proved competence, honesty and ability to office.

The dollar you save may be your own.

AN EXPLANATION IS DEMANDED

Another incident in the life of Senator Edward V. Long has come to light and while Senator Long may not be involved, his close law partner in St. Louis is. He is Morris Shenker, prominent labor attorney in St. Louis, who has paid Senator Long thousands upon thousands of dollars in legal fees.

The payment of those legal fees has never been explained by Senator Long, other than that they were referral cases. No one in Missouri is satisfied with Senator Long's explanation unless it is Senator Long and Mr. Shenker.

The latest thing that has come to light is a statement made by Prosecuting Attorney Alden S. Lance of Savannah, Mo. It involves fees paid to Mr. Shenker by rural electric cooperatives in Missouri. Some of them are right here in northwest Missouri.

This newspaper has been aware of the fact that an investigation has been conducted in this areove;electrical cooperative payments to Mr. Shenker. It has been known that a thorough and complete check has been made among these electrical cooperatives in this area about the payments made to Mr. Shenker.

It is most surprising that with all of the capable attorneys practicing in northwest Missouri the electric cooperatives would find it necessary to pay out thousands of dollars in legal fees to Mr. Shenker.

It is not heresay that these payments have been made to the St. Louis labor lawyer. This writer has seen evidence of sums of money paid by northwest electric cooperatives to Mr. Shenker. But in cooperative circles there is too much silence about these payments made to Mr. Shenker. Officials do not discuss frankly these payments. That is unfortunate. And it is unfortunate that Senator Long issues a statement calling the Lance charge a political smear rather than to give an explanation of what has happened.

While it is true Prosecutor Lance is a Republican, there cannot be anything political in his charge against the fees paid Mr. Shenker. Senator Long does not have the senator nomination to succeed himself in office and this newspaper is of the opinion that he will not get that nomination, so it must be inferred that Prosecutor Lance has acted in the best of faith and is interested solely in his duties as a decent lawyer of northwest Missouri.

This newspaper believes citizens of northwest Missouri should have an explanation of these legal fees, either by a statement from the officers of the electrical cooperatives, from Mr. Shenker or from Senator Long. That is the least that could be done.

Here goes another fond illusion, done to death by tardy exposure of circumstances which led to a widely accepted political folk legend.

Even as Mark Twain did not say "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it," and Gen. John J. Pershing did not say "LaFayette, we are here!" Calvin Coolidge did not say "I do not choose to run," in 1927.

The story comes out of James Minifie's book, "Who's Your Fat Friend?—Style in Politics," a J.B. Lippincott production relating how politicians and others in public life make or break themselves by off-the-cuff remarks.

Mr. Minifie tells that Raymond Carroll, a correspondent for the Philadelphia Public Ledger, accompanied Coolidge on a Western trip. He went to Coolidge's quarters, and asked to see the President. An aide asked the nature of his mission, and Carroll replied that he wanted to have a chat about Coolidge's views on running for a second term.

The aide carried the request to the President, and brought back the reply that he did not choose to.

Carroll, so tells Mr. Minifie, hastened to write a powerful piece quoting Coolidge as saying "I do not choose to run." The word spread like wildfire. Reflecting on the story in the middle of the night, Carroll was struck with the thought,"I wonder if he meant to say 'I do not choose to see Raymond Carroll.' "

Thus may have been born a legend which is firmly established in the tradition.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that doctors get tired of hearing —or overhearing:

"I can't come to your office today, doc. I don't feel so good."

"Is it true that doctors have secret medicines that they save for themselves, in case they get sick?"

"If you're not sure exactly what's wrong with me, why don't I just wait while you look it up in a book?"

"Don't doctors ever practice what they preach? You tell me I ought to take off 10 pounds, but unless I miss my guess you ought to take off at least 20 yourself."

"Can't you prescribe something for me that comes in a pink capsule? I always seem to get well quicker when I take pink-colored medicines."

"How can you tell if a doctor has a good bedside manner any more? You can't get them to come to your bedside."

"No, I'm not really a patient. I'm from the U.S. Internal Revenue Service. However, after we finish our little chat about your 1965 income tax return, I would appreciate it if you'd take a quick look at my throat. It's been a bit sore for several days."

"What are my symptoms? You name any symptom on your list, Doc, and I'll lay you 3 to 1 that I've got it."

"Instead of diagnosing it as gastritis from too much beer, Doc, couldn't you just give me a little note for my boss saying it's a potential ulcer from too much work and worry? That'll get me a lot more sympathy at the office."

"I can remember when his grandfather used to come to our house in his horse and buggy, even to treat a headache, and he only charged $2."

"Which patient do you want to see next, Doctor, the gabby old lady with the kidney or that fat Mr. Stuffed Shirt with the blood pressure? Better him maybe. He's getting pretty red in the face. He says he's been waiting 15 minutes already and that his time is as valuable to him as yours is to you."

"I'm getting married next week to the sweetest girl on earth, Doctor, and I just wanted to know if you had any—uh—medical advice or—uh—philosophy about life that would be helpful to me on our honeymoon."

"This your limousine in the no-parking zone, Doc? Afraid I'll have to write you out a ticket. Don't hand me that stuff about making a house call—because I just saw you coming out of that movie."

"I hate to be so old-maidish, Doctor, but couldn't you please look the other way while you examine me? I've always been so terribly, terribly shy."

"I know I shouldn't ask you about professional matters while we're dancing at a party, Doctor, but could you tell me what are the first signs of gall bladder trouble in a girl who is —let us say, for example—on the shady side of 40?"

"I was reading one of the magazines in your anteroom, Doc, and according to that issue it looks like Tom Dewey is a shoo-in for the presidency."

"Let the patients wait, Doctor. What kind of a nurse would I be if I didn't tell you when it was time for you to take your own medicine. Now, don't be a big baby about it. Open! Swallow! There!—that wasn't so bad, was it?"

"Lie Down, You're Supposed to Be Sick!"

FOR THE BIRDS

Cynics who have concluded that there is no hope for our misnamed "civilization" may take heart from a recent press item. It indicates that civilization is progressing. The item tells about an episode in the slow comeback of the nearly extinct Whooping Crane -- a graceful bird of impressive dimensions. In the late 1930's, naturalists discovered that the Whooping Crane population had declined to only 14 birds. The species was virtually extinct. Unprecedented steps were taken to preserve the natural environment of the winter home of this majestic bird on the Texas Coast.

Over the years, the Whooping Crane flock has managed to increase in numbers to 49 -- still pitifully small. But, as time goes on, if no unforeseen events occur, extinction will have been averted. In the meantime, the conservation efforts of wildlife officials and the petroleum industry have been both inspiring and humorous.

A petroleum company has completed a new gas well just offshore on the Texas Gulf Coast. The well has a flow potential of 48 million cubic feet of natural gas a day. But, this gas is staying locked in the earth. The well was completed 24 hours before the first Whooping Crane returned from its northern Canadian migration to a nearby wildlife refuge. Concerned that the operation of the well might disturb the cranes, the company hung a sign on the wellhead, "Closed until May 15. This place is for the birds." No one knows how many millions of dollars it has cost oil companies to protect wildlife, including the Whooping Crane. Several years ago, an oil company won a citation of merit from the National Audubon Society for its efforst in this connection.

At any rate, this incident illustrates the enviromental awareness of modern industry. It also reveals the humanitarian side of our contemporary citizens in the United States. While it may be only a straw in the wind, the battle to save the Whooping Crane could be symptomatic of civilization on the rise. Let's hope so.

H.L. Hunt Says

ELECTION IN THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

In municipal elections held throughout the Dominican Republic in May of this year, the Dominican people demonstrated their confidence in the party of President Joaquin Balaguer, underscoring the wisdom of United States policy in that country.

When the United States helped the Dominican people overthrow the leftist regime of Juan Bosch in 1965, the communists accused us of "imperialism," of thwarting the will of the people. Yet it is now obvious that Balaguer, who came into power at that time, has the full support of his countrymen.

During the municipal elections, Balaguer was careful to make no campaign speeches or endorsements, not wanting to subject the people to pressure of any kind from the national government. No government in the hands of communists or socialists would have followed a similar policy.

The elections themselves were remarkable for their honesty and the absence of any widespread violence. Over one million voters, a very heavy turnout, cast their ballots. They did this in spite of appeals of Bosch and other leftists that the people boycott the election.

Through the democratic process, the Dominican people gave President Balaguer and his Reformista party an overwhelming vote of confidence. The Reformistas and pro-Balaguer independents won an estimated 90% of the mayoralties and city council seats involved in the election. It is clear that Bosch's influence is extremely weak.

The recent election shows that the Dominicans approve the results of U. S. action in their country. Despite the propaganda cries of the communists, our policy in the Dominican Republic directly benefitted the people. HLH.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: LBJ must fill vitally important FCC vacancy; TV networks continue to bring violence into the American home; They organize campaign to convince public that violence is good for you.

WASHINGTON-Most important appointment President Johnson has to make--second only to his current Supreme Court appointments--is to fill the present vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission. The right man on this commission could help to revitalize the most hidebound regulatory agency in Washington and start reversing programs of TV violence.

Lyndon Johnson is the first President in American history to acquire his family fortune through radio and television, and his past appointments to the FCC--with one exception--have not been brilliant. He was responsible for elevating one of the most reactionary members, Hosel Hyde, to be FCC chairman. It was chairman Hyde who led the move inside the commission to hand down the scandalously Anti-Negro decision in the case of the Lamar Insurance Company's TV station in Jackson, Miss., after that station had thumbed its nose at the rights of Mississippi Negroes.

Incidentally, it was Justice Abe Fortas's former law partner, Paul Porter, a former FCC chairman, who skillfully maneuvered this victory for Anti-Negro television policy in Jackson.

All this is why Johnson's upcoming FCC appointment will be watched so carefully by the network Moguls, if not by the unsuspecting public.

For it now develops that the television networks have been kidding the public about eliminating violence from the home screen.

It is true that the networks are making aplay of editing violence out of such A group of concerned Ad Men, calling themselves Advertising Men for De-escalation of Violence on Television, have called this "Eyewash."

"Who thinks of those shows as violent?" demanded ADMVT's founder, Bert Randolph Sugar. "They're spoofs. This isn't what we mean."

Violence is Good For You

Much more in need of editing are the shows that the National Association For Better Broadcasting has condemned, such as "Rat Patrol," "The Saint," "The Avengers" and "Guns Of Will Sonnett." apparently they will remain as rootin', tootin', shootin' as ever.

Meanwhile, Network officials are lining up hired experts who will try to persuade the public that the daily gunplay on the home screen is mere harmless make-believe. Their campaign will be conducted along the same lines as the cigaret industry that smoking is good for you. In this case the theme will be that violence is good for you.

There is, of course, overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Responsible sociologists have warned that TV not only has stimulated violence in this country but has made people callous toward crime in the streets.

TV violence, they say, has caused a psychological conditioning effect, which has permitted onlookers to stand by while people have been attacked and even killed. The witnesses feel as unable to participate as they feel in front of their TV sets.

Dr. Harry Skornia of the University of Illinois, an authority in this field, writes:

"The principal characters in westerns, crime and private-eye series, and other popular TV programs would seem to rate fairly high in teaching effectiveness. There is considerable evidence of danger that what these individuals demonstrate will be learned....

"Terrible emotional effects may be noticed in certain people from given programs, just as dangerous physical effects are noted on certain people allergic to certain drugs."

The effectivieness of television in teaching violence has been attested by the Armed Forces which, after more than 100 studies, has adopted TV as a favorite media for instructing troops in physical assault, weapons handling and the techniques of violence.

Public Is Not Helpless

The question asked us by many readers is how can they help reduce this daily explosion of TV violence that is beamed into their living rooms? Here are some answers:

1. The better broadcasting people, who have been assessing TV violence for 17 years, are conducting an exhaustive survey to determine whether TV stations have lowered the violence quotient at all since Sen. Robert Kennedy's assassination. But they need funds to conduct this survey. You can help. Their address is 373 North Western Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90004.

2. AMDVT is also urging advertisers to stop sponsoring TV shows which glorify violence. Parents can help by refusing to buy the products of companies that sponsor violence.

For children, the worse hours on television are Saturday mornings, which are filled with animated violence. The better broadcasting people state flatly: "As far as children are concerned, 1968 television is the worst in the history of TV. The 1968 season illustrates an attitude of gross negligence toward child welfare by the majority of TV broadcasters. This criticism includes the heads of all three networks." Not only the cartoons but the commercials are described as "disturbing."

Among the sponsors taking a firm stand against TV violence is George Conklin, President of M&M Mars, Inc., who hs pledged that his company will sponsor no more shows of this kind. He admitted that he had been watching the audience ratings not the program content.

After our columns appeared, he asked his 14-year-old son, Blair: "How are those Saturday morning shows?"

"Horrible," replied Blair. That ended the M&M Sponsorship.

Kellogg's Breakfast Foods have also turned to more wholesome entertainment for children. Beginning with the new season, Kellogg on Saturday Mornings will sponsor a variety show, strictly nonviolent, to be called "The Barbara Bunch Adventure Hour."

But most of the time, the TV screen will be monopolized by the same old kill-for-thrill programs.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

IN ARAB TRIANGLE

Jews Fight For Moslems' Rights

Taiyiba, Israel: -- Here in the Arab Triangle we've been thigh-deep in cold soda pop and hot arguments. On the other side of the table the Arab school principal and his colleague, a former member of Israel's Knesset (Parliament) and a lot of younger Arabs want to know about Resurrection City and the treatment of black workers in America.

Slightly startled, I told them after a while that I had taken to the torrid dusty road to ask how the Arabs were being treated by the Jews.

Slightly startled that I should ask, they retorted with considerable surprise that they were first class citizens -- except on the front: Jewish leaders would not permit them to fight the besieging Arab enemies, though my hosts across the table said they had volunteered, they had given blood and they had worked hard behind the lines.

Only the Druzes, of an ancient mystic religion drawn from Moses' family, could fight in any way. The Jews did not want to set brother against brother.

Otherwise Arab and Jew had equal rights -- on the job, in places of worship, in politics, in employment offices and under the law.

Arabic is Israel's second language. It is used in the Knesset. It is on coins and banknotes -- of which the Arabs are in as plentiful supply as Jewish workers -- and on postage stamps.

In Histadrut, the General Federation of Labor in Israel, there now are 42,000 Arab workers, even - Steven with Jewish members.

They can stand for election. They can sue in the Court of Honor. They can organize -- as they have here in this Arab community of 10,000.

They can travel freely, over the Allenby Bridge, up to the border or down to Eilat.

This is their labor federation as well as Jews' -- and in January 1966, just so all would understand this, Histadrut removed the word "Jewish" from its title.

As we talked I thought of the moment, not too long ago, when I sat in some of Cairo's palaces. I had come for interviews and stayed to protest the secret police action which put me out of my hotel room at 7 a.m., a few hours after my bags had been searched because I am an American newsman.

I was put in a "fleabag" hotel - and this time the word is meant in its strictly literal sense. Those fleas and flies made certain they knew where I'd be. They came down to the front desk to watch me sign the register.

I was moved to make way for an ex-head of state who, it later developed, had stolen millions from his nation. And in his company were several Soviet agents specializing in sabotaging the U. S.

Finally when I did get around to examining the United Arab Republic's Federation of Labor I found it led by freightened men, dominated by the secret police, and cruelly anti- Semitic.

So it is refreshing to sit here in Israel, in a community where a man gets an even break regardless of what his church is -- Moslem, Coptic Christian (badly treated by President Nasser) or Eastern Monophysite.

Here and elsewhere in Israel, Arabs and Jews work alongside each other. They receive equal pay for equal work.

Some 20 years ago, 80 per cent of the Arabs were farm workers. Today the agricultural Arabs total less than 30 per cent. Many of them are in construction work where they are considered some of the best qualified.

Specifically, the Employment Service Law says that an employment office "shall not discriminate against a person on account of his age, sex, religion, ethnic group, country or origin, views or party affiliation and a person requiring an employe shall not refuse to engage a person for work on account of any of these factors."

And this is practised in this Biblical land though on all borders Arab nations threaten a Holy War.

And as American - educated Mrs. Golda Meir, the gracious lady who, until she announced her resignation July 8, was the actual leader (general secretary) of the Israel Labor Party, tells a visitor:

"Armies in a so-called holy war, don't take prisoners, be they soldier or civilian, man, woman or child."

Furthermore, over in East Jerusalem, where the Arab workers total 55,000, it would have been simple for a conquering Israeli army to conscript them for manual labor. But this is a civilized citizens' army, made up of kids who want to go back to their jobs and the street cafes of Dizengoff Street.

There was no indenture in East Jerusalem or west of the Jordan (which really never belonged rightfully to Jordan in the first place as the record of 1948 will show).

Histadrut simply opened a regional office in East Jerusalem and began organizing and servicing the Arabs. The pay scales of the "conquered" workers zoomed to a civilized standard.

Thus it's a new world for the Arabs of an ancient world. Thus the New Communist Party, led by and for Arabs, mostly influential in Nazareth, makes little impact though it is free to agitate.

Thus the Soviets' 52½ hours of Arabic broadcasts each week, virtualently anti- Israel, glut the airwaves, but have no impact on Israeli citizens, Jew and Arab alike.

In village after village such as Taiyiba, men of different faiths can live and work together in peace.

Missourians have an opportunity in this presidential election year to retard the inflationary spiral, which has gripped the nation for a quarter of a century.

They should not make the mistake in relating their economic well being to the candidates for president alone because all officials share this responsibility from court house to White House.

Members of congress and state legislators have an especially important role in controlling inflation.

The stigma for inflation or the benefits as the case may be cannot be placed on the shoulders of any political party.

There are conservatives and liberals of all shades in both the Democratic and Republican parties.

If the responsibility could be pin pointed the blame could not be accurately attributed to any elected official.

For 25 years the American people have by and large elected to office the big spenders.

Those, who promised to spend the most of the taxpayers' own money, have been elected with almost montonously regularity.

As a result the country has experienced more and more inflation, has paid more and more to support government at all levels and in some respects are receiving less and less in return.

State, county and municipal government have been caught in the upward push of prices. Since everything they buy costs more they have had no alternative but to increase taxes and search out new sources of revenue.

Government is not the only factor in inflation. Management and labor bear a responsibility but government, particulary the federal government, is the major offender and for those who like rempant inflation the principal benefactor.

The National Consumer Finance Association tells Americans where they have been on the inflation trail.

The Association points out that in order to maintain his purchasing power, a man, who earned from $5,000 to $10,000 in 1949 would have to earn 50 per cent more today. Prices have increased 44 per cent since 1949. Increases in Social Security and federal income taxes have taken bigger bites out of take-home pay.

Put another way the married couple with two children and a $5,000 income in 1949 would need $7,661 before taxes to maintain the same purchasing power. To equal the purchasing power of a $10,000 income in 1949 the same family would need $15,022 in 1968.

The new income tax surcharge of 10 per cent will place an additional drain on the purchasing power of the dollar although it is designed to arrest inflation.

A married man with two children and a gross income of $10,000 now will pay an additional tax of $98 for the April 1, effective date for individuals, to Dec. 31, 1968.

Those whose earning power has advanced well above the 50 per cent level since 1949 and who have prospects for accelerating at an even faster rate in the years ahead may be satisfied.

They may wish to maintain the status quo or be willing to risk an increased inflationary climb.

Those, who have not or who do not like the trend Americans have so enthusiastically supported, should check the promises and qualifications of all candidates for political office carefully.

No one can turn back the clock but the inflationary spiral can be slowed by electing conservative candidates or proved competence, honesty and ability to office.

The dollar you save may be your own.

AN EXPLANATION IS DEMANDED

Another incident in the life of Senator Edward V. Long has come to light and while Senator Long may not be involved, his close law partner in St. Louis is. He is Morris Shenker, prominent labor attorney in St. Louis, who has paid Senator Long thousands upon thousands of dollars in legal fees.

The payment of those legal fees has never been explained by Senator Long, other than that they were referral cases. No one in Missouri is satisfied with Senator Long's explanation unless it is Senator Long and Mr. Shenker.

The latest thing that has come to light is a statement made by Prosecuting Attorney Alden S. Lance of Savannah, Mo. It involves fees paid to Mr. Shenker by rural electric cooperatives in Missouri. Some of them are right here in northwest Missouri.

This newspaper has been aware of the fact that an investigation has been conducted in this areove;electrical cooperative payments to Mr. Shenker. It has been known that a thorough and complete check has been made among these electrical cooperatives in this area about the payments made to Mr. Shenker.

It is most surprising that with all of the capable attorneys practicing in northwest Missouri the electric cooperatives would find it necessary to pay out thousands of dollars in legal fees to Mr. Shenker.

It is not heresay that these payments have been made to the St. Louis labor lawyer. This writer has seen evidence of sums of money paid by northwest electric cooperatives to Mr. Shenker. But in cooperative circles there is too much silence about these payments made to Mr. Shenker. Officials do not discuss frankly these payments. That is unfortunate. And it is unfortunate that Senator Long issues a statement calling the Lance charge a political smear rather than to give an explanation of what has happened.

While it is true Prosecutor Lance is a Republican, there cannot be anything political in his charge against the fees paid Mr. Shenker. Senator Long does not have the senator nomination to succeed himself in office and this newspaper is of the opinion that he will not get that nomination, so it must be inferred that Prosecutor Lance has acted in the best of faith and is interested solely in his duties as a decent lawyer of northwest Missouri.

This newspaper believes citizens of northwest Missouri should have an explanation of these legal fees, either by a statement from the officers of the electrical cooperatives, from Mr. Shenker or from Senator Long. That is the least that could be done.

"Instead of diagnosing it as gastritis from too much beer, Doc, couldn't you just give me a little note for my boss saying it's a potential ulcer from too much work and worry? That'll get me a lot more sympathy at the office."

"I can remember when his grandfather used to come to our house in his horse and buggy, even to treat a headache, and he only charged $2."

"Which patient do you want to see next, Doctor, the gabby old lady with the kidney or that fat Mr. Stuffed Shirt with the blood pressure? Better him maybe. He's getting pretty red in the face. He says he's been waiting 15 minutes already and that his time is as valuable to him as yours is to you."

"I'm getting married next week to the sweetest girl on earth, Doctor, and I just wanted to know if you had any—uh—medical advice or—uh—philosophy about life that would be helpful to me on our honeymoon."

"This your limousine in the no-parking zone, Doc? Afraid I'll have to write you out a ticket. Don't hand me that stuff about making a house call—because I just saw you coming out of that movie."

"I hate to be so old-maidish, Doctor, but couldn't you please look the other way while you examine me? I've always been so terribly, terribly shy."

"I know I shouldn't ask you about professional matters while we're dancing at a party, Doctor, but could you tell me what are the first signs of gall bladder trouble in a girl who is —let us say, for example—on the shady side of 40?"

"I was reading one of the magazines in your anteroom, Doc, and according to that issue it looks like Tom Dewey is a shoo-in for the presidency."

"Let the patients wait, Doctor. What kind of a nurse would I be if I didn't tell you when it was time for you to take your own medicine. Now, don't be a big baby about it. Open! Swallow! There!—that wasn't so bad, was it?"

"Lie Down, You're Supposed to Be Sick!"

The small daughter of a famous surgeon always introduced herself when asked her identity as "Doctor Baker's daughter." Her mother decided to correct her firmly about it on the grounds that it sounded too snobbish.

"After this," said her mother, "just refer to yourself as Mary Baker."

Several days later a colleague of the doctor leaned over and asked, "Aren't you Doctor Baker's little girl?"

"I always thought I was," aanswered the little girl, "but Mother says not."

FOR THE BIRDS

Cynics who have concluded that there is no hope for our misnamed "civilization" may take heart from a recent press item. It indicates that civilization is progressing. The item tells about an episode in the slow comeback of the nearly extinct Whooping Crane -- a graceful bird of impressive dimensions. In the late 1930's, naturalists discovered that the Whooping Crane population had declined to only 14 birds. The species was virtually extinct. Unprecedented steps were taken to preserve the natural environment of the winter home of this majestic bird on the Texas Coast.

Over the years, the Whooping Crane flock has managed to increase in numbers to 49 -- still pitifully small. But, as time goes on, if no unforeseen events occur, extinction will have been averted. In the meantime, the conservation efforts of wildlife officials and the petroleum industry have been both inspiring and humorous.

A petroleum company has completed a new gas well just offshore on the Texas Gulf Coast. The well has a flow potential of 48 million cubic feet of natural gas a day. But, this gas is staying locked in the earth. The well was completed 24 hours before the first Whooping Crane returned from its northern Canadian migration to a nearby wildlife refuge. Concerned that the operation of the well might disturb the cranes, the company hung a sign on the wellhead, "Closed until May 15. This place is for the birds." No one knows how many millions of dollars it has cost oil companies to protect wildlife, including the Whooping Crane. Several years ago, an oil company won a citation of merit from the National Audubon Society for its efforst in this connection.

At any rate, this incident illustrates the enviromental awareness of modern industry. It also reveals the humanitarian side of our contemporary citizens in the United States. While it may be only a straw in the wind, the battle to save the Whooping Crane could be symptomatic of civilization on the rise. Let's hope so.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: LBJ must fill vitally important FCC vacancy; TV networks continue to bring violence into the American home; They organize campaign to convince public that violence is good for you.

WASHINGTON-Most important appointment President Johnson has to make--second only to his current Supreme Court appointments--is to fill the present vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission. The right man on this commission could help to revitalize the most hidebound regulatory agency in Washington and start reversing programs of TV violence.

Lyndon Johnson is the first President in American history to acquire his family fortune through radio and television, and his past appointments to the FCC--with one exception--have not been brilliant. He was responsible for elevating one of the most reactionary members, Hosel Hyde, to be FCC chairman. It was chairman Hyde who led the move inside the commission to hand down the scandalously Anti-Negro decision in the case of the Lamar Insurance Company's TV station in Jackson, Miss., after that station had thumbed its nose at the rights of Mississippi Negroes.

Incidentally, it was Justice Abe Fortas's former law partner, Paul Porter, a former FCC chairman, who skillfully maneuvered this victory for Anti-Negro television policy in Jackson.

All this is why Johnson's upcoming FCC appointment will be watched so carefully by the network Moguls, if not by the unsuspecting public.

For it now develops that the television networks have been kidding the public about eliminating violence from the home screen.

It is true that the networks are making aplay of editing violence out of such A group of concerned Ad Men, calling themselves Advertising Men for De-escalation of Violence on Television, have called this "Eyewash."

"Who thinks of those shows as violent?" demanded ADMVT's founder, Bert Randolph Sugar. "They're spoofs. This isn't what we mean."

Violence is Good For You

Much more in need of editing are the shows that the National Association For Better Broadcasting has condemned, such as "Rat Patrol," "The Saint," "The Avengers" and "Guns Of Will Sonnett." apparently they will remain as rootin', tootin', shootin' as ever.

Meanwhile, Network officials are lining up hired experts who will try to persuade the public that the daily gunplay on the home screen is mere harmless make-believe. Their campaign will be conducted along the same lines as the cigaret industry that smoking is good for you. In this case the theme will be that violence is good for you.

There is, of course, overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Responsible sociologists have warned that TV not only has stimulated violence in this country but has made people callous toward crime in the streets.

TV violence, they say, has caused a psychological conditioning effect, which has permitted onlookers to stand by while people have been attacked and even killed. The witnesses feel as unable to participate as they feel in front of their TV sets.

Dr. Harry Skornia of the University of Illinois, an authority in this field, writes:

"The principal characters in westerns, crime and private-eye series, and other popular TV programs would seem to rate fairly high in teaching effectiveness. There is considerable evidence of danger that what these individuals demonstrate will be learned....

"Terrible emotional effects may be noticed in certain people from given programs, just as dangerous physical effects are noted on certain people allergic to certain drugs."

The effectivieness of television in teaching violence has been attested by the Armed Forces which, after more than 100 studies, has adopted TV as a favorite media for instructing troops in physical assault, weapons handling and the techniques of violence.

Public Is Not Helpless

The question asked us by many readers is how can they help reduce this daily explosion of TV violence that is beamed into their living rooms? Here are some answers:

1. The better broadcasting people, who have been assessing TV violence for 17 years, are conducting an exhaustive survey to determine whether TV stations have lowered the violence quotient at all since Sen. Robert Kennedy's assassination. But they need funds to conduct this survey. You can help. Their address is 373 North Western Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90004.

2. AMDVT is also urging advertisers to stop sponsoring TV shows which glorify violence. Parents can help by refusing to buy the products of companies that sponsor violence.

For children, the worse hours on television are Saturday mornings, which are filled with animated violence. The better broadcasting people state flatly: "As far as children are concerned, 1968 television is the worst in the history of TV. The 1968 season illustrates an attitude of gross negligence toward child welfare by the majority of TV broadcasters. This criticism includes the heads of all three networks." Not only the cartoons but the commercials are described as "disturbing."

Among the sponsors taking a firm stand against TV violence is George Conklin, President of M&M Mars, Inc., who hs pledged that his company will sponsor no more shows of this kind. He admitted that he had been watching the audience ratings not the program content.

After our columns appeared, he asked his 14-year-old son, Blair: "How are those Saturday morning shows?"

"Horrible," replied Blair. That ended the M&M Sponsorship.

Kellogg's Breakfast Foods have also turned to more wholesome entertainment for children. Beginning with the new season, Kellogg on Saturday Mornings will sponsor a variety show, strictly nonviolent, to be called "The Barbara Bunch Adventure Hour."

But most of the time, the TV screen will be monopolized by the same old kill-for-thrill programs.

Doc. Duncan Says

Gramp, do you spose our Harry S. Truman advised LBJ to give the people the bum's rush on that gun law?

Heck no. Our Harry was raised up in the wild wooly west where men are men, not mice. He always took care of his self in the roughety tumble and spected all men to do the same.

H.L. Hunt Says

ELECTION IN THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

In municipal elections held throughout the Dominican Republic in May of this year, the Dominican people demonstrated their confidence in the party of President Joaquin Balaguer, underscoring the wisdom of United States policy in that country.

When the United States helped the Dominican people overthrow the leftist regime of Juan Bosch in 1965, the communists accused us of "imperialism," of thwarting the will of the people. Yet it is now obvious that Balaguer, who came into power at that time, has the full support of his countrymen.

During the municipal elections, Balaguer was careful to make no campaign speeches or endorsements, not wanting to subject the people to pressure of any kind from the national government. No government in the hands of communists or socialists would have followed a similar policy.

The elections themselves were remarkable for their honesty and the absence of any widespread violence. Over one million voters, a very heavy turnout, cast their ballots. They did this in spite of appeals of Bosch and other leftists that the people boycott the election.

Through the democratic process, the Dominican people gave President Balaguer and his Reformista party an overwhelming vote of confidence. The Reformistas and pro-Balaguer independents won an estimated 90% of the mayoralties and city council seats involved in the election. It is clear that Bosch's influence is extremely weak.

The recent election shows that the Dominicans approve the results of U. S. action in their country. Despite the propaganda cries of the communists, our policy in the Dominican Republic directly benefitted the people. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

IN ARAB TRIANGLE

Jews Fight For Moslems' Rights

Taiyiba, Israel: -- Here in the Arab Triangle we've been thigh-deep in cold soda pop and hot arguments. On the other side of the table the Arab school principal and his colleague, a former member of Israel's Knesset (Parliament) and a lot of younger Arabs want to know about Resurrection City and the treatment of black workers in America.

Slightly startled, I told them after a while that I had taken to the torrid dusty road to ask how the Arabs were being treated by the Jews.

Slightly startled that I should ask, they retorted with considerable surprise that they were first class citizens -- except on the front: Jewish leaders would not permit them to fight the besieging Arab enemies, though my hosts across the table said they had volunteered, they had given blood and they had worked hard behind the lines.

Only the Druzes, of an ancient mystic religion drawn from Moses' family, could fight in any way. The Jews did not want to set brother against brother.

Otherwise Arab and Jew had equal rights -- on the job, in places of worship, in politics, in employment offices and under the law.

Arabic is Israel's second language. It is used in the Knesset. It is on coins and banknotes -- of which the Arabs are in as plentiful supply as Jewish workers -- and on postage stamps.

In Histadrut, the General Federation of Labor in Israel, there now are 42,000 Arab workers, even - Steven with Jewish members.

They can stand for election. They can sue in the Court of Honor. They can organize -- as they have here in this Arab community of 10,000.

They can travel freely, over the Allenby Bridge, up to the border or down to Eilat.

This is their labor federation as well as Jews' -- and in January 1966, just so all would understand this, Histadrut removed the word "Jewish" from its title.

As we talked I thought of the moment, not too long ago, when I sat in some of Cairo's palaces. I had come for interviews and stayed to protest the secret police action which put me out of my hotel room at 7 a.m., a few hours after my bags had been searched because I am an American newsman.

I was put in a "fleabag" hotel - and this time the word is meant in its strictly literal sense. Those fleas and flies made certain they knew where I'd be. They came down to the front desk to watch me sign the register.

I was moved to make way for an ex-head of state who, it later developed, had stolen millions from his nation. And in his company were several Soviet agents specializing in sabotaging the U. S.

Finally when I did get around to examining the United Arab Republic's Federation of Labor I found it led by freightened men, dominated by the secret police, and cruelly anti- Semitic.

So it is refreshing to sit here in Israel, in a community where a man gets an even break regardless of what his church is -- Moslem, Coptic Christian (badly treated by President Nasser) or Eastern Monophysite.

Here and elsewhere in Israel, Arabs and Jews work alongside each other. They receive equal pay for equal work.

Some 20 years ago, 80 per cent of the Arabs were farm workers. Today the agricultural Arabs total less than 30 per cent. Many of them are in construction work where they are considered some of the best qualified.

Specifically, the Employment Service Law says that an employment office "shall not discriminate against a person on account of his age, sex, religion, ethnic group, country or origin, views or party affiliation and a person requiring an employe shall not refuse to engage a person for work on account of any of these factors."

And this is practised in this Biblical land though on all borders Arab nations threaten a Holy War.

And as American - educated Mrs. Golda Meir, the gracious lady who, until she announced her resignation July 8, was the actual leader (general secretary) of the Israel Labor Party, tells a visitor:

"Armies in a so-called holy war, don't take prisoners, be they soldier or civilian, man, woman or child."

Furthermore, over in East Jerusalem, where the Arab workers total 55,000, it would have been simple for a conquering Israeli army to conscript them for manual labor. But this is a civilized citizens' army, made up of kids who want to go back to their jobs and the street cafes of Dizengoff Street.

There was no indenture in East Jerusalem or west of the Jordan (which really never belonged rightfully to Jordan in the first place as the record of 1948 will show).

Histadrut simply opened a regional office in East Jerusalem and began organizing and servicing the Arabs. The pay scales of the "conquered" workers zoomed to a civilized standard.

Thus it's a new world for the Arabs of an ancient world. Thus the New Communist Party, led by and for Arabs, mostly influential in Nazareth, makes little impact though it is free to agitate.

Thus the Soviets' 52½ hours of Arabic broadcasts each week, virtualently anti- Israel, glut the airwaves, but have no impact on Israeli citizens, Jew and Arab alike.

In village after village such as Taiyiba, men of different faiths can live and work together in peace.

Mrs. John Thurston Braddock

Shirley Ruth Catlett Says Vows With John T. Braddock

Shirley Ruth Catlett of Scotts Valley, Calif., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest LaFayette Catlett, 1526 East Gladys, married John Thurston Braddock of Santa Cruz, Calif., at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The Rev. T. A. McDonough officiated at the double ring ceremony at the First Assembly of God church.

Braddock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Braddock of Lomita, Calif.

The church was decorated with baskets of American Beauty roses, an arch candelabra, two spiral candelabra and a three branched candelabra, entwined with ivy. Candelabra entwined with ivy on each side of the aisles, a kneeling bench and communion table completed appointments.

Organist Jeanetta McDonough of Sikeston accompanied Mrs. Viva Sexton of Morehouse who sang "Whither Tou Goest" and Larry Davis of Jackson, who sang "Submission."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown made of imported Chantilly lace over taffeta. The close - fitted sleeveless bodice was overlaid with lace and sprinkled with tiny seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The controlled skirt was floor length and fell in cascades of scalloped ruffled lace.

A brief Eton lace jacket was worn over the bodice, that featured a scalloped scoop neckline and elbow - length sleeves. A full chapel train was attached to the back of the jacket. Scallops encircled the jacket, sleeves and train.

Her headdress was a cap made of sprays of lily of the valley backed with a Dior bow made of peau de soie centered with hand cut crystal stamen. Loops entwined with pearls ending with pearl drops accented the front of the cap. A floor - length veil was attached.

She wore pearls given to her by the groom, a penny in her shoe that was worn by an aunt at her wedding 24 years ago, hand crocheted gloves and carried a hand crocheted handkerchief given her by her grandmother.

The bride carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and lily of the valley and streamers atop a white Bible given her by a friend. She also carried a loose white rose which she presented to her mother with a kiss.

The bride's attendants were Miss Frances Catlett of Sikeston, her sister, maid of honor; Miss Joyce Brown, Mrs. Sharon Savage, both of Sikeston, Mrs. Thelma Roberts of Rockford, Ill., Miss Remona Shandy of Bakersfield, Calif., and Miss Linda Moore of Memphis, the bride's cousin.

The candlelighters were Miss Donna Brown, Miss Judy Green, Miss Marshall Standridge, all of Sikeston, and Miss Judith DeLine of Charleston.

The attendants wore semi - fitted floor - length A-line dresses styled with jewel necklines and short sleeves. Miss Catlett and Miss Brown wore gowns of candy pink imported silk shantung. The other women wore shocking pink imported silk shantung gowns. They wore matching full-length illusion veils and carried arm bouquets of long - stemmed American Beauty roses, fern, baby's breath and moss green ribbons.

The candlelighters wore floor - length gowns of shocking pink imported silk shantung, full-length veils of shocking pink and candy pink and wrist corsages of American Beauty roses.

Flower girls Teresa Bixler of Canalou and Debbie Bohannon of Pana, Ill., wore floor-length dresses of imported silk shantung of candy pink. They wore full-length veils of shocking pink and candy pink and carried white lace baskets filled with red sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

Attending the groom was Wayne Catlett of St. Louis, brother of the bride, as best man; Dale Brown, Don Savage, both of Sikeston, Gary Bixler of Canalou, Dale Sexton of Morehouse, Gary Kesler of Sikeston and Dale Sullivan of Fort Campbell, Ky., cousin of the bride.

Randy Green of Sikeston was ring bearer.

During a candlelighting ceremony, three candles were used. The outside candles were lighted representing the couple's lives before marriage. They used those candles to light the center candle representing their new life together.

During a communion service, the couple drank from a silver goblet.

Mrs. Catlett wore a light pink linen dress with a rolled collar accented with pearls and a jacket. She wore a matching hat, white gloves and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

RECEPTION

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. A single round table draped in white held a five tiered wedding cake. On the second layer from the top were 12 streamers of satin ribbon. On one end of each ribbon a charm had been placed in the frosting of the cake. Twelve girls took a ribbon and when given a signal from the bride, they pulled the streamers. The one who had a wedding ring on the other end of the ribbon is next to be married, according to Spanish tradition. This was done instead of the bride throwing her bouquet.

The serving table held a silver punch bowl and a centerpiece of red sweetheart roses.

The reception room was decorated like a spring garden using a archway with green ivy, white wrought iron furniture and red roses.

Miss Jean Frala of Sikeston was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. John N. Moore of Memphis, the bride's aunt, attended the gift table.

Serving were Mrs. Elsie Brown, Mrs. Mozella Higgs and Mrs. Geraldine Standridge, all of Sikeston.

The couple left on a wedding trip. For travel, the new Mrs. Braddock wore an A-line sleeveless dress of shocking pink imported silk shantung. She wore a box jacket, matching accessories and a corsage of white roses.

The couple will be home after Aug. 4 at 6462 Old Vine Hill Rd., Scotts Valley, Calif. The bride is a hair stylist and college student. Her husband, a college student, is preparing for the ministry.

Out - of - town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Vinson of Cherry Valley, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Lee Reece of Poplar Bluff, Mr. and Mrs. Edcar Bowens and Debbie, Jay and Eddie of Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. Clarance Williams of Cherry Valley, Ark., Mrs. Marie Carinius of Memphis, Mrs. Roselee Sullivan of Morehouse, Mr. and Mrs. John N. Mrs. John Thurston Braddock

Shirley Ruth Catlett Says Vows With John T. Braddock

Shirley Ruth Catlett of Scotts Valley, Calif., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest LaFayette Catlett, 1526 East Gladys, married John Thurston Braddock of Santa Cruz, Calif., at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The Rev. T. A. McDonough officiated at the double ring ceremony at the First Assembly of God church.

Braddock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Braddock of Lomita, Calif.

The church was decorated with baskets of American Beauty roses, an arch candelabra, two spiral candelabra and a three branched candelabra, entwined with ivy. Candelabra entwined with ivy on each side of the aisles, a kneeling bench and communion table completed appointments.

Organist Jeanetta McDonough of Sikeston accompanied Mrs. Viva Sexton of Morehouse who sang "Whither Tou Goest" and Larry Davis of Jackson, who sang "Submission."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown made of imported Chantilly lace over taffeta. The close - fitted sleeveless bodice was overlaid with lace and sprinkled with tiny seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The controlled skirt was floor length and fell in cascades of scalloped ruffled lace.

A brief Eton lace jacket was worn over the bodice, that featured a scalloped scoop neckline and elbow - length sleeves. A full chapel train was attached to the back of the jacket. Scallops encircled the jacket, sleeves and train.

Her headdress was a cap made of sprays of lily of the valley backed with a Dior bow made of peau de soie centered with hand cut crystal stamen. Loops entwined with pearls ending with pearl drops accented the front of the cap. A floor - length veil was attached.

She wore pearls given to her by the groom, a penny in her shoe that was worn by an aunt at her wedding 24 years ago, hand crocheted gloves and carried a hand crocheted handkerchief given her by her grandmother.

The bride carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and lily of the valley and streamers atop a white Bible given her by a friend. She also carried a loose white rose which she presented to her mother with a kiss.

The bride's attendants were Miss Frances Catlett of Sikeston, her sister, maid of honor; Miss Joyce Brown, Mrs. Sharon Savage, both of Sikeston, Mrs. Thelma Roberts of Rockford, Ill., Miss Remona Shandy of Bakersfield, Calif., and Miss Linda Moore of Memphis, the bride's cousin.

The candlelighters were Miss Donna Brown, Miss Judy Green, Miss Marshall Standridge, all of Sikeston, and Miss Judith DeLine of Charleston.

The attendants wore semi - fitted floor - length A-line dresses styled with jewel necklines and short sleeves. Miss Catlett and Miss Brown wore gowns of candy pink imported silk shantung. The other women wore shocking pink imported silk shantung gowns. They wore matching full-length illusion veils and carried arm bouquets of long - stemmed American Beauty roses, fern, baby's breath and mors green ribbons.

The candlelighters wore floor - length gowns of shocking pink imported silk shantung, full-length veils of shocking pink and candy pink and wrist corsages of American Beauty roses.

Flower girls Teresa Bixler of Canalou and Debbie Bohannon of Pana, Ill., wore floor-length dresses of imported silk shantung of candy pink. They wore full-length veils of shocking pink and candy pink and carried white lace baskets filled with red sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

Attending the groom was Wayne Catlett of St. Louis, brother of the bride, as best man; Dale Brown, Don Savage, both of Sikeston, Gary Bixler of Canalou, Dale Sexton of Morehouse, Gary Kesler of Sikeston and Dale Sullivan of Fort Campbell, Ky., cousin of the bride.

Randy Green of Sikeston was ring bearer.

During a candlelighting ceremony, three candles were used. The outside candles were lighted representing the couple's lives before marriage. They used those candles to light the center candle representing their new life together.

During a communion service, the couple drank from a silver goblet.

Mrs. Catlett wore a light pink linen dress with a rolled collar accented with pearls and a jacket. She wore a matching hat, white gloves and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

RECEPTION

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. A single round table draped in white held a five tiered wedding cake. On the second layer from the top were 12 streamers of satin ribbon. On one end of each ribbon a charm had been placed in the frosting of the cake. Twelve girls took a ribbon and when given a signal from the bride, they pulled the streamers. The one who had a wedding ring on the other end of the ribbon is next to be married, according to Spanish tradition. This was done instead of the bride throwing her bouquet.

The serving table held a silver punch bowl and a centerpiece of red sweetheart roses.

The reception room was decorated like a spring garden using a archway with green ivy, white wrought iron furniture and red roses.

Serving were Mrs. Elsie Brown, Mrs. Mozella Higgs and Mrs. Geraldine Standridge, all of Sikeston.

The couple will be home after Aug. 4 at 6462 Old Vine Hill Rd., Scotts Valley, Calif. The bride is a hair stylist and college student. Her husband, a college student, is preparing for the ministry.

Out - of - town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Vinson of Cherry Valley, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Lee Reece of Poplar Bluff, Mr. and Mrs. Edcar Bowens and Debbie, Jay and Eddie of Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. Clarance Williams of Cherry Valley, Ark., Mrs. Marie Carinius of Memphis, Mrs. Roselee Sullivan of Morehouse, Mr. and Mrs. John N. Petitbon Calls It Quits, McCormick Returns to Grid

By The Associated Press

Richie Petitbon, a one-time all-pro defensive back, suddenly retired. And John McCormick, a one-time starting quarterback in the American Football League, just as suddenly unretired.

"I guess I just got the itch," said McCormick, Denver's No. 1 signal-caller in 1965 and 1966. He retired at the end of the 1966 season to go into the insurance business.

"I miss football and I'll be glad to get back," said the 31year-old vetran, who joined the Broncos in 1963 after a year with Minnesota as a backup quarterback and punter. "I just hope I can be of help."

Petitbon, who went to the Chicago Bears from Tulane in 1959, said Thursday he decided to quit the game and devote full time to his insurance and real estate business in New Orleans.

"Due to increased business pressure," he wrote the Bears, "I will be unable to leave New Orleans this season. It was probably the hardest decision I've ever made, but I must look to the future. I felt the time had come to decide where I wanted to make my home and raise my children."

Petitbon was not the only one to retire. Three Minnesota Viking veterans announced their retirement. Linebackers Don Hansen and Paul Faust and defensive end Arnold Simkus said they have quit football because of other job opportunities. They did not elaborate.

In Green Bay, the champion Packers had their first scrimmage, with the defense crushing the offense.

Coach Phil Bengtson said the poor show by the offense was expected for two reasons, the offense had more new faces and it was primarily a running game with the defense knowing what to expect.

In Fullerton, Calif., two rookie quarterbacks for the Dallas Cowboys were outstanding in a controlled scrimmage with Los Angeles Rams rookies. The Dallas rookies were on offense, the Rams on defense.

Roger Staubach, who won't be discharged from the Navy until next year, and Bill Creedon combined to complete 19 of 28 passes for 293 yards and three touchdowns.

Heat exhaustion plagued the Washington Redskins at Carlisle, Pa., where the temperature hit 98. Flanker Jerry Smith and tackle Joe Rutgens, stricken Wednesday when the temperature went to 100, were released from the hospital but kept on the sidelines.

Running back Steve Thurlow was added to the hospital list Thursday. Rookie tackle Dennis Crane underwent treatment but was not hospitalized.

Greg Brezina, last of the Atlanta Falcons holdouts, came to terms in Johnson City, Tenn. Terms of the contract were not announced.

New york Jet quarterback Mike Taliaferro, who has spent most of his four seasons playing behind Joe Namath, asked to be traded.

"I want to go somewhere I'll have a chance to play," he said.

PITCHING - Juan Marichal, Giants, hurled a four - hitter for his 17th victory as San Francisco blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0.

Giants-Braves To Chop Game Off Card Lead

By The Associated Press

Juan Marichal has finally caught up to the St. Louis Cardinals. If the rest of the San Francisco Giants can't say the same come Sept. 29 they'll be playing for a new manager next spring.

Just before Marichal blanked the Cards 3-0 Thursday night and evened his lifetime record against them at 15-15, Herman Franks confirmed reports that he would retire as manager of the Giants if they don't win the National League pennant.

Owner Horace Stoneham shouldn't have long to wait before applications start pouring in since the Giants still are in fourth place, 13 games behind St. Louis, after ending the Cards' winning streak at six games.

Elsewhere, Atlanta walloped Houston 7-1 and the New York Mets downed Pittsburgh 3-0. Los Angeles was rained out at Cincinnati and the Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

In the American League, Detroit topped Oakland 3-1, the Chicago White Sox nipped Baltimore 2 - 1, Minnesota defeated Boston 7 - 2 and the New York Yankees turned back Washington 4-1.

"Four years is enough," Franks said. "Change is good for everybody. I just made the statement that if we douldn't win the pennant this year, then I would resign. It's that simple."

Franks qualified the announcement by adding that "more than likely" he would return if the Giants did pull out a pennant. He said he mentioned his views to Stoneham about a month ago, but added, "We won't talk about it until after the season."

Marichal, the NL's top winner, ran his record to 17-4 with a four-hitter and even drove in a run with a second-inning single. He retired 17 batters in order over one stretch until Lou Brock singled to open the ningh.

The Giants scored twice off Steve Carlton in the second on singles by Willie Mays, Jim Hart, Hal Lanier and Marichal. They added a run in the eighth when Mays walked, stole second and scored on a single by Jesus Alou.

The Cardinals saw their league lead chopped to nine games when second-place Atlanta beat Houston behind the hitting of Tommie Aaron and Pat Jarvis' two-hit pitching.

Aaron broke a 1-1 tie with a bases-loaded triple in the third inning off Dave Giusti and knocked in another run with a single in the eighth. Not to be outdone, big brother Hank singled home a run in the ninth.

Jarvis, 10-6, has never lost to the Astros and beat them for the fifth time. He allowed singles by Hector Torres in the first and Doug Rader in the seventhm

Seaver tied a club record with his fourth shutout of the season as the Mets hopped back over Los Angeles and Pittsburgh into seventh place. Al Jackson did it in 1962, Carl Willey in 1963 and Jerry Koosman has already done it this year.

The Mets nicked Al McBean for all their runs in the sixth inning on Bud Harrelson's single, a walk, Art Shamsky's bunt hit, a force play and singles by Jerry Grote and Phil Linz.

Wilt Tells His Story

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, gone from the Philadelphia basketball scene, took time out Thursday to polish his image.

The 7-foot-1 center, in a telephone interview from New York, said he wanted to give his version of why he was traded to the Los Angeles Lakers in one of the biggest deals in the history of the National Basketball Association.

Chamberlain said the Philadelphia 76ers' side of the story is "slightly tainted."

"I understand it made me look ungrateful," Ghamberlain said. "My side of the story is deserving to be heard."

Chamberlain subsequently claimed:

—The 76ers asked for his suggestion on a replacement for resigned Coach Alex Hannum and later offered him the job as player-coach.

—He didn't price himself out and force the 76ers to trade him because he never asked for a specific figure.

—Owner Irv Kosloff's proposal for a contract came out to less money than Chamberlain made last year.

—Kosloff led him to believe he didn't want to negotiate. Chamberlain also agreed with the theory that Kosloff "gave up" after two meetings during a 19day period before the 76ers dealt Chamberlain to the Lakers for Archie Clark, Darrall Imhoff and Jerry Chambers.

The 76ers had said Chamberlain, the game's greatest offensive player, was dealt because he asked for too much in contract negotiations. The superstar was said to have wanted a three-year million dollar contract, plus part-ownership of the team.

With the season barely past the midway point, at least 19 drivers have been killed in world motor racing this year despite the most effective safety program the sport has ever known.

If the present trend continues, the toll very well could surpass 1967, which the Europeans call the "black year" in auto racing. Twenty six drivers lost their lives on the continent and in Britain last year, compared with only six in the United States.

John McConnell, a kicker from Southeast Missouri State of Cape Girardeau was one of several players cut from the Los Angeles Rams' football squad Thursday.

Robert Antulov, defenseive end, Nebraska, and Barry Orms, defensive bac, St. Louis, were also cut.

The New York Mets move into St. Louis tonight for the first game in a weekend series. Larry Jaster, 7-4, will start for the Cardinals and Al Jackson, 2-4, for the Mets.

Wade Hampton of Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo., was cut from the Dallas Cowboy National Football League squad Monday.

Besides Hampton, three other free agents were dropped, including James Benk of Cincinati.

Only four days remain before the Jaycee bus pulls out for St. Louis and the World Series bound Cardinals game with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Seats remain available for the trip.

Men's Golf Association of Sikeston will have a scramble tournament Thursday at the Country Club course starting at :15 p.m.

Any member wishing to play must register at the pro shop.

Sikeston's Babe Ruth All-Starts drew a first round bye in next weeks's state playoffs in Joplin.

Five teams are entered with play scheduled to start Wednesday, with Carl Junction meeting the Sedalia winner in the opening game followed by Joplin going against Houston in the nightcap.

Sikeston's Stars will not play until Thursday.

Petitbon Calls It Quits, McCormick Returns to Grid

By The Associated Press

Richie Petitbon, a one-time all-pro defensive back, suddenly retired. And John McCormick, a one-time starting quarterback in the American Football League, just as suddenly unretired.

"I guess I just got the itch," said McCormick, Denver's No. 1 signal-caller in 1965 and 1966. He retired at the end of the 1966 season to go into the insurance business.

"I miss football and I'll be glad to get back," said the 31year-old vetran, who joined the Broncos in 1963 after a year with Minnesota as a backup quarterback and punter. "I just hope I can be of help."

Petitbon, who went to the Chicago Bears from Tulane in 1959, said Thursday he decided to quit the game and devote full time to his insurance and real estate business in New Orleans.

"Due to increased business pressure," he wrote the Bears, "I will be unable to leave New Orieans this season. It was probably the hardest decision I've ever made, but I must look to the future. I felt the time had come to decide where I wanted to make my home and raise my children."

Petitbon was not the only one to retire. Three Minnesota Viking veterans announced their retirement. Linebackers Don Hansen and Paul Faust and defensive end Arnold Simkus said they have quit football because of other job opportunities. They did not elaborate.

In Green Bay, the champion Packers had their first scrimmage, with the defense crushing the offense.

Coach Phil Bengtson said the poor show by the offense was expected for two reasons, the offense had more new faces and it was primarily a running game with the defense knowing what to expect.

In Fullerton, Calif., two rookie quarterbacks for the Dallas Cowboys were outstanding in a controlled scrimmage with Los Angeles Rams rookies. The Dallas rookies were on offense, the Rams on defense.

Roger Staubach, who won't be discharged from the Navy until next year, and Bill Creedon combined to complete 19 of 28 passes for 293 yards and three touchdowns.

Heat exhaustion plagued the Washington Redskins at Carlisle, Pa., where the temperature hit 98. Flanker Jerry Smith and tackle Joe Rutgens, stricken Wednesday when the temperature went to 100, were released from the hospital but kept on the sidelines.

Running back Steve Thurlow was added to the hospital list Thursday. Rookie tackle Dennis Crane underwent treatment but was not hospitalized.

Greg Brezina, last of the Atlanta Falcons holdouts, came to terms in Johnson City, Tenn. Terms of the contract were not announced.

New york Jet quarterback Mike Taliaferro, who has spent most of his four seasons playing behind Joe Namath, asked to be traded.

"I want to go somewhere I'll have a chance to play," he said.

Giants-Braves To Chop Game Off Card Lead

By The Associated Press

Juan Marichal has finally caught up to the St. Louis Cardinals. If the rest of the San Francisco Giants can't say the same come Sept. 29 they'll be playing for a new manager next spring.

Just before Marichal blanked the Cards 3-0 Thursday night and evened his lifetime record against them at 15-15, Herman Franks confirmed reports that he would retire as manager of the Giants if they don't win the National League pennant.

Owner Horace Stoneham shouldn't have long to wait before applications start pouring in since the Giants still are in fourth place, 13 games behind St. Louis, after ending the Cards' winning streak at six games.

Elsewhere, Atlanta walloped Houston 7-1 and the New York Mets downed Pittsburgh 3-0. Los Angeles was rained out at Cincinnati and the Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

In the American League, Detroit topped Oakland 3-1, the Chicago White Sox nipped Baltimore 2 - 1, Minnesota defeated Boston 7 - 2 and the New York Yankees turned back Washington 4-1.

"Four years is enough," Franks said. "Change is good for everybody. I just made the statement that if we douldn't win the pennant this year, then I would resign. It's that simple."

Franks qualified the announcement by adding that "more than likely" he would return if the Giants did pull out a pennant. He said he mentioned his views to Stoneham about a month ago, but added, "We won't talk about it until after the season."

Marichal, the NL's top winner, ran his record to 17-4 with a four-hitter and even drove in a run with a second-inning single. He retired 17 batters in order over one stretch until Lou Brock singled to open the ningh.

The Giants scored twice off Steve Carlton in the second on singles by Willie Mays, Jim Hart, Hal Lanier and Marichal. They added a run in the eighth when Mays walked, stole second and scored on a single by Jesus Alou.

The Cardinals saw their league lead chopped to nine games when second-place Atlanta beat Houston behind the hitting of Tommie Aaron and Pat Jarvis' two-hit pitching.

Aaron broke a 1-1 tie with a bases-loaded triple in the third inning off Dave Giusti and knocked in another run with a single in the eighth. Not to be outdone, big brother Hank singled home a run in the ninth.

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — Five years ago, P. S. Mani of Bombay, India, designed a fabric with the portrait of the late President John F. Kennedy woven into it.

Beautify Scarred Piano With an Antique Finish

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Tell Mr. and Mrs. M. to antique their old scarred piano. My brother did this and his looks beautiful. Sand or use paint remover to clear it of wax and polish. Follow the directions on one of the kits for antiquing furniture. These come in a variety of colors.—MRS. C. A. H.

DEAR POLLY—I am a piano technician, better known as a piano tuner and repair man, and I want to advise Mr. and Mrs. M. on refinishing their piano. The satisfying results will be well-worth the hard work. Remove the top of an upright. There are pins at the back where the hinges are. Remove the top frame where the music rests and the shelf and fall board. This will expose the keys, number them with a pencil and remove so they can be put back in the proper order. The keys are removed so they will not be damaged with the paint remover or the new finish. Take the piano apart as much as possible and after it is stripped, vacuum and blow all the dirt out.

Put newspapers on the floor all around the piano for protection. Use a good varnish remover and then scrape off the old finish with a dull blade. Remove all varnish with paint thinner and make a smooth finish. Wipe with a cloth. Sand any rough spots with sandpaper wrapped around a brick. Stain wood to the desired color, apply a good brand of varnish or paint if you prefer.—PAUL

DEAR READERS—Several readers wrote to say they had been advised by piano tuners and repair men NOT to paint a piano as that would ruin the tone. I was advised by a technician at one of the world's greatest piano factories that painting DOES NOT affect the sound but that the sound board and interior should never be painted. Lacquer is most often used as a professional finish. Be sure to remove all hinges so they can be polished with steel wool and lacquered, and the finished job, with varnish or paint, will not look as if done by loving hands at home.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

(Polly's note—Protect with a plastic cleaner's bag.) After it is frozen the gum can be picked right off. If some bits are left I apply a little household cleaner, throw in the wash and it all comes off.—MRS. H. B.

DEAR POLLY—To "unshrink" sweaters I rinsed them in cool water and a strong solution of fabric softener.—MARIE is this the moment for your 2nd Début?

It is, if you see other women whispering behind your back and you just know they're discussing your age. It is, if you are looking even a tiny bit older than your husband. It is, if your husband no longer brings you flowers as frequently as he used to. Then, this IS the moment for you to discover the wonders that 2nd Debut is capable of performing on skin of most any age past 30.

CEF is a principal active ingredient of 2nd Debut. CEF is the synthetic counterpart of a natural material present in normal human skin. In nature, until age 30 or thereabouts, this CEF is present in sufficient strength to keep the skin's water-moisture level up, to prevent age lines from appearing prematurely. CEF, as employed in 2nd Debut is made available in two specially prepared strengths for twice daily topical application to facial skin of age 30 or older. 2nd Debut (with CEF 600) contains enough concentration of CEF for the woman whose age is hovering around 40. Its price is $3 for 4 ounces. 2nd Debut with CEF 1200, double potency, is especially prepared for the skin of age 50, or older. However 2nd Debut (with CEF 1200) is used with great success and satisfaction by many younger grand dames who enjoy indulging their personal impatience, or when their time is of the essence. The price is $5 for 4 ounces. Regardless of circumstances, however, when the objective is a smoother, less linefull, fresher, more youthful-appearing facial skin, 2nd Debut is now a favorite most everywhere.

is this the moment for your 2nd Début?

It is, if you see other women whispering behind your back and you just know they're discussing your age. It is, if you are looking even a tiny bit older than your husband. It is, if your husband no longer brings you flowers as frequently as he used to. Then, this IS the moment for you to discover the wonders that 2nd Debut is capable of performing on skin of most any age past 30.

CEF is a principal active ingredient of 2nd Debut. CEF is the synthetic counterpart of a natural material present in normal human skin. In nature, until age 30 or thereabouts, this CEF is present in sufficient strength to keep the skin's water-moisture level up, to prevent age lines from appearing prematurely. CEF, as employed in 2nd Debut is made available in two specially prepared strengths for twice daily topical application to facial skin of age 30 or older. 2nd Debut (with CEF 600) contains enough concentration of CEF for the woman whose age is hovering around 40. Its price is $3 for 4 ounces. 2nd Debut with CEF 1200, double potency, is especially prepared for the skin of age 50, or older. However 2nd Debut (with CEF 1200) is used with great success and satisfaction by many younger grand dames who enjoy indulging their personal impatience, or when their time is of the essence. The price is $5 for 4 ounces. Regardless of circumstances, however, when the objective is a smoother, less linefull, fresher, more youthful-appearing facial skin, 2nd Debut is now a favorite most everywhere.

Other 2nd Debut preparations

2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser
For the clearest skin ever. 2 ozs. $3.

2nd Debut Liquid Makeup

Olivier Says He Enjoys Acting Little

LONDON (AP) — Sir Laurence Olivier sipped a cup of coffee, shook his head and said: "I've never much enjoyed acting."

Olivier, at 61 one of the world's greatest actors, went on wryly: "It has it's attractions, but there are times when acting seems hardly the occupation for an adult.

"I was looking at an old diary the other day of the time when I was playing Shakespeare with my late wife (Vivien Leigh).

"After one matinee I found written there, 'Enjoyed performance this afternoon.' It's the only time that ever happened."

Olivier, looking fit and spry, said he has fully recovered from surgery earlier this for cancer of the prostate gland.

"I didn't believe it when they told me I had cancer, and I didn't believe it when they said it was all right," Olivier said in an interview.

"When something like this suddenly happens it is like a knock on the head. Oddly e way.

"Because this kind of experience makes you count your blessings, makes you take a lot less for granted. It has changed my values a lot.

"You expect things to come at you after 60. But it doesn't worry me any more."

Olivier has worked on no less than four films so far this year. He went to Rome to make "The Shoes of the Fishermen" with Anthony Quinn, had roles in "Oh, What a Lovely War" and "The Battle of Britain" and is now making "The Dance of Death," a Paramount release, at Twickenham studios near London.

In his latest role, Olivier plays the part of a cynical, disillusioned captain in the Swedish army around 1900 who fights a running love-hate battle with his wife.

People on the film set showed open admiration for the way Olivier handled the difficult part, but the actor admitted he sometimes has to bottle up his feelings and let them go at home.

"I'm afraid my children and marvellous wife get it in the neck" he smiled.

Olivier has lived for the last seven years at Brighton, a brash and breezy seaside resort 50 miles south of London, with his third wife, actress Joan Plowright, 39. They have a son and two daughters.

"I usually make the journey up to London by train," Olivier said. "It's marvellous—an hour's ride each way without the telephone. I can read my scripts and learn my parts."

Life Insurance Protection in Missouri Rises

NEW YORK - Missouri families ended 1967 with a record $25,693,000,000 of life insurance in force, after increasing their protection by $2,327,000,000 during the year, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

Missouri's overall life insurance protection rose 10 per cent last year, compared with 9.7 per cent for the nation as a whole.

Among the 50 states Missouri ranked 12th in total life insurance in force, and 13th in estimated population. While population is an important factor in life insurance trends, total protection throughout the United States has been rising faster than population.

Blake T. Newton, Jr., president of the Institute, noted that last year's increase in life insurance reflected the continued strength of the economy, the growing numbers of young people getting married and starting amilies, as well as greater public awareness of the need for life insurance and its vital role in building financial security for families.

Missouri families' biggest 1967 dollar gain was in group life insurance protection, although their individual protection under ordinary policies also rose substantially.

They had $13,886,000,000 of ordinary life insurance in force at year-end, an increase of $1,116,000,000 or 8.7 per cent over 1966. Their group life insurance climbed to $9,243,000,000, and increase of $1,163,000,000 or 14.4 per cent. They also had $2,564,000,000 of industrial and credit life insurance.

Missouri families owned 8,550,000 life insurance policies at the end of 1967, and increase of 55,000 during the year. The total included 3,026,000 ordinary policies and 1,760,000 group certificates.

"Applejack"

Apple cider was given the name of applejack because it was once thought that the cider did not become fully ripe until after June 24, the church feast of St. John.

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — The managing editor of the Farmington Daily Times, Mrs. Val Cooper, recently received a plaque in recognition of covering City Council meetings for the past 14 years. The plaque carried the signatures of six former Farmington mayors who were in office during the time Mrs. Cooper covered the City Council sessions.

Inscribed on the plaque were these words: "For 14 years of faithful, accurate, truthful, unbiased reporting of City Council meetings."

Our Kind Of Storm

John Gould
In The Christian
Lisbon Falls, Maine

The other evening about Batman time my barn door swung back on its hinges and went flap, and then crunch, and I wondered how the TV weatherman would deal with this. Well, every day here we can turn on the set and see this fellow standing up in front of a big map, and he points at Nebraska and says a low front is working up like this, and then he points to Oregon and says it is raining all over. We get the broad general meteorological situation as prelude to our local weather. So, as we try to imagine a snowstorm in Dakota, or a protracted dry spell in the Panhandle, how does the distant listener get the picture of a barn door coming apart up in Maine?

What that means, is that we were having a no'theaster, is what it means. About the time an enthusiastic breeze worked itself up into a going gale it made the happy discovery that I had neglected to fasten a hasp, and it took advantage of said neglect. And the no'theaster is our kind of storm - a wild New England bout with the offshore ingredients - a two - three day disturbance that sweeps from beyond the Northumberland Straits and Quoddy, lashing the Maritime Provinces and New England before it begins to spend itself in lesser places beyond. It rains and blows, and tides run higher even in our region of higher tides, and lobstermen always lose some pots and gear and farmers always lose a door or such. It is the storm that brings bo'ts to snug harbor, and lays the forest giant for a "blowdown."

It is also the storm that Boston radio announcers call a nor-easter - thus tossing off their idea of the vernacular to prove they are good Yankees and keyed to the region. The compass points, when blatted from a poop in the days of sail, took on their Down - East variations for reasons of enunciation and acoustics. When you yelled a command to men straddling the yards in a howling wind you didn't say anything they could possibly misunderstand. And if you meant northeast, you said no'theast. Knowth-east; the th is the th of thing, not them.

It is true that some of the old ways are gone, and both 'longshore and on the farm people have let their weather senses rust and dull. A generation ago newspaper reports of things like Fourth of July celebrations would start off, "The day dawned bright and clear, with wind SSW . . . " But weather reports have taken the place of every - man - his - own prognosticator, and you don't have to rise and step out to see if this is the third morning with no dew, or if the dog is eating grass, or if the popple leaves are turned, or if smoke rises straight up, or if there are mare's tails and mackeral sky.

A no'theast storm makes up in the sowwest, and clears the same way. A southerly comes in from the south, advancing as it comes, and generally spends itself in a few hours. Unless we get the tail of a hurricane it is usually a pleasant, refreshing and warm rain, sometimes vigorous but very different from a no'theaster. When a no'theaster makes up the pattern is often leisurely and the portents and ministrations plain and ample. Now that we have radio we can hear that it is raining in New York, and up here in Maine we have been seeing the dog eating grass and wy could have told you so. Tomorrow it will rain in Maine, and until New York is clear again we can expect it to continue.

Often we get one of these fired - red sunrises as a starter, but sometimes a leaden sky sets in during the late afternoon, so we don't see the sunset. The time of the tide has something to do with things. The wind tee-ters, and usually it is a light wind, until it gets ready, and then it backs to east, and finally into full northeast. The vast surge that turns the ocean on itself has an effect, too, on the winds. Miles inland, even if people no longer notice it and know what it means, there will come a faint rustle of wind on the calmest, hottest day, and leaves will whisper on the trees and curtains move at open windows - the tide has turned. So, when a no'theaster is making up, every vane on fishhouse and woodshed will turn at the slack of the tide - sometimes high - water and sometimes low- water - and the storm is on its way.

The radio is telling us that New York has rain, and gale warnings are up from Eastport to Block Island. Fishermen trim their boats, and farmers hasp their doors - usually. There comes first a mist, then a drizzle, then light rain, and as the wind picks up, the full downpour. Old - timers used to invent stories about how hard the rain came. One man had knocked the ends out of a barrel, so he could sink it in a spring, and it lay in the dooryard with the bunghole up. It rained so hard through the bunghole that the water couldn't run out of the ends of the barrel that fast. And so on. In the winter, if it is very cold, the no'theaster buries us in snow, and the papers out West cry, "East Blanketed By Blizzard."

All of which is intended to help the rest of the country understand their TV weather reports. I'm sure our no'theaster is the kind of sea storm that other sections simply can't have.

PROUD OF PURE WILDNESS

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — West Kentucky's Land Between the Lakes Recreation Area boasts "the only remaining flock of true wild turkeys in the United States," claims Harry Towles of the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Resources Department.

These birds are direct descendents of the turkeys that were around at the time of the Pilgrims, he says.

All other so-called wild turkeys, while sharing a common ancestry with their West Kentucky cousins, Towles asserts, have crossed blood-lines with domesticated birds since the days of the Pilgrims.

Children Gain Learning Experience In Head Start Program at Dexter

DEXTER Forty-one children from the Dexter R-11 school district are attending the Head Start program at the Christian Church this summer.

The program, financed by the Office of Economic Opportunity and directed by the University of Missouri, started June 11 and will continue through next Friday.

The youngsters, ages 4 and 5, attend school five days a week from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. For classroom participation they are divided into two groups with each group having a certified teacher and two teacher aides.

The children, most of whom are from families with incomes below the OEO poverty level, are instructed in discipline and various types of art work and participate in group singing and supervised outdoor activity.

They also go on field trips and recently toured the Pepsi Cola Bottling Company at Malden.

At the start of the program each child receives a complete physical examination by a physician. The checkup includes eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs, heart, blood pressure, abdomen, hernia, urinalysis, tuberculin test and hematocrit to determine anemia.

The children are immunized against tetanus, diptheria, pertussis (whooping cough), measles and smallpox. Each child receives a dental examination and dental work, if needed. If a child has a physical abnormality, he is referred to a specialist for corrective treatment.

All medical treatment is done without cost to the child's parents.

Shortly after arriving at school in the morning, the child is served a snack, usually consisting of milk or juice, raisins, vegetable sticks, peanut butter, cheese and crackers or some combination to satisfy the continous appetite of youth.

For the noonday meal the child is served a balanced meal prepared by two cooks under the supervision of a state approved qualified dietician. As well as receiving a balanced diet, the children are constantly being introduced to new foods to learn to like; but at no time are they forced to eat foods which they do not like.

One of the most important aspects of Head Start is that it prepares children for the classroom situation and exposes them to other children. Goals include improving the child's ability to socialize with others and determining and correcting any physical defect which the child might have.

The Christian Church is furnishing the building rent-free. The Head Start program pays the utilities.

Officials at the Head Start program here have hopes that the present eight-week program will be continued with a year-around Head Start program in the fall.

A physical fitness test can be fun when it includes skipping rope, as Karen Ezell, 5, of Dexter demonstrates. One phase of the Head Start program is to test the child's physical fitness. Turning the rope for Karen are Ann Day, left, Head Start teacher, and Leo Lasater, teacher aide.

Why Not More Women in the Dental Profession?

By JANET SAGEN
Fargo (N.D.) Forum

FARGO (AP) — When Dr. Muriel Wicks first set up dental practice in Elgin, N.D., a man appeared at her door and looked in. She walked over to him and asked if she could help him. "No, I just came to see what a woman dentist looked like," he said.

This was right after World War II and Dr. Wicks was the only woman dentist in North Dakota. Today she is one of two, and she has her practice in Valley City. The other is Helen Koehmstedt, Cando, who has been a dentist since 1966.

Dr. Wicks has been appointed to the State Board of Dental Examiners, an appointment made by Gov. William L. Guy on recommendations of the North Dakota Dental Association. She is the first woman ever appointed to this board.

Muriel Wicks grew up in the southwestern United States. Her father was a forest ranger, and the family moved about quite often. She received a scholarship to the University of Arizona and was planning on becoming a registered nurse. Then a doctor acquaintance spoke to her.

OPEN WIDE . . Dr. Muriel Wicks finds boring not the least bit boring as she prepares to clean out a cavity on male patient as lady watches.

"Look," he said, "You're capable of more than this. Why don't you go into medicine or dentistry? I think it's something you would enjoy."

"I took a pre-dental course and got my bachelor's degree," said Dr. Wicks. "I planned to go right on to school, but I got married instead and had two daughters." While her husband, Ed, was in the service during the war, Mrs. Wicks went back to school and got her DDS. She received it from Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., where the family was living at the time.

What does Dr. Wicks enjoy about her work? She can meet many kinds of people. She thinks it utilizes a woman's interest in things artistic. "One tries to find the right color and arrangement of teeth and makes adjustments so the patients look their best," she commented.

"I like to work with my hands, and it is a good profession for doing this," she said. "Also, we have better and better things to work with. The patient no longer has to sit for hours in the chair. He is in and out in no time." Dr. Wicks proved this as she filled a patient's tooth within 15 minutes.

She admitted that dentists must be on their feet a lot, but she solved this by installing a stool that connects to her dental chair that she sits on much of the time while working on a patient.

Dr. Wicks said she asks parents to first bring in their children when they are about 3-years-old. Then they gradually get used to her office and the dental equipment and don't develop a fear of the drills and needles.

"Men are a little more apprehensive than women about dentists," said Dr. Wicks. "They have a tendency to wait until the last minute."

She recalled a college boy who telephoned her a little before 3 one morning. "Oh, did I get you out of bed?" he asked. "I knew he was frightened and quite desperate," she said, "so I extracted his tooth at 3 a.m. while he still had the courage to go through with it."

Dr. Wicks said she has not discovered any different reactions to her being a dentist, except from one man a few months ago. He walked in and wanted a tooth extracted. When he realized Dr. Wicks was a woman, he started backing out the door, saying his tooth really wasn't causing him much pain.

"But usually no one seems to notice. They think of me as a dentist," said Dr. Wicks.

Dr. Wicks said she thought dentistry an excellent profession for women to enter. "It gives them a chance to use their hands and to develop their understanding of people."

When she graduated from Emory University in Atlanta, she was the only woman out of a class of 98. She said there does not seem to be a trend toward more women dentists.

"In Europe, there are numerous female dentists," she said. "Partly because they encourage the women and partly because these countries have lost so many men in the wars."

It is reported that of the 89,000 practicing dentists in the United States, women make up only one per cent. But in certain countries in Europe, Asia and South America, they constitute about 80 per cent of the profession.

Dr. Wicks smiled to herself. "You know, there are many humorous incidents that happen in a dentist's office. Such as the mother who was sure her child was growing another tooth until she discovered the child had a small wad of Kleenex in her mouth. But I'll still never forget that man who first came to my office just to stare at me, because he wanted to see what a woman dentist looked like."

A New Slant on Beauty

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It isn't enough to be thin today in order to be chic. The youthquake is upon us and today's Beautiful People, jet-setters and just plain "with it" women are slim, PLUS lithe, active and radiant. They move; they sparkle; they participate.

They get their firm, trim bodies that spell youthfulness at any age through sensible eating habits, sufficient rest and regular exercise. Some make regular visits to gyms and health resorts. But we don't all have the time or money for this.

The newest trend, according to the Family Fitness Council, is in-home figure and vitality programs. Thousands of women are choosing the modern way to fitness through the use of scientifically designed home exercise equipment such as beauty boards, belt massagers, exercise bicycles and joggers.

"The current boom in home figure control programs owes much to the psychological as well as the physical inducement" said Herbert C. Johnson Jr., president of the council.

"The mere presence of such equipment in the home is a daily invitation to sustain a physical fitness program."

What is it that women from 20 to 60 favor for keeping their figures lithe and their outlooks young?

● Stationary exercise bicycles which give the benefits of cycling without going anywhere are highly popular.

● Slant boards, or beauty boards as they are sometimes called, are excellent exercise boards, too. Touching the toes when the feet are elevated is an even more beneficial exercise than when done flat on the floor.

● Joggers, treadmill-type devices are gaining great popularity. They allow you to run, trot and walk for miles without leaving the house in a sweat suit, subject to neighbors' stares.

"The interesting thing is that while women are the major purchasers of home exercise equipment," said Johnson, "we find that they are often buying it for the use of the whole family—to aid their husbands' health and physique, to stimulate and shape up their teen-age children."

So it seems that the whole family is on a shape-up, live-up program. And who can quarrel with that?

IT'S MIND OVER MATTER, as this figure-conscious young woman devotes 15 minutes daily to her home exercise program. She's using a triple-action bicycle for overall slimming and firming. Family Fitness Council notes that regular exercise also helps psychologically in sticking to a diet. One reinforces the other. (Sears)

Why Not More Women in the Dental Profession?

By JANET SAGEN
Fargo (N.D.) Forum

FARGO (AP) — When Dr. Muriel Wicks first set up dental practice in Elgin, N.D., a man appeared at her door and looked in. She walked over to him and asked if she could help him. "No, I just came to see what a woman dentist looked like," he said.

This was right after World War II and Dr. Wicks was the only woman dentist in North Dakota. Today she is one of two, and she has her practice in Valley City. The other is Helen Koehmstedt, Cando, who has been a dentist since 1966.

Dr. Wicks has been appointed to the State Board of Dental Examiners, an appointment made by Gov. William L. Guy on recommendations of the North Dakota Dental Association. She is the first woman ever appointed to this board.

Muriel Wicks grew up in the southwestern United States. Her father was a forest ranger, and the family moved about quite often. She received a scholarship to the University of Arizona and was planning on becoming a registered nurse. Then a doctor acquaintance spoke to her.

OPEN WIDE... Dr. Muriel Wicks finds boring not the least bit boring as she prepares to clean out a cavity on male patient as lady watches.

"Look," he said, "You're capable of more than this. Why don't you go into medicine or dentistry? I think it's something you would enjoy."

"I took a pre-dental course and got my bachelor's degree," said Dr. Wicks. "I planned to go right on to school, but I got married instead and had two daughters." While her husband, Ed, was in the service during the war, Mrs. Wicks went back to school and got her DDS. She received it from Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., where the family was living at the time.

What does Dr. Wicks enjoy about her work? She can meet many kinds of people. She thinks it utilizes a woman's interest in things artistic. "One tries to find the right color and arrangement of teeth and makes adjustments so the patients look their best," she commented.

"I like to work with my hands, and it is a good profession for doing this," she said. "Also, we have better and better things to work with. The patient no longer has to sit for hours in the chair. He is in and out in no time." Dr. Wicks proved this as she filled a patient's tooth within 15 minutes.

She admitted that dentists must be on their feet a lot, but she solved this by installing a stool that connects to her dental chair that she sits on much of the time while working on a patient.

Dr. Wicks said she asks parents to first bring in their children when they are about 3-years-old. Then they gradually get used to her office and the dental equipment and don't develop a fear of the drills and needles.

"Men are a little more apprehensive than women about dentists," said Dr. Wicks. "They have a tendency to wait until the last minute."

She recalled a college boy who telephoned her a little before 3 one morning. "Oh, did I get you out of bed?" he asked. "I knew he was frightened and quite desperate," she said, "so I extracted his tooth at 3 a.m. while he still had the courage to go through with it."

Dr. Wicks said she has not discovered any different reactions to her being a dentist, except from one man a few months ago. He walked in and wanted a tooth extracted. When he realized Dr. Wicks was a woman, he started backing out the door, saying his tooth really wasn't causing him much pain.

"But usually no one seems to notice. They think of me as a dentist," said Dr. Wicks.

Dr. Wicks said she thought dentistry an excellent profession for women to enter. "It gives them a chance to use their hands and to develop their understanding of people."

When she graduated from Emory University in Atlanta, she was the only woman out of a class of 98. She said there does not seem to be a trend toward more women dentists.

"In Europe, there are numerous female dentists," she said. "Partly because they encourage the women and partly because these countries have lost so many men in the wars."

It is reported that of the 89,000 practicing dentists in the United States, women make up only one per cent. But in certain countries in Europe, Asia and South America, they constitute about 80 per cent of the profession.

Dr. Wicks smiled to herself. "You know, there are many humorous incidents that happen in a dentist's office. Such as the mother who was sure her child was growing another tooth until she discovered the child had a small wad of Kleenex in her mouth. But I'll still never forget that man who first came to my office just to stare at me, because he wanted to see what a woman dentist looked like."

"SOCK IT TO ME, GRAMPS." One-year-old Patrick Lyndon Nugent gets a helping hand from his grandfather, President Johnson. The toddler is the son of LBJ's youngest daughter, Luci, and her husband Pat Nugent.

A New Slant on Beauty

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It isn't enough to be thin today in order to be chic. The youthquake is upon us and today's Beautiful People, jet-setters and just plain "with it" women are slim, PLUS lithe, active and radiant. They move; they sparkle; they participate.

They get their firm, trim bodies that spell youthfulness at any age through sensible eating habits, sufficient rest and regular exercise. Some make regular visits to gyms and health resorts. But we don't all have the time or money for this.

The newest trend, according to the Family Fitness Council, is in-home figure and vitality programs. Thousands of women are choosing the modern way to fitness through the use of scientfically designed home exercise equipment such as beauty boards, belt massagers, exercise bicycles and joggers.

"The current boom in home figure control programs owes much to the psychological as well as the physical inducement" said Herbert C. Johnson Jr., president of the council.

"The mere presence of such equipment in the home is a daily invitation to sustain a physical fitness program."

What is it that women from 20 to 60 favor for keeping their figures lithe and their outlooks young?

● Stationary exercise bicycles which give the benefits of cycling without going anywhere are highly popular.

● Slant boards, or beauty boards as they are sometimes called, are excellent exercise boards, too. Touching the toes when the feet are elevated is an even more beneficial exercise than when done flat on the floor.

● Joggers, treadmill-type devices are gaining great popularity. They allow you to run, trot and walk for miles without leaving the house in a sweat suit, subject to neighbors' stares.

"The interesting thing is that while women are the major purchasers of home exercise equipment," said Johnson, "we find that they are often buying it for the use of the whole family—to aid their husbands' health and physique, to stimulate and shape up their teen-age children."

So it seems that the whole family is on a shape-up, live-up program. And who can quarrel with that?

IT'S MIND OVER MATTER, as this figure-conscious young woman devotes 15 minutes daily to her home exercise program. She's using a triple-action bicycle for overall slimming and firming. Family Fitness Council notes that regular exercise also helps psychologically in sticking to a diet. One reinforces the other. (Sears)

Farm Worker Breaks Arm in Accident

50 years ago
July 19, 1918

Last Thursday while working on George Stone's farm near Matthews Ernest Mills, son of J. M. Mills of Matthews, got his jumper sleeve caught by the revolving crank shaft of a tractor and his arm was wound around the shaft and the bones were broken into a number of short pieces. The arm was put in a plaster of paris case and it is hoped that the member can be saved, although the use of the army may be impaired.

While trying to crank a car on South New Madrid street last Saturday, Lowell Greer got both bones in his right arm broken just above the wrist.

Mrs. L. D. Baker sustained a broken arm last Friday while trying to wring off a chicken's head. She lost her balance and fell, breaking the arm below the elbow.

The McMullin school district is to have a new brick school building real soon. The bonds to the amount of $4,000 voted for that purpose, were registered with and approved by State Auditor George E. Hackman, Tuesday, and they were sold to C. F. McMullin, Wednesday, at the face value. The building will be located on the lot just west of Marion Jewell's store in McMullin and will certainly be one of which all the citizens of the district should be very proud.

A bid of $17,511 by Mrs. H. J. Welsh was accepted at a special meeting of the city council yesterday afternoon for the Sikeston General Hospital building, 101 West Gladys, which will be abandoned by the city after the Delta Community Hospital opens. Mrs. Welsh said last night she planed to convert the building into a modern funeral home, utilizing a part of the ground as a parking lot to avoid congesting the street.

Jaycees Form Prison Chapter

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Jefftown Jaycees Chapter of the Missouri Junior Chamber of Commerce will be formally chartered inside the high stone walls of Missouri's Penitentiary Sunday.

There will be 38 members of the new group, all inmates of the prison.

The new chapter will be host to the Jefferson City Jaycees and their wives in becoming what is believed to be the first institutional chapter of a Junior Chamber of Commerce in the state.

First project of the new organization will be a novelty billy club on which will be burned the letters of "MSP" for Missouri State Prison.

The penitentiary has a novelty shop where inmate artists and craftsmen are allowed to offer paintings, leatherwork, metal craft products and novelties for sale to visitors.

Pier Bids to Open Building Of Bridge

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Bids for $5.6 million of pier work for the Caruthersville bridge will be accepted Nov. 22.

This will be the first phase of construction on the bridge which has been in the hoping and planning stages for many years.

All pier construction is programmed for 1968-69 and work on steel spans, superstructure, deck and concrete approach spans are scheduled for 1969-70. Costs to the state of Missouri will be about 8.4 million dollars for the 1968-69 work and 2.6 million dollars for the initial pier construction.

Ten miles of roadway will be built on the Missouri side of the bridge to connect the bridge with I-55. Estimated cost of this four lane divided highway is $8,822,000. Contracts will be let on this road construction after bids for the bridge work have been let.

Marvin J. Snider, Chief Engineer for the Missouri Highway Department, said the roadway contracts will be let so that work will be completed at the same time the bridge is completed. He pointed out that there would be no reason to complete the ten miles of roadway leading to the bridge before the bridge was completed.

The Missouri cost for .6 miles of the bridge itself is estimated to be $10,556,000. The .6 miles of bridge will go to the state line in the Mississippi River. The bridge, as well as the approach highways, will be a four lane structure.

Total cost of the bridge is estimated at 25 million dollars. Almost as costly as the bridge itself will be the construction of about 13 miles of four - lane divided highway that will connect the bridge approach on the Tennessee side with Highway 51. I-155 will link Interstate 55 in Missouri with Highway 51 just north of Dyersburg.

The first part of that work, grading, drainage and bridges from the river bridge to levee road on the Tennessee side is programmed for 1968-69 at an estimated cost of 1.3 million dollars. Paving of the stretch is set for 1971-72 and is expected to cost, including the installation of signs, $667,000.

Unless unexpected delays in federal funding are encountered, the entire project should be complete in 1973.

Snider says this is only a tentative schedule and delays are very possible. The Missouri Highway Department is responsible for approach spans on the Missouri side of the Mississippi, the substructure of the bridge itself, the steel work, on the main span which will also include the flooring of the bridge and painting, and all roadwork leading to the bridge on the Missouri Side.

The Tennessee Highway Department, according to Ray Terrell, Tennessee Highway Department programming engineer, will be responsible for approach spans on the Tennessee side and all road work leading to the bridge on the Tennessee side.

Ann Landers

Hostile Antic by Boss Not Sufficient to Quit Job

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is an attractive, dignified man -- respected and well liked by everyone. Dwayne holds a good position with a nationally known firm. He came home from work this evening and repeated the following story:

About 3:00 p.m. he walked from his desk to the water cooler. As he was leaning over to take a drink, his boss (an elderly man) came up behind him and gave him three hard slaps on the backside. This was in full view of the entire office. The boss then shouted in a voice that could be heard by everyone, "That will teach you to waste time. Get back to your desk and go to work."

My husband is so humiliated by this public spanking that he wants to quit his job. I've tried to tell him the old man was kidding and he should not be so sensitive. At the same time, I must agree it is a mighty strange way for a boss to treat a 36-year-old employe. Your opinion is wanted. --- HOUSTON

Dear Houston: Kidding, you say? The old gaffer sounds senile to me. If your husband has a good job I hope he will not quit because of this single incident. Encourage him to consider the source and make allowances.

Dear Ann Landers: Many people read your column and little else. Please get across this vital message to Mr. and Mrs. America.

First: You are not going to live forever. Second: Unless you don't give a hoot about what happens to your money and possessions after you are gone, put your wishes in writing jand make it legal.

I work in a lawyer's office and I've heard the following statements so many times it makes me sick: "I know Papa wanted to put his nephews through college. He said so many times but his second wife is keeping everything for herself." Here's another familiar tune: "My sister would not like what is happening in the family. She often told me she would provide for our invalid brother but her selfish children have inherited everything and feel they owe their uncle nothing."

Unless it's written down and in legal form, you can be sure of nothing, except that the law will take over. What's right morally or what "Papa wanted" doesn't amount to a hill of beans unless it's in writing and 100 per cent legal. --- BROKEN RECORD.

Dear Record: I hope every person who reads your letter will ask himself, "If I died tomorrow would my property and goods be divided just as I want them to be?"

Dear Ann Landers: My mother and dad have been divorced for two years. Dad was mean to her and she is glad to be rid of him. He was mean to us kids, too, and we are happy he has moved away.

Mom is seeing a divorced man. He is good to her and acts like a father to my two younger brothers. The problem is that I am ashamed my parents are divorced and I've told my friends this man is my uncle. I hope Mom doesn't marry him but I don't know how to tell her. She is 43 years old and her life is just about over. Can you help me? ---HAZEL EYES

Dear Hazel: You'd better set the record straight before your "uncle" turns out to be your stepdad. And another thing you'd better get straight is that a woman 43 does not have one foot in the grave. In a few years you and your brothers will be on your own and your mom will be alone. Wish her luck and be happy for her.

Want to say "no" to drinking without your buddies putting you down? Get cued in. Write for "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

If You Were the Judge

Run Off Candidates Need Not Be Alive

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

During a heated political campaign, several candiates for city office stood on their records while jumping on the misdeeds of their opponents. In spite of the charges and countercharges, however, no candidate succeeded in obtaining a majority of the votes. As a result, a run-off contest had to be held between the two leading candidates.

However, before the run-off contest could be held, the number two man died. Immediately, "Square Deal Charley," who had tallied the third highest number of votes, demanded that he be substituted for the departed candidate in the run-off contest.

"Can't do it," was the answer. "Under the election law, the run-off must be between the two candidates who received the greatest number of votes. You came in third!"

"Well you can't run a dead man for office," was Charley's answer. "Besides, when the number two man died, I became the number two man. Therefore, it's all legal."

The dispute ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Charley to replace the deceased candidate in the run-off contest?

This is how the judge ruled: No! He held that statutes regulating elections are required to be followed very strictly. In this case, the statute specifically stated that the run - off contest was to be between the two candidates who had received the greatest number of votes in the regular election. And, the judge concluded, it did not require them to be living at the time of that run - off contest.

City's Gasoline Credit Extended

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) - East St. Louis got a credit extension Wednesday from the Mobil Oil Co., which had threatened to sell no more gasoline for city vehicles until a five- month old bill was paid.

The firm told the city it would extend credit until Aug. 1. and the city told Mobil that it could now pay $4,000 on the $16,000 bill, the funds coming from trash collection fees.

The financially beleagured city had to issue wage consignments redeemable at local banks last week because of a $60,000 payroll shortage. East St. Louis has operated in the red since 1951.

Legislators Bow to Sand Castle Builders

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — A state legislative committee has agreed that kids should be allowed to build sand castles and dig holes on Oregon's beaches.

In discussing proposed revisions to a beach bill, the committee excluded recreational excavations from the definition of improvements. Rep. Lee Johnson, chairman, said this would "get around the problem of kids digging in sand."

Our Agricultural Depression

Any farmer or agri-businessman knows that American agriculture is going through a period of depression. At the same time our Congress and legislatures seem to be turning away from the problems of farm families to consider the problems of the big cities. I propose to be your strong voice, representing our rural area in the General Assembly.

Ourstate Missouri now has less than half the membership of the House of Representatives. We must educate the city representatives to the problems of agriculture; tell them what a small share of the cost of food and fiber actually goes to the farmer. We must convence them of the importance of a healthy farm economy to the rest of the country. We must remind them that farmers and agri - business are the nation's largest users of steel, rubber and chemicals. We need better inspection of meats, grain, poultry and eggs, to protect both the farmer and the consumer. I understand farm problems and think I know some of the solutions.

Farm Worker Breaks Arm in Accident

July 19, 1918

Last Thursday while working on George Stone's farm near Matthews Ernest Mills, son of J. M. Mills of Matthews, got his jumper sleeve caught by the revolving crank shaft of a tractor and his arm was wound around the shaft and the bones were broken into a number of short pieces. The arm was put in a plaster of paris case and it is hoped that the member can be saved, although the use of the army may be impaired.

While trying to crank a car on South New Madrid street last Saturday, Lowell Greer got both bones in his right arm broken just above the wrist.

Mrs. L. D. Baker sustained a broken arm last Friday while trying to wring off a chicken's head. She lost her balance and fell, breaking the arm below the elbow.

The McMullin school district is to have a new brick school building real soon. The bonds to the amount of $4,000 voted for that purpose, were registered with and approved by State Auditor George E. Hackman, Tuesday, and they were sold to C. F. McMullin, Wednesday, at the face value. The building will be located on the lot just west of Marion Jewell's store in McMullin and will certainly be one of which all the citizens of the district should be very proud.

There will be 38 members of the new group, all inmates of the prison.

The new chapter will be host to the Jefferson City Jaycees and their wives in becoming what is believed to be the first institutional chapter of a Junior Chamber of Commerce in the state.

First project of the new organization will be a novelty billy club on which will be burned the letters of "MSP" for Missouri State Prison.

Pier Bids to Open Building Of Bridge

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Bids for $5.6 million of pier work for the Caruthersville bridge will be accepted Nov. 22.

This will be the first phase of construction on the bridge which has been in the hoping and planning stages for many years.

All pier construction is programmed for 1968-69 and work on steel spans, superstructure, deck and concrete approach spans are scheduled for 1969-70. Costs to the state of Missouri will be about 8.4 million dollars for the 1968-69 work and 2.6 million dollars for the initial pier construction.

Ten miles of roadway will be built on the Missouri side of the bridge to connect the bridge with I-55. Estimated cost of this four lane divided highway is $8,822,000. Contracts will be let on this road construction after bids for the bridge work have been let.

Marvin J. Snider, Chief Engineer for the Missouri Highway Department, said the roadway contracts will be let so that work will be completed at the same time the bridge is completed. He pointed out that there would be no reason to complete the ten miles of roadway leading to the bridge before the bridge was completed.

The Missouri cost for .6 miles of the bridge itself is estimated to be $10,556,000. The .6 miles of bridge will go to the state line in the Mississippi River. The bridge, as well as the approach highways, will be a four lane structure.

Total cost of the bridge is estimated at 25 million dollars. Almost as costly as the bridge itself will be the construction of about 13 miles of four - lane divided highway that will connect the bridge approach on the Tennessee side with Highway 51. I-155 will link Interstate 55 in Missouri with Highway 51 just north of Dyersburg.

Our Agricultural Depression

Any farmer or agri-businessman knows that American agriculture is going through a period of depression. At the same time our Congress and legislatures seem to be turning away from the problems of farm families to consider the problems of the big cities. I propose to be your strong voice, representing our rural area in the General Assembly.

Ourstate Missouri now has less than half the membership of the House of Representatives. We must educate the city representatives to the problems of agriculture; tell them what a small share of the cost of food and fiber actually goes to the farmer. We must convence them of the importance of a healthy farm economy to the rest of the country. We must remind them that farmers and agri - business are the nation's largest users of steel, rubber and chemicals. We need better inspection of meats, grain, poultry and eggs, to protect both the farmer and the consumer. I understand farm problems and think I know some of the solutions.

Harris Dies At Age 61

Walter Harris, 61, 104 Selma, was pronounced dead on arrival at 9:35 a.m. today at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Coroner Gene Nunnelee said death was from unknown natural causes. Harris was a known cardiac case and had been ill for several years, Nunnelee said. No inquest will be held.

Harris was taken to the hospital Thursday night after falling from his porch, Police Chief Arthur Bruce reported. He was treated for back injuries at 9:45 p.m. Thursday at the hospital and released.

Harris was then taken to the Sikeston police station at the request of his wife and was kept overnight, Chief Bruce said.

Shortly after 9 a.m. today Harris was to be released. When officers went to get him from the cell he had passed out, Bruce said.

He had been talking to himself this morning, before he passed out, Bruce said.

An ambulance was called to take him to the hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

House Slashes Foreign Aid Budget Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, ignoring a plea by President Johnson, has slashed another $370-million-plus from the foreign aid authorization bill, leaving $1.994 billion for the program.

It was the first time the authorizationhas fallen below $2 billion and despite the deep cuts and the possibility of more trimming when the money is actually appropriated, supporters were considered lucky that the bill survived at all.

There had been moves in the House to clamp a moratorium on all foreign aid.

The $1.994-billion bill for the fiscal year which started last July 1 was approved by 228-184 Thursday night and sent to the Senate.

The 44-vote margin was a far cry from the eight votes by which a $2.67 billion authorization was approved last year when Congress actually appropriated $2.2 billion.

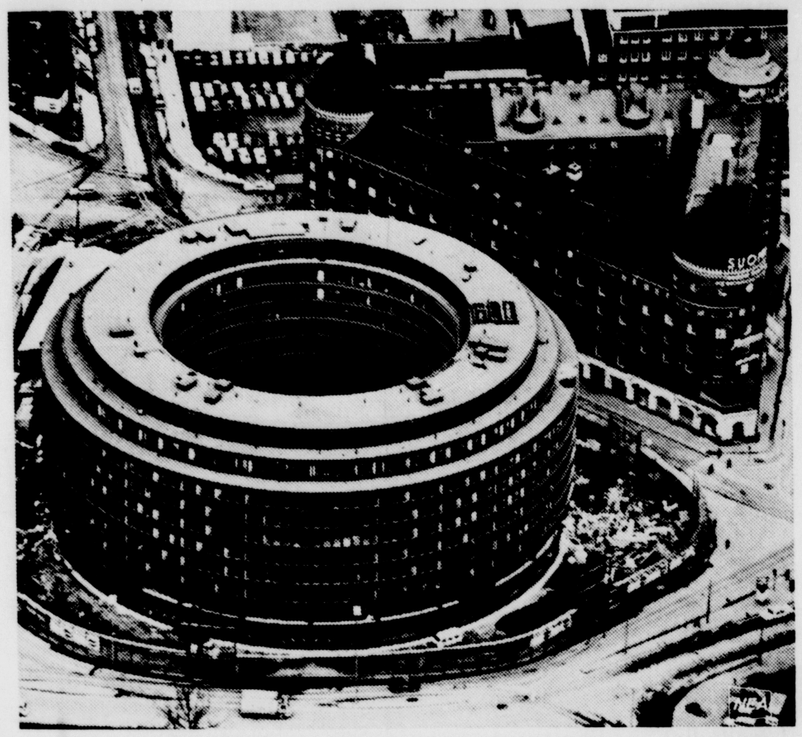

Johnson had appealed to Congress not to cut any more from the bill which was slashed nearly $600 million by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Johnson originally asked Congress for $2.92 billion.

A small group of Republicans, lead by Rep. E. Ross Adair of Indiana, had set their sights on cutting another $400 million on the House floor. They almost made it, reducing the total by some $370.8 million, as a late 267-150 roll call overturned earlier defeats for some cuts.

The House also wrote in a directive for the President to negotiate with Israel for the sale of 50 F4 Phantom Jet fighters which backers claimed is necessary for peace in the Middle East. They pointed to the Soviet Union's supplying jet fighters and bombers to Egypt.

By top-heavy margins the House insisted that no funds under the military assistance program be given to less developed countries for the purchase of such sophisticated weapons as jet planes or missiles.

Harris Dies At Age 61

Walter Harris, 61, 104 Selma, was pronounced dead on arrival at 9:35 a.m. today at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Coroner Gene Nunnelee said death was from unknown natural causes. Harris was a known cardiac case and had been ill for several years, Nunnelee said. No inquest will be held.

Harris was taken to the hospital Thursday night after falling from his porch, Police Chief Arthur Bruce reported. He was treated for back injuries at 9:45 p.m. Thursday at the hospital and released.

Harris was then taken to the Sikeston police station at the request of his wife and was kept overnight, Chief Bruce said.

Shortly after 9 a.m. today Harris was to be released. When officers went to get him from the cell he had passed out, Bruce said.

He had been talking to himself this morning, before he passed out, Bruce said.

An ambulance was called to take him to the hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

House Slashes Foreign Aid Budget Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, ignoring a plea by President Johnson, has slashed another $370-million-plus from the foreign aid authorization bill, leaving $1.994 billion for the program.

It was the first time the authorizationhas fallen below $2 billion and despite the deep cuts and the possibility of more trimming when the money is actually appropriated, supporters were considered lucky that the bill survived at all.

There had been moves in the House to clamp a moratorium on all foreign aid.

The $1.994-billion bill for the fiscal year which started last July 1 was approved by 228-184 Thursday night and sent to the Senate.

The 44-vote margin was a far cry from the eight votes by which a $2.67 billion authorization was approved last year when Congress actually appropriated $2.2 billion.

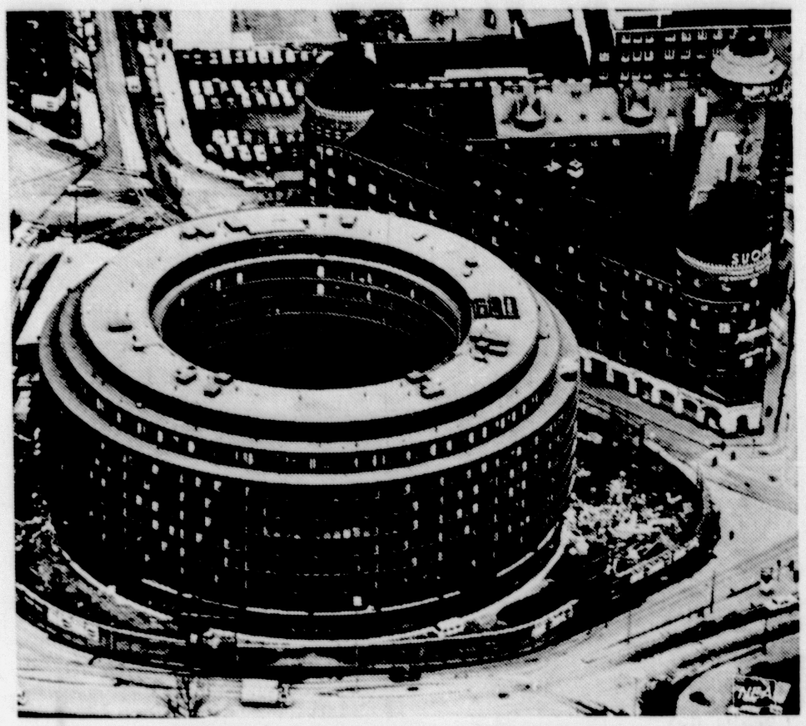

Johnson had appealed to Congress not to cut any more from the bill which was slashed nearly $600 million by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Johnson originally asked Congress for $2.92 billion.

A small group of Republicans, lead by Rep. E. Ross Adair of Indiana, had set their sights on cutting another $400 million on the House floor. They almost made it, reducing the total by some $370.8 million, as a late 267-150 roll call overturned earlier defeats for some cuts.

The House also wrote in a directive for the President to negotiate with Israel for the sale of 50 F4 Phantom Jet fighters which backers claimed is necessary for peace in the Middle East. They pointed to the Soviet Union's supplying jet fighters and bombers to Egypt.

By top-heavy margins the House insisted that no funds under the military assistance program be given to less developed countries for the purchase of such sophisticated weapons as jet planes or missiles.
